EIGHT FIRMS MONOPOLIZE MOVIES, U. S. SUIT CHARGES

Attorney-General Seeks to Have Them Divest Selves of Theaters or of Production and Distribution.

SELECTION OF STORY TO FINAL SHOWING

This Is Extent of Alleged Control by Paramount, Loew's, R-K-O, Warner Bros., Fox, Columbia, Universal, United Artists.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Government filed today in United States District Court a complaint under the Sherman Anti-trust Law demanding the dissolution of alleged illegal combinations in restraint of trade in the motion picture industry.

The case, one of the most comprehensive instituted under the anti-trust laws in recent years, was presented after a long investigation by the Department of Justice.

The Government's bill of complaint charges the eight companies, 25 subsidiary or affiliated corporations and 132 individuals with controlling about 65 per cent of the country's moving pictures "from selection of the story to final showing at the theater."

Principal Defendants.

A statement issued at the Justice Department named as principal defendants:

Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Loew's, Inc.

The Irving Trust Co., New York, as trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

Warner Brothrs Pictures, Inc.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation.

Columbia Pictures Corporation.

Universal Corporation.

United Artists Corporation.

Mary Pickford, her former husband, Douglas Fairbanks, and Charles Chaplin were among those named as individual defendants.

"Restoration of free enterprise and open competition amongst all branches of the motion picture industry is the primary objective of this proceeding," said the Department of Justice statement issued in Washington.

"The suit may settle questions that are vital in the application of the anti-trust laws to other industries in which manufacturers or producers, knit together through a common trade association, seek directly or indirectly to dominate and control markets.

Domination of Theaters.

The Government charges that better theaters are now "dominated" by Paramount, Loew's, Radio-Keith Orpheum, Warner Brothers and Twentieth Century-Fox Film.

Because such control enables them to exclude other producers, Attorney-General Cummings said, that control "constitutes monopolistic power forbidden by the Sherman Act.

"This monopolistic power has a tendency to drive independent theaters out of the business or to compel them to sell to the producer-owned theater chains on the latters' terms."

Charges in General.

In general Cummings charges the producers with:

Avoiding competition with each other by "virtual division of territory."

Pooling stars and feature players.

Exchanging directors, technicians and equipment.

Giving preference to company-affiliated theaters in arranging release dates.

Requiring independent theaters to accept all pictures furnished them, a practice known as "block booking"; to sign inflexible contracts and to accept unfavorable showing dates.

If a trial develops evidence that the anti-trust laws are insufficient to restore competition, Cummings said, the situation will be brought to the attention of Congress.

First Access to Product.

The control of motion pictures by the defendant companies, he contended, actually is greater than the 65 per cent of the nation's films which they produce. From 80 to 90 per cent of the quality feature films, he said, are produced or distributed by them.

"A theater affiliated with a major company," he said, "is given first access to the product of all the major companies before the in-

MARITIME BOARD SENDING SHIP FOR CORRIGAN; FREE PASSAGE FOR PLANE TOO

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 20.

THE Maritime Commission plans to bring Douglas Corrigan and his $900 trans-Atlantic plane back home on one of its ships—all free.

J. Monroe Johnson, acting Secretary of Commerce, disclosed this today. He said the steamship Lehigh, operated by the commission, would dock at Dublin and pick up the flyer. The Lehigh is big enough to transport Corrigan's plane without dismantling.

Johnson, who has final say on what Corrigan's punishment will be for flying across the Atlantic without a permit, declined to talk to reporters about penalties.

"The boy has made a hero of himself, and we are tickled he got across," he said. "We are not going to be guilty of chilling the exploit by talking about punishment."

He said nothing would be done until Corrigan's return July 29 and said he would confer with members of the new civil aeronautics authority before acting.

Johnson laughed heartily over Corrigan's "flight to California by way of Ireland." He characterized the "mistake" as an "excellent Irish joke" and asserted it was impossible to believe that Corrigan did not know where he was going.

ELEPHANTS USED TO BREAK PICKET LINE AT CIRCUS

Sheriff Says He Was Chased a Block by One of Animals at Janesville, Wis.

By the Associated Press.

JANESVILLE, Wis., July 20.—Pickets and elephants clashed last night as the Al G. Barnes circus, a subsidiary of the closed Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus, ended a one-day stand here.

Sheriff James Croake said he was "chased a block" by one of the elephants and that an unidentified man was gored in the back with an elephant hook.

The circus drove a pair of elephants about on the street, the Sheriff said, in what he said was an effort to break up a picket line of 1000 Janesville union members and sympathizers. He stated the union later resumed picketing, disbanding shortly before the circus was scheduled to leave for an Iowa destination.

The Ringling Brothers circus, closed recently following a strike at Scranton, Pa., was reported to have sent some of its acts to the Al G. Barnes unit.

TAX APPEALS BOARD FINDS FOR INTERNATIONAL SHOE CO.

Upholds Protests Against Claims of $233,000 and $17,000 Against Firm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Board of Tax Appeals upheld today the contention of the International Shoe Co. that it di dnot owe $233,432 claimed by the Internal Revenue Commissioner as additional taxes for 1932, or $17,796 claimed for 1933 excess profit taxes.

The question involved matters of accounting. The Board of Tax Appeals permitted the company to deduct as a business expense $150,000 paid to the Menzies Shoe Co. of St. Louis in settlement of a damage suit; permitted the deduction, as a business expense, of the cost of lasts, dies and patterns which have a useful life of one year or less; and approved the company's calculation of depreciation on machinery and equipment at the rate of nine per cent a year.

IRISH PRESIDENT HONORS CORRIGAN IN DUBLIN PALACE

Dr. Douglas Hyde Receives American Flyer; They Discuss His Amazing Jump From New York.

MANY OFFERS PILE UP; NONE ACCEPTED

'Not Interested in Money,' Says Pilot; 'I Can Get Fun and Satisfaction Out of Life Without It.'

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, July 20.—Dr. Douglas Hyde, 78-year-old President of Ireland, honored America's new aviation hero today by receiving him in Dublin's imposing presidential palace.

Douglas G. Corrigan, spick and span in new clothes, drove from the United States legation to the palace. There the President and the young Californian animatedly discussed Corrigan's amazing flight from New York to Dublin.

Earlier in the day Corrigan cut loose in a big Dublin clothing store. He bought two suits of sober hue and a bright sports coat and flannel trousers in preparation for his return, by steamer, to the United States.

Yesterday New York-born Prime Minister Eamon de Valera congratulated Corrigan on his exploit.

Wants to Circle Eiffel Tower.

Corrigan's latest idea is to fly around the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

He probably won't because he has to be getting home before long, and the United States Government has suspended his experimental license.

Here is how the situation shaped up today for the 31-year-old Californian, aviator extraordinary and master of understatement who still slyly insists a compass error took him across the Atlantic instead of to California:

He would like to "go places," London first and then Paris if it weren't for the feeling he should go home.

"I should like to fly around the Eiffel Tower. Then I would have something to talk about," he said today.

He will not accept any contracts until he returns to America.

"Maybe" a movie contract would interest him, but "I am not interested in money. I can get sufficient fun and satisfaction from life without it.

"At present I'm unemployed, but I always seem to get along."

Plane Released to Him.

The Irish Government released his $900 outmoded plane, which he landed here without the usual legal formalities, but he cannot fly it to London because he had only the special license to fly from Los Angeles to New York and back, and that is suspended.

"But I suppose I could fly, though, if I were ordered to take it (the plane) over to show the King, or something like that," he said.

So went the "human dynamo," as he is known to the household at the United States legation, where he is staying, because of his restless activity, his ceaseless talking and his reluctance to go to bed.

There was a great new batch of cables offering everything from movie contracts to matrimony piled up in the legation at breakfast time today.

But Corrigan did not bother with breakfast. "I never eat it," he said.

A Legation official said Corrigan has been getting at least 20 pieces of mail every hour since late Monday.

How Corrigan Learned to Fly; He Worked on Lindbergh's Plane.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 20.—J. J. Harrigan, gave Douglas Corrigan his first flying instruction.

T. Claude Ryan, president of the Ryan School of Aeronautics, where Corrigan learned to fly 13 years ago, recalled today:

"In the fall of 1925, a young and very determined boy of 18 came near making a nuisance of himself by hanging around the Los Angeles office of the Los Angeles-San Diego (Ryan) Air Line.

"We had literally hundreds of young men who wanted to learn to fly in return for whatever mechanical help they could give us and we turned practically all of them down, but young Corrigan was so persistent and determined that we finally agreed to teach him to fly in return for his work.

"Consequently, he was turned over to 'Red' Harrigan."

In 1926, Ryan Air Lines went into manufacturing and Corrigan was employed as a full-time welder. When the company received an order for Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic

TROOPS BREAK UP MAYTAG STRIKE FIGHT; 20 HURT

Militiamen Restore Order After 20-Minute Free-for-All in Streets—N L R B Hearing Postponed.

NEWTON, IA., IS PUT UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Factory, Which Resumed Operations for Two Days With Skeleton Crew, Is Closed by Governor.

By the Associated Press.

NEWTON, Ia., July 20.—National Guard troops restored order in the strike-torn Maytag Washing Machine factory region today after 20 minutes of free-for-all street fighting in which more than 20 persons were beaten or knocked down.

One man was taken to a hospital, several required medical attention at doctors' offices and injuries of the others were cared for by friends and relatives.

A military commission closed all civil law offices and reopened them under military order, with officials acting at the direction of the military authorities. A National Labor Relations Board hearing into charges against the Maytag Co., scheduled for late today, was postponed.

Just what started the trouble was not determined, but like a flash, witnesses said, street fighting broke out over a wide area around the plant.

Some witnesses said they heard women shouting, "Get the scab," as the fighting began. Suddenly men were being knocked down right and left. Police were powerless to cope with the fighters.

The fighting broke out when 250 national guardsmen, who were ordered to the scene early today to preserve order, were eating breakfast.

When a fight broke out about 300 feet south of one of the National Guard scout cars, the guardsmen pulled up and cocked their guns. Maj. Willard Gaines shouted, "We're going to clear them out right now."

The troopers formed a loose line from sidewalk to sidewalk and drove the crowd away from the plant.

Meantime the Maytag factory, which had been operating with a skeleton crew of back-to-work advocates for two days, was closed down. Major-General Matt A. Tinley, commanding officer of the national guard units on the scene, said he "could not say" whether the plant would be kept closed, but added that at present guardsmen were admitting only officers and office workers to the plant. About 400 workers have been on strike since a 10 per cent pay cut was announced May 9.

Gov. Kraschel Proclaims Martial Law and Sends Troops.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Gov. Kraschel declared martial law in Newton and Jasper County last night and sent 250 National Guardsmen to the city.

The Maytag Co. was ordered closed.

The guardsmen arrived here about 3:15 a. m. today and set up a tent city at the south edge of town. About 200 persons greeted the troops. The 47 automobiles and trucks carrying troops left Des Moines at 2 a. m.

Gov. Kraschel said he would not lift martial law in Newton and Jasper County "until the future peace in Newton is definitely guaranteed." He indicated he meant by this that the opposing faetions in the controversy must reach a settlement before he relieves the militia.

Terms of Proclamation.

The Governor's proclamation of martial law stated in part:

"The rule of martial law shall be invoked and extended to all parts of the city of Newton and the territory adjacent thereto in Jasper County, Iowa, in so far as the same is necessary for the execution of this proclamation . . .

"The Adjutant-General is further authorized and empowered under his discretion to appoint a military commission to take cognizance and jurisdiction of all offenses against the public peace, and violation of military regulations . . .

"Such commission shall have full power and authority to issue all necessary process for the conduct of its proceedings and like powers to compel the attendance of witnesses therein, as are exercised by the civil courts of the State of Iowa . . ."

Adjutant-General Grahl said Frank B. Hallagan, Judge Advocate, would handle legal details. Judge Hallagan said any cases in Jasper County District Court would be continued until after martial law is lifted.

The Governor acted reluctantly after Mayor George E. Campbell of

PICK-A-BACK PLANE OFF ON OCEAN FLIGHT

Mercury Leaves Back of Mother-Ship Maia at Foynes, Ireland, for Canada.

By the Associated Press.

FOYNES, Ireland, July 20.—The Mercury, upper unit of Britain's pick-a-back airplane, took off from the back of its mothership, the Maia, at 8 o'clock tonight (daylight time), (1 p. m. St. Louis time) for an attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

The Mercury headed for Botwood, Newfoundland, after accomplishing the parting in midair above Foynes.

The Maia, big flying boat with the smaller Mercury perched on its back, roared away from the starting point on the River Shannon as a large crowd cheered.

At a height of about 1000 feet the pilots spoke briefly over the connecting telephone, the release apparatus was worked and the Mercury sped westward alone. After Botwood, it is expected to fly to Montreal and New York. It carried half a ton of freight.

Major Robert Mayo, inventor of the composite craft, watched the take-off.

British Imperial Airways, operators of the unusual craft, hoped to set a new record for a westward crossing of less than 11 hours. It was arranged that the Mercury would return to Foynes on the southern route, by way of the Azores, Lisbon and Southampton.

Imperial Airways have planned other test flights in the next three months and expect to start regular trans-Atlantic service in 1939.

The Mercury's pilot is 28-year-old Donald Bennett. Aided by a radio operator, he hoped to fly to Botwood at an average speed of about 200 miles an hour, bettering the 12 and 13 hour crossings by commercial type seaplanes in experimental flights last year.

Much of the Mercury's cargo consisted of London newspapers and news pictures. The mid-air takeoff of the Mercury permits the ship to begin its flight with a heavier cargo or fuel load than otherwise would be possible.

The composite plane was developed jointly by the Royal Air Force and the Imperial Airways.

DEFENSE IN HARLAN TRIAL RESTS; REBUTTAL BEGINS

Lawyers for 56 Coal Firms and Individuals Call 347 Witnesses.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Ky., July 20.—The defense in the Harlan labor conspiracy trial closed its case shortly after noon today after having called 347 witnesses. The Government began its rebuttal as the afternoon session opened in United States District Court.

Fifty-six coal companies and individuals are on trial on charges of conspiring to prevent miners from unionizing under the Wagner Act.

The defense's final witnesses were called principally for cross-examination, that side having reserved the right of recall after the witness testified the first time.

FRANCE AND BRITAIN RENEW PLEDGES OF FRIENDSHIP

England Goes No Further Than Before in Indicating Czech Attitude—Hitler's Sudeten Plan Given to Halifax.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 20.—France and Great Britain today made King George's state visit the occasion for affirming the solidarity of the two democracies. Their Ministers issued a communique after a long conference this afternoon affirming "complete harmony of their views" on international problems.

The communique, drafted by Premier Edouard Daladier, French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, indicated, however, that Britain would not go beyond commitments made at London during the French Ministers' visit of April 28 and 29.

This was interpreted by diplomats as a refusal to give an outright guarantee of military help to France in the event the latter should aid Czechoslovakia in a clash with Germany.

The communique stressed that the agreements reached at London for close collaboration would be "entirely maintained."

Hitler's Czech Plan.

The Ministers' statement did not mention the outcome of their reported discussion of a plan offered by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler for solution of the Czechoslovakian problem. Hitler's plan was said by sources close to the Government to have been brought to Paris by Halifax.

The statesmen, including Premier Daladier, French Foreign Minister Bonnet and British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, went into conference at the Foreign Office immediately after luncheon.

Viscount Halifax presumably received Hitler's formula for ending strife between the Czechoslovak Government and its Sudeten German minority population a few hours before he sailed with his sovereign for France yesterday.

Hitler Envoy Takes Message.

London informants said the swift step toward improving English-German relations was by "personal message," carried to Viscount Halifax by Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, who is Fuehrer Hitler's confidential envoy.

The two met at Halifax's London home for a 20-minute secret talk late Monday night. Capt. Wiedemann was said to have declared there were no fundamental differences that need separate the two nations and that "everything is capable of arrangement."

The British Foreign Secretary was reported to have replied that peaceful settlement of the Czech problem, without outside interference, obviously would lead to a clearer atmosphere for negotiations of wider scope.

Reliable information indicated he also told the German envoy that German will for co-operation might be shown in sharing with other governments the work of finding haven for political and racial refugees.

Stephan Osusky, the Czechoslovak Minister to Paris, was reported to have been asked to stand by as Viscount Halifax unfolded the Ger-

POWER STOCKS BRACE MARKET AFTER BREAK IN MOVIE SHARES

Loew's Drops $4 as Result of Anti-Trust Suit, Later Rises a Little.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20. — An advance by electric power stocks helped brace the stock market today after a break in movie shares, which followed the Federal Government's court action to separate theater ownership from film production.

Utilities in late dealings registered gains ranging to more than $1.

With heavy selling of movie stocks at midday, Loew's dropped about $4, then rallied. Warner Brothers, Paramount and Twentieth Century Fox declined $1 or more.

Loew's closed at $52.25, off $3.75; Warner Brothers $6.87, off $1.12, and Paramount, $11.50, off $1.62. HORLICK HEIRESS' DEATH LAID TO SPINAL AILMENT

Autopsy Doctor Says Condition Probably Developed Short Time Before She Succumbed.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ontario, July 20.—Dr. W. L. Robinson, in charge of an autopsy on Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, said today that the immediate cause of her death July 6 was an acute condition of the spinal cord, which probably developed a short time before death.

Dr. Robinson, University of Toronto pathologist, was asked by William Sidley, son of the heiress to the Horlick malted milk fortune, to perform the autopsy. He said blood tests and chemical analyses generally were negative.

Dr. Robinson said the brain was being examined section by section and that a preliminary report on its condition probably would be ready before the inquest July 26. William Sidley has been invited to attend the inquest.

Thousands of Houses Destroyed, Large Areas Inundated in Chinese Province.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 20. — A Kuo Min (Chinese) news agency dispatch from Kweiyang, Kweichow Province, reported today that 2000 persons had been killed or injured in floods following heavy rains in Southeastern Kweichow.

PLANE PLUNGES FROM 1500 FEET, PASSES LOW OVER HOUSE AND DIVES

Lieut. Ralph Guy La Baw, 23, of Lincoln, Ill., and Private Almey L. Tanner, 22, Sikeston, Mo. Lose Lives.

WRECKAGE YIELDS NO CLEW TO CAUSE

William Loehring Says Motor Was Not Sputtering When Craft Circled Place; It Was Cut Out Just Before Impact.

Lieut. Ralph Guy La Baw and Private Almey L. Tanner, both of Scott Field, were killed at 9 o'clock this morning when an army airplane, piloted by La Baw, crashed in Madison County, Illinois, on the farm of William Loehring, four miles southwest of St. Jacob.

What caused the crash was not immediately determined.

Loehring told a Post-Dispatch reporter he observed the plane circling over his farm at an altitude of about 1500 feet, and that finally it roared downward in a steep descent. It passed over his home at about 200 feet and crashed into a tomato patch a quarter of a mile away.

Nose Buried, Tail Ripped Off.

The plane buried its nose in the ground. The tail was ripped off, and parts of the plane were thrown 75 feet from where it crashed. The occupants, strapped in their seats, were jammed in the wreckage. La Baw was decapitated and Tanner's head was crushed.

An hour before, La Baw and Tanner had taken off from Scott Field on a routine training flight in the O-19 model biplane.

Loehring told a Post-Dispatch reporter he first saw the plane when it circled his farm as he was eating breakfast.

"It must have been 1000 or 1500 feet up when it first circled the farm," Loehring said to a reporter. "Then it started around again and came lower. The plane was banking heavily, when all of a sudden it went into a dive.

"The motor appeared to be working all right—at least it was not sputtering. Just before the crash the motor was cut off."

Farmers Call Scott Field.

Loehring, with his son, Eldon, and two neighbors, Robert Anderson and Fred Kassing, ran to the tomato patch. When they had identified the wrecked airplane as an Army craft, they telephoned to Scott Field.

The scene of the crash is about 25 miles east of St. Louis and about 15 miles northeast of Scott Field. The bodies and the wrecked airplane were taken to Scott Field.

Lieut. La Baw, whose parents live at Lincoln, Ill., was 23 years old. A graduate of the University of Illinois, he completed the flying course at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Tex., last month. He was commissioned in the Air Reserve, and was assigned to Scott Field for extended active duty. He was planning to return to the University, to study for a Doctor's degree.

Private Tanner was 22. He enlisted at St. Louis March 13, 1937, and had been on duty at Scott Field since then. His sister and an uncle live at Sikeston, Mo.

Premature Explosion of Dynamite Wipes Out All But Eight of Crew in New Water Tunnel.

ALL OF SURVIVORS SUFFER INJURIES

Victim's Bodies Badly Mangled — None of the Rescued Is Able to Tell Just How It Happened.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—A premature explosion of 450 pounds of dynamite killed 10 Negro members of a crew of 18 workmen blasting a water tunnel through solid rock 200 feet below the surface near the city pumping station today. The explosion occurred shortly before the night shift was to have left the tunnel.

Seven men were killed outright as the burst of rock rolled through the tunnel. Three of the 11 taken to the surface alive, died in hospitals. Only four escaped injury.

Officials of the construction company said the blast, which occurred about 7 o'clock, must have been set off by accident while the men were tamping down the huge charge of explosive.

The white members of the crew escaped with their lives. The dead, all Baltimore Negroes, were Willie Lee, 37 years old; Charles Durham, 27; Luther Randolph, 28; Melvin Duke, 29; Henry Sanford, 24; James Hough, 36; Charles Harvey, 23; William Botts, 37; James Key, 22, and Robert James, 36.

Construction of the seven-mile water tunnel between the Lake Montebello filtration plant and the Gunpowder River was begun in 1937 by the J. F. Shea Co. of Los Angeles to provide an additional subterranean viaduct to supplement the Baltimore city water supply. Work is carried on simultaneously from several vertical shafts. Only one section was affected by the blast.

GOV. EARLE SLIGHTLY HURT WHEN PLANE STRIKES TREE

Executive Makes Forced Landing on College Campus Because of Fog Over Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

NEWTON SQUARE, Pa., July 20.—Gov. George H. Earle was slightly injured today when his private plane, which he was piloting, struck a tree in a forced landing on the campus of Ellis College. He said after the accident that his left side, arm and leg felt sore and he would see a doctor.

Earle, flying from Harrisburg to Philadelphia, said he was unable to land at the Municipal Airport because of fog.

Earle told school employes who ran to aid him: "It's a shame to damage a young tree like this, but the plane was a brand new ship, too."

A wing struck the tree as Earle taxied the plane over the wet grass on the grounds of the college—a school for orphaned girls.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Nicholas Mandzik, 17, of nearby Clifton Heights, killed in an airplane crash at Roosevelt Field, New York, today, left Monday for New York accompanied by Paul Fadden, also 17, and a resident of Clifton Heights. Both were high school seniors and planned to enter the Navy on graduation to pursue a flying career.

Mandzik, who had his seventeenth birthday on Sunday, was given the flight to New York by his mother as a present. He rented the plane from a man who had taught him to fly. The fathers of the two boys are employed in the same spinning mill at Clifton Heights.

Training Plane Crashes; One Man Killed at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—Bettis Airport reported today a training plane crashed near the field, killing one man and injuring another.

France and Britain Renew Pledges of Friendship

man suggestions at today's conference with his French colleagues.

King George's formal tribute to France's unknown soldier and a reception at City Hall left the afternoon free for Halifax, Bonnet and Daladier to get down to the more practical purpose of the state visit. They arranged for lunch together.

French-British Responsibilities.

King George, speaking at the dinner given him and Queen Elizabeth by President Lebrun last night, stressed that France and Britain jointly had great responsibilities in preserving democratic institutions.

Some saw this as foreshadowing settlement of the long tense situation in the Central European democracy, for it was strong French-British diplomatic action May 21 which checked Nazi-Czech conflict on the minority question.

The 3,500,000 Sudeten German population in Czechoslovakia wants extensive privileges of self government, with greater friendliness toward the Nazis.

German willingness to co-operate in peaceful settlement would mean a long step forward, as Britain has been reluctant to come around to the French view—that war would be preferable to forceful, one-sided German solution of the minority problem.

Developments in Central Europe completely overshadowed the two other subjects before the statesmen, a joint French-British understanding with Italy, through ending foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war, and a common front in the Far East.

France was expected, however, to press for a formal British promise not to make effective the Italian-British friendship pact until Premier Mussolini reaches a similar accord with the French Government.

Berlin Not Satisfied With Results of London Talk.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 20.—The visit of Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's adjutant, to London was "not completely satisfactory," according to a source with excellent connections at the Chancellory.

The English Foreign Secretary, Viscount Halifax, was said to have shown a very conciliatory spirit and to be anxious for improvement of British-German relations, but apparently did not go far enough with regard to the Czechoslovak problem.

In other words, this source said, Halifax was prepared to urge the Czechoslovak Government to grant a large measure of autonomy to the Sudeten Germans, but not as much as the Nazis think the Sudeten Germans should have.

Wiedemann arrived in Berlin yesterday afternoon and proceeded to the Rhineland, where Hitler has been reported visiting. There has been no mention of Hitler's whereabouts for days in the press.

According to the Chancellory source, Halifax balked at the idea of having anti-Jewish legislation enforced throughout Sudeten territory as one of the manifestations of Sudeten autonomy.

The informant stated that Wiedemann told Halifax of Hitler's adamant insistence that Czechoslovakia must sever its alliance with Soviet Russia. Halifax apparently remained non-commital on this point.

Meanwhile, it was learned here that Albert Forster, Danzig Nazi leader, was on his way to Berlin to report on his trip to London July 14.

Sudetens Say Negotiations Have Not Begun; Outline Their Plan.

By the Associated Press.

PRAHA, July 20.—The Sudeten German party sharply checked a growing feeling of optimism surrounding negotiations to reorganize the Czechoslovak Government by announcing yesterday there has been no "understanding" with the Government.

Officials of the party, representing most of Czechoslovakia's vociferous 3,500,000 Germanic minority, issued a statement saying "negotiations have not even begun," and protesting that it was far too early to call Parliament for consideration of the minorities problem.

At the same time the party issued an elaborate plan setting forth its conception of what the new reorganized Czechoslovak Government should be to satisfy various minorities.

The Sudetens protested that up until now they have not even had an opportunity to talk to the Government about their plan, although details first were given to President Eduard Benes and the Cabinet June 7.

The Sudetens' wet blanket was applied after several official intimations that Benes and the Cabinet Ministers were getting along excellently in reconciling divergent Czechoslovak and German viewpoints, and that Government proposals were nearing completion.

Differences Over Procedure.

Sources close to the Government had intimated that Parliament might be called as early as next Tuesday to pass on the Government plan for extending a greater measure of self-government to various national groups.

The Sudetens' statement emphasized the Germans had an altogether different conception of the proper procedure.

The Government plan, it was held, should not be presented to an unprepared Parliament, but should be submitted first to the minorities for criticism and study.

Only after such discussions, it was argued, would the proposed reforms be properly ready for presentation to Parliament.

The Sudetens admitted there had been informative discussions, but contended that as yet the German minority had not even begun to argue.

The Government was reminded of its promise to present no fait accompli to any minority group.

Essentials of the Sudeten reorganization plan were given as:

Partition of Czechoslovakia into self-governing states divided along lines of language and as nearly as possible by natural boundaries.

Observance of minority rights within the states to protect scattered Czech groups living in the Sudeten regions.

Granting of "reparations" to the Sudetens for "damages suffered since 1918."

Local Control Demanded.

Exercise of local control by the individual national states over police, social welfare, markets, finance, education, art and power services.

Retention of a central government with a President and a national assembly but probably with abolition of the Senate.

Provision for Presidents and legislators for the national states, with the legislators to be assembled in Praha to constitute a national assembly.

Presidents of the national states to be ex-officio members of the central government cabinet.

Dissolution of the present Ministries of Education, Health, and Social Welfare because their functions would be taken over by the national states.

Regional officials to be of the nationality of the state they serve.

Language of the regional governments to be that of their citizens.

National and high officials to use the language of lower officials.

Creation of a sort of "District of Columbia" for Praha because "it belongs to all the nations of Czechoslovakia."

A national budget to be agreed on by a conference of the states.

TWO FINNISH VESSELS DETAINED BY RUSSIANS

Presumably Held for Entering Soviet Waters; Helsingfors Investigating.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 20. — Two Finnish vessels were seized by Russian authorities today off Seiskari Island in the Gulf of Finland, presumably on the ground the ships entered Soviet waters.

The Finnish Government started an investigation immediately.

Newton and Sheriff Earl Shields of Jasper County signed a formal application which asserted that "civil authority is fully and completely broken down."

District Judge Homer A. Fuller of Mount Ayr, who has been presiding at Newton, went to the Governor's office with Shields and Campbell and urged them to sign the application. However, he would not sign it himself.

Before ordering troops, Kraschel talked with Edward Ford, Maytag attorney, in a final effort to have the company accept the report of an arbitration board. Ford said he could do nothing. The Governor released a stenographic report of their conversation.

After the conversation, the Governor quoted Ford as saying that calling out the troops was the only thing to do.

He said that Ford also said that he "honestly believed that the only way they could get together was to establish such a truce."

"In my opinion," Judge Fuller told the Governor, "this is not a case of capital against labor. It is communism versus the good people of Newton. If you would send 50 men I'll guarantee we'll put the fear of God into those fellows (the union members)."

The Judge said he was fearful of what action the farming people in Jasper County would take if union men interfered with the "back to workers."

"If those men are not allowed to go back to work, the reaction would be terrific. There may be bloodshed," the Judge said. "I've never been on such a trying spot in trying to do my duty. My life has been threatened and everything else."

Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood ordered a hearing next Tuesday. Vinson Lutz, president of the firm, said the suit would be resisted.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., July 20.—Counsel for 12 oil companies and five individuals who were found guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust law yesterday by United States District Judge Patrick T. Stone filed formal notice of appeal in United States District Court here today.

The corporate and individual defendants were fined a total of $65,000 and costs.

The appeal notice was filed with the court after Judge Stone had issued an order permitting the filing of an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago, and allowing the appellants to file a joint bond of $25,000.

In its order, the court allowed counsel for the defendants and the Government 90 days in which to agree on a bill of exceptions. If they are unable to agree, they will be allowed to take the matter before Judge Stone.

CRASH TO DELAY OCEAN FLIGHT BY RUMANIAN FOR A MONTH

Capt. Papana Finds Damage to Plane Is Less Than He Had Thought, However.

By the Associated Press.

NORWALK, Conn., July 20.—Capt. Alexander Papana, Rumanian aviator, who had hopes of starting a trans-Atlantic flight Friday to Bucharest, today inspected the new transport plane that he cracked up against a stone wall here and said damage was less than he originally thought, although the crash would delay the trip a month.

"I was lucky that I wasn't injured," he said, as he checked the ship, minus its wheels and propellers as a result of the crash at the Norwalk airport. Papana, a widely known stunt flyer, prepared to send the motor and possibly the entire plane to Detroit for repairs.

The accident occurred late yesterday.

20 KILLED IN GREEK QUAKE, TWO VILLAGES IN RUINS

Island of Euboea Most Heavily Hit—Athens Withstands Tremors — Man Awaiting Death Sentence Dies in Prison Collapse.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, July 20.—The strongest earthquake felt in this country in modern times caused death and ruin today in parts of Greece.

A tentative casualty list based on fragmentary reports showed 20 persons killed and at least 100 injured.

The island of Euboea, north of Athens, suffered most heavily. The quake centered there and in at least two villages nearly every house was shaken down. Reports said the shocks caused fissures into which small buildings toppled.

The Government sent relief by motor truck and railway to the stricken communities. No estimate has been made of the damage.

A succession of minor tremors kept the population in fear of further serious shocks.

Although the quake was so severe in Athens that it put seismographs out of commission, the city retained its reputation for withstanding earthquakes. The capital suffered no serious damage, although many frightened inhabitants spent the rest of the early hours in the streets after the first heavy temblor at 2:25 a. m.

Villagers at Oropos, where walls of the prison crumbled reported one man awaiting sentence for the killing of his children, died in the collapsing structure.

The Warden called for troops to prevent prisoners' escape.

Few buildings were left standing in the villages of Lefanaka and Neapalatia, the latter a community of 1200 population.

Heavy damage and at least one death were reported at the village of Chalkis.

The first severe temblor was at 2:25 a. m., but minor ones continued through the early morning hours, keeping inhabitants in constant fear.

The quake also was felt at Patras and Lamia, and appeared to have had its greatest effect in the northern villages of Attika, Malakassa, Kakosalesi and Skalaoropou.

SCIENTIST WITH ROOSEVELT COLLECTING RARE SPECIMENS

Prof. Schmitt of Smithsonian Institution Busy During Each Stop of Cruiser.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, EN ROUTE TO PANAMA, July 20.—Prof. Waldo Schmitt of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington told President Roosevelt today he had obtained biological and bird collections of great scientific interest at each of the stops on the President's fishing cruise.

Prof. Schmitt was invited by the President to cruise with him so he might conduct scientific investigations which the institution had wanted to make for many years. In Magdalena Bay, the professor said, he found an incredible number of small crustaceans. He brought with him drags, seines, bottom samplers, traps and hand nets to capture marine animals.

The Houston rode at anchor today at the southern end of Socorro island, largest of the Revilla Gigedo group, while President Roosevelt and members of his party fished the seldom-visited waters of that vicinity. Others went ashore to explore this picturesque bit of land.

U. S. EMBASSY STRUCK IN SHELLING OF MADRID

Some Damage Caused; Building Is Not Officially Occupied.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 20.—The United States Embassy Building here was hit by four shells early today when insurgent artillery bombarded the city. Some damage was caused, but no one in the embassy building was hurt.

Elsewhere in the city seven persons were wounded.

The embassy has not been occupied by diplomatic officers since early in the war. (The Ambassador, Claude G. Bowers, maintains offices at St. Jean-de-Lux, France.)

The shelling began about 4 a. m. Some of the shells, unusually large, tore great holes in buildings and streets. Citizens rushed from their beds to cellars and other shelters.

This was the first time the Embassy had sustained a direct hit during the nearly two years' siege of Madrid. Shell fragments and bullets frequently had landed in the garden.

One of the shells that hit the building today crashed through the roof of the Porter's lodge, hit the ground, tore through a gate and exploded in the street. Another struck a tennis pavilion, smashed two windows and riddled the walls with fragments. The other two did not explode. The custodian of the Embassy, Francisco Ugarte, asked the Government to send an artillery expert to take them away.

Five passengers and the crew of six men are missing.

Seeks Passport, Held for Killing.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Carmello Malaspina, 33 years old, mistakenly thought he would need a passport to go to Cuba. He walked into police headquarters and asked that his fingerprints be taken so he could show them in applying for the passport. Police, suspicious because his fingertips had been burned with acid, checked his prints and found he was wanted in the fatal beating of Hans Bloom in front of a Brooklyn bar and grill in July, 1935. They had sought him for three years. Malaspina went to jail, instead of to Cuba.

FLIGHT SEASON FOR BEETLE

Japanese Specie Damaging Trees and Flowers; Pest in Massachusetts.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—This is flight season for the Japanese beetle, which damages trees, shrubs and flowers. From Virginia to Massachusetts, where the pest is heaviest, the beetle is on the wing, and even has invaded roof gardens above the towers of New York.

Agriculture Department entomologists said today little can be done to check the annual flights. The department concentrates on preventing the pest from spreading. In "flight seasons" the beetle emerges from the ground for a two-month whirl in the world, during which it attacks trees, preferring elms, horse chestnuts, Lombardi poplar, willow and fruit trees; ornamental shrubbery and flowers.

PITTSBURGH GLASS STIPULATION HELD UP BY THE N L R B

Approval or Disapproval Withheld Because of Objection to Phrasing of Agreement.

DEMONSTRATION BY INDEPENDENT UNION

It Calls on 'Right-Thinking People' of Crystal City to Join in Parade and Mass Meeting.

The National Labor Relations Board at Washington announced today, through its St. Louis office, that it "withheld approval or disapproval" of the stipulation signed Monday by attorneys of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and of the Labor Board. The stipulation was intended to settle the complaint of unfair practices made against the company at its Crystal City plant, by the C I O-affiliated Federation of Flat Glass Workers.

Following the board's announcement, which came as a surprise to both sides, the Crystal City Glass Workers' Union, independent union which figured in the complaint and in the stipulation, called a parade and mass meeting for this evening. A sound truck moved through the streets of Crystal City and Festus announcing the meeting and scattering handbills.

The handbills called on "every community-thinking person" to join in the parade. "The stable, right-thinking people of this community have been challenged," the appeal continued. "Let's accept the challenge! The Crystal City Glass Workers' Union is NOT DISSOLVED; it is INTACT, and can assist members in their problems. We are still flying the American flag, where the MAJORITY RULES. We have the MAJORITY! WE WILL WIN!"

Several hours later, another and larger sound truck, from St. Louis, appeared on the streets, announcing a "peaceful mass meeting" tomorrow night, in behalf of the C I O union.

G. W. Oakes, superintendent of the glass plant, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had nothing to do with the independent union's action in calling for last night's demonstration; that he regretted it, and, had he been consulted, would have advised against it. He ordered handbills torn down at places where they had been posted on the company's property.

Foremen at the plant were notified that they must maintain a neutral attitude toward the situation.

Hearing Adjourned.

Following the news from Washington, the hearing of the charge against the glass company was formally resumed, at the City Hall in Crystal City, but was at once adjourned until 10 a. m. Friday. The hearing began Monday morning and was stopped after five minutes by the company's announcement that it would withdraw recognition from the independent union, and would cease to discourage membership in the C I O union.

Joseph L. Maguire, trial examiner sent from Washington to conduct the hearing, said at today's brief session that he would advise the workers to remain calm, and refrain from heated disputes.

Miss Dorothea De Schweinitz, regional director for the Labor Board through whom the board announced its non-approval of the stipulation, said she was informed that the board objected to certain phraseology in the stipulation. She did not specify the part which had caused objection.

When the stipulation was drawn up Monday, Labor Board counsel said it would give the C I O union all the advantages which it could have obtained from a decision after a prolonged hearing. One section stated:

"The respondent (glass company), its officers, agents, successors and assigns, will cease and desist in so far as theymay have done in the past, the acts hereinafter set forth, and will in the future cease and desist from:" There followed a long list of promises on the company's part. The company agreed to accept as final the board's order covering withdrawal of recognition from the independent union.

The stipulation was signed by attorneys for the company and for the Labor Board, and by a representative of the independent union.

Robert B. Watts, associate counsel of the N L R B, will be in St. Louis tomorrow. His visit was not occasioned by the glass company hearing, but facts in the case will be laid before him while he is here.

IRISH PRESIDENT HONORS CORRIGAN IN DUBLIN PALACE

plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," Corrigan was put to work on it.

Corrigan worked for several aircraft manufacturers in Southern California, saving money for his projected flights and putting his brother, Harry, through aeronautical engineering school.

"One day Corrigan called me over and in his rather bashful way asked if I didn't think 'the ship looks pretty fine' and wouldn't I 'like to take it around alone,'" Ryan recalled.

"So I said I would. The ship did handle nicely, in spite of the fact that the tanks greatly obstructed the vision of the pilot, and Doug was apparently well pleased when I told him what a swell job he had done."

"Little did I realize then that the rebuilt 'crate' would become so famous."

Movement Begun to Buy $25,000 Plane for Corrigan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Advertising Club of Newark, N. J., began today a campaign to collect $25,000 for a new plane as a gift to Douglas Corrigan.

The Advertising Club of New York offered free transportation for Corrigan and his plane by steamship back to New York.

The United States Line promised a free return trip aboard the Manhattan or Washington.

An amusement Park made a tentative offer of $25,000 if he will name the plane for the park.

Jean I. Eliscu, president of a New York textile firm, offered a half-interest in his business if Corrigan would fly around the world at the company's expense.

Los Angeles Prepares Civic Celebration for Corrigan.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Plans for a great civic celebration to welcome back to Los Angeles Douglas Corrigan were started here yesterday.

Director Charles S. Crail Jr., of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, said he had cabled Corrigan at Dublin to set a date for the welcome.

The flyer's uncle, the Rev. S. Fraser Langford, laughed anew at Corrigan's story of having flown to Ireland through mistake instead of back to Los Angeles.

"I am reminded," said the minister, "of the Irishman who, awaking to find his house afire, jumped up, put his pants on backward and ran outside. When he noticed his trousers situation, he said, 'My, I've certainly got myself badly twisted.'"

The Rev. Mr. Langford said he had cabled his nephew $200 and his congratulations and admonished him to "keep your feet on the ground."

Mayor Frank Shaw of Los Angeles cabled Corrigan:

"There is no mistake, my boy, all air roads lead to Los Angeles. We are tremendously proud of you, but please return the safest way, because aviation needs you."

In Santa Monica, W. E. Easterwood of Dallas, Tex., long an aviation patron, said he would pay any fine that might be imposed on Corrigan for infraction of aviation regulations. He also said he had cabled airport authorities at Dublin he would take care of any expenses resulting from Corrigan's landing.

NEWARK ATTACK ON THOMAS CONDEMNED BY GRAND JURY

"Direct Defiance of Right of Free Speech," It Says; No Individuals Named.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., July 20.—The Essex County grand jury handed up a presentment today condemning unnamed persons who started a disturbance last June 4 at Military Park, where Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, was howled down in a barrage of eggs and brickbats.

The disturbance, the jury said, was a "direct defiance of the Constitutional right of free speech."

There was no basis, the jury decided, for charges that police on duty at the park were lax, but failure to assign a larger force might have been a mistake in judgment, it said.

BARS SLOT MACHINES IN EAST SIDE TAVERNS

Starts Official Gives Proprietors 48 Hours to Get Rid of Devices.

Arthur S. Smith, chairman of the Illinois State Liquor Control Commission, ordered slot machines out of all Madison County taverns within 48 hours, as he concluded hearings of citations against 30 tavern proprietors this afternoon at Hotel Stratford in Alton.

Smith told the crowd of more than 400 persons, including tavern proprietors and members of civic groups, who attended the hearings, that an investigation by the commission this month revealed that there were at least 439 slot machines operating in 297 taverns in the county.

More than 300 tavern owners had been cited to appear today, but Smith concluded the hearings after listening to testimony in 30 cases. He said there would be no hearings ni the other cases, as the commission was thoroughly familiar with the situation in the county. No rulings were made.

The hearings began this morning after Smith had overruled an objection by State Senator —ames O. Monroe of Collinsville, that the commission was illegally hearing complaints that tavern operators were permitting gambling in their places.

Senator Monroe, in his argument to the commission, contended the commission was exceeding its authority provided in the liquor control act by undertaking to enforce criminal statutes. He said he planned to appeal to Circuit Court.

The first defendants called were 15 Edwardsville tavern operators, most of whom admitted that slot machines had been operating in their places in the past. A few refused to say whether gambling went on in their taverns, on advice of counsel. However, all testified that they had no slot machines in their taverns now and did not intend to install them later.

The tavern proprietors had been cited to appear before the commission today to answer charges of violating various Illinois liquor regulations. Many of the citations are based on complaints of citizens' and civic groups that the proprietors had slot machines in their taverns. The hearings are on appeals taken by the civic groups after adverse or no action had been taken by local liquor control authorities on their complaints.

WOMAN PAYS $210 FOR FURS, FINDS THEY ARE WORTH $11

Police Seeking Acquaintance and "Dealer" Who Was to Buy Them From Her.

Mrs. Erna Andersen, 4671 Lee avenue, reported to police yesterday that she had paid $210 for furs which proved to be worth only about $11, having bought them from an acquaintance who said he needed money to go to New York on his way to Norway, her native land.

The seller called on her Monday, inquired in Norwegian for a relative in the neighborhood and returned yesterday with a man whom he identified as an Alton fur dealer, she related. When he produced the furs, she said, his companion said they were very valuable and must have been smuggled into this country. She said she bought five of the furs for the supposed dealer on his promise that he would return and pay her for them.

When he failed to return, she went to a local fur dealer and was informed the furs were a poor grade of Northern seal, an imitation of real seal, worth about $2.25 each.

"This monopolistic power has a tendency to drive independent theaters out of the business or to compel them to sell to the producer-owned theater chains on the latters' terms.

"Theater patrons in any given community are not given an opportunity to exercise choice as to the type of pictures they desire to see. . . . As matters now stand, each community is regimented into accepting the kind of picture which will make the most profits on a nationwide scale."

GOLD MINING COMPANY WINS RULING AGAINST NLRB ORDER

U. S. Court Holds Its Operations Have Only Remote Relation to Interstate Commerce.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation had authority of a United States Circuit Court of Appeals today to ignore an order of the National Labor Relations Board to reinstate 61 discharged C I O gold and silver miners.

The court ruled that gold mining in California had only a "remote and unsubstantial" relation to interstate commerce. It dismissed the board's petition for enforcement of the order.

The decision overruled the N L R B argument that it held jurisdiction because the gold was trans-shipped from the San Francisco mint to the Denver mint.

"We regard such shipments not as commercial transactions but as administrative acts of the Government," the court held.

NO FUNDS FOR RAIL SIGNAL SYSTEM ON MUNICIPAL BRIDGE

Baxter L. Brown Suggests Lines Advance Cost, to Be Repaid Out of Tolls.

Funds are not now available for an integrated signal system for railroad traffic on the Municipal Bridge, Baxter L. Brown, president of the Board of Public Service said today. Cost of such a system has been estimated at $250,000.

There has been some preliminary discussion looking toward use of the bridge by several eastern railroads. Brown suggested that the railroads might advance money for the system, to be repaid out of tolls charged them for use of the bridge.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad obtained authority Monday to use the bridge at certain times, chiefly in winter, thus becoming first member of the Terminal Railroad Association group to avail itself of the bridge.

BUILDING STRIKERS ON MUNICIPAL JOBS PICKET CITY HALL

"Dickmann Unfair" Signs Carried by 35 Members of Laborers and Hoisting Engineers' Locals.

Picketing of the City Hall began today in the strike of building mechanics on city jobs, called last Wednesday in support of demands for increased wages and other concessions.

It was the first time the City Hall had been picketed in a labor dispute, picketing having been confined on all other occasions to particular city jobs.

About 35 union workmen walked around the building carrying umbrellas and signs reading "Dickmann Unfair to Building Laborers' Union, Local No. 42." "Dickmann Unfair to Local No. 53," and "Dickmann Unfair to Hoisting Engineers' Union, Local No. 513." The unions are members of the Building Trades Council, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The pickets departed at 2 p. m., stating they would be back tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Bathtub on Truck.

Circling the City Hall block was a truck carrying a sign reading, "Our Honorable Mayor Dickmann Can Spend Approximately $30,000 for Office and Bath Room But Refuses to Pay Labor the Prevailing Scale." On the truck was a bathtub on which was painted in red letters, "Barney's $30,000 Tub." The signs referred to installation, more than a year ago, of a bathroom in connection with the Mayor's office in the City Hall.

President George Jerrold of the Building Trades Council told reporters the decision to picket City Hall had been reached because it was felt that Mayor Dickmann was responsible for the conditions which caused continuation of the strike. He expressed the view that the Board of Aldermen, which adjourned recently until next September, would have remained in session, at the Mayor's request, to consider legislation to meet the unions' wage demands.

Jerrold said 25 W P A laborers and cement finishers employed in repairing sidewalks around the City Hall would be called off work tomorrow. Six W P A plumbers would be called off repair work at City Hall at once, he said.

Administration's Position.

After a conference between Mayor Dickmann and city departmental heads, Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt issued a statement in which he said the city could not very well put new wage scales in the present standardization bill, as the Board of Estimate had received no concrete evidence that the union demands were for wage scales prevailing at the beginning of the city's fiscal year.

At the beginning of the current fiscal year, he added, hoisting engineers in the Streets Department, who had been receiving $1.47 an hour before advent of the Dickmann administration, received an increase to $1.75 an hour. Considering additional work provided, they had been averaging $168 every two weeks recently as against an average of $105 formerly, he said. Roller men belonging to the same union also have received an increase and more work, he said.

About 114 union Water Department laborers and 26 employes of the Streets and Sewers Department returned to work yesterday, reducing the number of men still on strike to approximately 325, the majority of them skilled men who were employed on three city construction jobs. Jerrold said the laborers had returned without permission of their leaders and would be dropped from the union ranks. The Streets Department men returned for emergency work and had no thought of abandoning the strike, he said.

63,000 ACRES BURNED OVER OR AFIRE IN NORTHWEST WOODS

Flames Attack Resort Buildings on Vancouver Island; Incendiarism Reported.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—Forest fire ate into a Canadian resort settlement and roared across new Pacific Northwest timberlands yesterday despite the efforts of 6000 fire fighters.

The 10,000-acre Campbell Lake conflagration on Vancouver Island encircled Forbes Landing and then attacked buildings of the village, in the heart of the island's hunting, fishing and logging area. The 30 residents remaining there and a small band of fighters were evacuated by automobile over a logging road after the main highway was engulfed. No loss of life was reported.

From British Columbia to Oregon, and from the Pacific coast line to Western Montana an estimated 600 fires were burning, some of them out of control. The burned and burning area totaled about 63,000 acres.

Widespread incendiarism was reported to forest authorities. From almost every Western Washington county, said T. S. Goodyear, State forest supervisor, came complaints of man-made, intentional fires. Goodyear said those who started the fires probably hoped to be hired as fire fighters.

EXECUTIVE SAYS GOVERNMENT WILL OWN TRANSPORTATION

Roger Lapham Declares Socialization of All Systems Is Coming.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., July 20.—Government control or ownership of the nation's transportation systems, including steamships, railroads, airways, busses and even trucks, was forecast to the Stanford University business conference yesterday by Roger Lapham, maritime shipping executive.

Lapham, chairman of the board of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., advised men with money in the shipping business to "sell out now."

"As business men," he said, "we have seen ourselves going down stream toward a socialized state for many months. Personally, I believe the reaction (to the socialized trend) is desirable even if you want a socialized state, because we have moved in this direction

CANDIDATE MARBURY TALKS TO 24TH WARD DEMOCRATS

Says Indifference in Choice of Legislators Deprives City of Its Share of Funds.

The failure of St. Louis to receive a proportionate share of State appropriations is the result of the indifference of the voters in selecting representatives in the Legislature, William G. Marbury, candidate for the Democratic nomination as Representative from the First District, said last night in an address before the Twenty-fourth Ward Democratic organization.

"If you will keep this one thought in mind, that it is in this branch of the Government that the relationships of government to you are determined, you will realize that it is to your benefit to exercise your best judgment in selecting your representatives," he said.

"If you don't take an interest in this choice, then your complaint as to the laws under which you have to live should be disregarded."

MAN FOUND DEAD BESIDE HIS AUTO ON EAST SIDE

Rudolph Pearse's Head Near Exhaust Pipe, Ignition on and Gasoline Tank Empty.

Rudolph Pearse, East St. Louis bookkeeper, was found dead yesterday afternoon beside his automobile on a little-used dirt road between the National Stockyards, where he was employed, and Eagle Park. He had been dead for several days.

The body was on the ground at the rear of the machine, the head close to the exhaust pipe. The ignition switch of the car was turned on and the gasoline tank was empty. Police did not observe any device which might have carried the exhaust fumes from the pipe to the man's mouth or nose.

Pearse, 27 years old, had been ill several days last week, but had recovered sufficiently to return to work. He resided with his mother, Mrs. Antoinette Pearse, at 1406 Natalie avenue.

INDICTED LEGISLATOR ENDS LIFE IN NEW YORK

State Senator Julius S. Berg Accused of Taking Money for Favors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—State Senator Julius S. Berg, Bronx Democrat, shot and killed himself in his office today a short time before District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office announced he had been indicted on charges of receiving money for his aid in obtaining liquor licenses and arranging for concessions at the World's Fair.

The indictment, secretly returned against Berg, contained 17 counts. Dewey did not disclose the amount of money Berg was accused of receiving.

Berg fired a bullet into his right temple after a quarrel with his wife, who had urged him "to tell everything."

He ate breakfast, then shot himself when his wife stepped out of the room for a moment. Berg lay slumped across his desk when she ran in.

Police said Mrs. Berg stumbled out of the room, crying to the office telephone operator: "I thought you told me that he didn't have a revolver."

"I looked through the desk yesterday and couldn't find one," the operator was quoted as saying.

Police found a note, addressed to the press, asking that Berg be dealt with gently, and saying "I have been very sick for the past two years." They also found an autobiography of Berg, who was 43 years old, a veteran of the World War and a State Senator since 1930.

From an employe of the building detectives said they learned that Berg and a woman, presumably Mrs. Berg, entered Berg's office at 5 a. m. today. The employe told the police he heard loud voices, and heard the woman urging Berg "to tell everything."

Berg, the employe said, replied, "I can't."

Berg was a member of the executive committee of the Boy Scouts of America, and was a founder and former commander-in-chief of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States. He married Miss Rose Schram in 1920. They were the parents of two children.

CLAYTON GETS STADIUM LAND

City of Ladue Votes to Transfer 16-Acre Tract.

Land on which the Clayton School Stadium is constructed will be placed in the city limits of Clayton as the result of a vote yesterday by which the city of Ladue agreed to transfer corporate control of 16 acres of the land to Clayton.

The stadium was built originally on land owned by the Clayton School Board, but which was situated within the city limits of Clayton, University City and Ladue. Last April Clayton voted to annex the land and University City agreed to transfer corporate control of its two acres to Clayton. Ladue voted likewise, but an error in the vote made necessary a new election.

JUDGE ANDERSON SAYS JUDGE RUDDY IGNORED THE LAW

Candidate for Circuit Bench Declares Police Court Opponent Fined Offender Under Minimum.

In another hard-hitting campaign speech last night, Circuit Judge Thomas L. Anderson, seeking a Democratic nomination for an unexpired term on the circuit bench, assailed the record of his opponent, Police Judge Edward M. Ruddy, charging specifically that Judge Ruddy last Friday fined a defendant only $5 for carrying a concealed weapon, although the minimum fine under the ordinance is $10.

He continued his attack on Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic City Committee, and another attorney prominent in the campaign, James A. Waechter, terming them political bosses and declaring that as a free city, St. Louis could not be "Hanneganized" or "Waechterized."

Calls Them Political Houdinis.

"These political Houdinis haven't the vision of a porcupine," he declared, referring to the two attorneys, "or they would not dare announce their slate, their Circuit Judges, as if they were bugling to a lot of slaves.

"Napoleon exclaimed, 'Let there be no more Jacobins, no more Royalists, no more Moderators—let all be Frenchmen.' Does Napoleon Hannegan ever say, 'Let all be Democrats'? Oh, no. He says, in effect: 'I am the State, I am the city. I shall have my Circuit Judges.'"

His audience, 150 members and guests of the Second Ward Jeffersonian Democratic Club, meeting at Penrose and Pleasant streets, applauded repeatedly and laughed when he referred to Hannegan and Waechter as political Houdinis.

Judge Anderson restated that Hannegan should be recalled from his place as committeeman from the Twenty-first Ward.

Last week he denounced Hannegan's indorsement of Judge Ruddy as against all precedent and declared the attorney should be told by the State Democratic Committee to give up his city chairmanship. He referred to Hannegan and Waechter as "Napoleons."

He denounced Judge Ruddy last night for not giving up his position as Police Judge when he filed for Circuit Judge, asserting that such a failure to give up office was "making a springboard of an office to jump to the circuit bench."

Judge Anderson related that an inspection of his opponent's Police Court docket showed that during the first 13 days of July a total of 710 cases were dismissed or continued generally.

"I wonder," he speculated, "who it was in some deep-sea political conference that figures this would make votes for a candidate for the circuit bench?"

Address in Part.

The remainder of Judge Anderson's address was, in part, as follows:

"My opponent, Police Judge Ruddy, has the blessing of Mr. Hannegan and Mr. Waechter, and will have their hearty support. In addition, Judge Ruddy clings to his office as Police Judge, although under no other Democratic regime has a Police Judge done so. The late George Vest, a Police Judge, resigned when he ran for Congress. In this contest, Robert Y. Woodward, James E. McLaughlin, Assistant Circuit Attorneys, and David W. FitzGibbon, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, all relinquished their offices when they filed for the nomination as Circuit Judge. They did not want to make a spring-board out of their offices to jump to the circuit bench.

Hannegan Associate in Court.

"On July 15, I visited Judge Ruddy's court. I noticed with interest Mr. Rosenberg, out of Mr. Hannegan's office, busily engaged representing a defendant. I noticed a defendant charged with carrying concealed weapons fined $5. The penalty under the State statutes is from $100 to $1000, or two years in the penitentiary.

"Why this case should be in a Police Court instead of a criminal court, where it belongs, is one of the mysteries that lies buried in the swamp of legal legerdemain. The case I refer to is No. 159. The defendant's name is Elmer Dauster. Think of it! The minimum fine under the ordinance is $10, the maximum fine under the ordinance is $500. This is ordinance No. 1482.

"Can the citizenry of St. Louis expect much protection from men with concealed weapons, if a Police Judge fines them less than the ordinance requires? That is a violation of the Charter; it is a violation of the ordinance, it is a violation of the oath of office of the Judge that does that thing. This man Dauster was guilty. The Court found him guilty, and yet Police Judge Ruddy failed to assess even the minimum penalty provided by the ordinance in such case made and provided.

"Judge Ruddy's Police Court docket greatly interested me. For the first 13 days of July, 710 defendants were discharged without penalty. How the cockles of the hearts of these defendants must have warmed towards Police Judge Ruddy, my opponent, when they heard Judge Ruddy breathe the magic words 'Discharged,' 'Dismissed for lack of evidence,' 'Dismissed for want of prosecution,' 'Continued generally.'

"I wonder who it was in some deep sea political conference, figured that this would make votes for a candidate for the Circuit bench. I was amazed at this time to find that the front doors of the Police Court were locked, and then Judge Ruddy delivered a lecture to about 250 'ill-fed, ill-clad, ill-housed' unfortunates, on the dangers of driving fast automobiles. I looked at the audience. But few of them had ever been in an automobile except the patrol wagon.

Hannegan "Will Have Hard Time."

"Mr. Hannegan will have a hard time marshalling the City Hall forces under his lash for his own particular pet Circuit Judge candidates. I wonder what real regard he has as to merit, service, ability and experience. The voters of this city and especially the men and women composing that part of the Democratic organization that 'hew the wood and draw the water,' who have contributed to the campaign funds thousands and thousands of dollars out of their salaries, will not be led like nit-wits, nor driven like slaves to the polls, and vote blindly the sample ballot handed them by his organization. The city charter provides in Article 3:

"'Any elective officer may be recalled by the voters of the city, or if he shall have been elected by the voters of a ward or district, then by the voters of such ward or district.'

"Section 2 of the City Charter provides . . . that only 20 per cent of the voters of a ward need sign a petition. Chairman Hannegan is a duly elected officer. I favor his recall."

Statement by Judge Ruddy.

Judge Ruddy said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had made a check of the concealed weapon case when it was called to his attention yesterday and had found he had fined the defendant $5 less than the minimum provided by ordinance.

Explaining, he said he had imposed the $5 fine on the basis of minimum and maximum figures as carried on the printed information setting out the charge. He added that the defendant, who was not known to him, was without previous police record and had stated that he had found the weapon, a blackjack, and placed it in his car.

Commenting on the remainder of Judge Anderson's address as it concerned him, he said his record on the bench was sufficient answer. He added that there had been no change in his policy of disposing of cases and that it was not unusual for as many as 700 to be dismissed or continued generally within 13 days. In traffic cases where no death or injury was involved and the parties did not prosecute, he said, it was a practice of long-standing to order general continuances to enable the City Counselor's office to reopen them if desired.

Their Separation Announced

JOAN CRAWFORD PARTS FROM FRANCHOT TONE

Joint Statement Says They Are Separating on Most Friendly Terms.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 20.—Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, movie stars, issued a joint statement last night saying they had separated, that Tone was moving to separate quarters, but they were parting the best of friends.

They said the matter of divorce had not been discussed at length and there would be no special hurry on this.

Their parting has been rumored in Hollywood for many months. They were married nearly three years ago. They met on a film set while the picture "Today We Live" was being made.

Miss Crawford's marriage to Tone, a former student of Cornell University, was her second. Her first husband was Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Tone had not been married before.

Miss Crawford and Tone were married at Englewood Cliffs, N. J., in October, 1935. The ceremony was secret and not until several days later did they disclose they were wed. Miss Crawford divorced Fairbanks in May, 1933.

Friends of the pair who asked to remain unidentified said her ambition to become an opera singer, her growing success as a movie personage, and the fact Tone never was able to achieve screen success approaching that of his wife, led to an ever-widening breach between them.

The board held the association was company-dominated in violation of the Wagner Labor Act.

PALESTINE-U. S. EMIGRATION

More Jews Leaving Holy Land Than Arrive From This Country.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The tide of American Jewish emigration to Palestine is ebbing back to the United States.

Consular reports showed today that in the last 12 months more Jews left Palestine to return to the United States than arrived from this country.

Officials give two reasons for the change in direction. One is the unsettled state of Palestine, the other better economic conditions in the United States. Consular reports give the number of American Jews resident in Palestine at 9500, compared with 10,000 last year. Figures at the State Department show that 1826 American Jews went to Palestine in 1936 and only 357 went in 1936.

FEWER CONTESTS THAN USUAL IN CITY PRIMARIES

Races for Only 48 of 66 Democratic Nominations, and for 30 of 64 on Republican Ticket.

There will be an unusually small number of contests for Democratic and Republican nominations in the primary of Aug. 2, as a result of withdrawal of some candidates in a period which expired last night and failure of expected opposition in other instances.

Contrary to the ordinary experience of the party in power, the Democrats have contests for only of 48 of the 66 offices on which St. Louisans will vote. Seventeen Democratic incumbents will be renominated without opposition and there is one other unopposed Democrat.

Thirty-four Republicans will be nominated without opposition and there are only 30 Republican contests. Due to technical defects in filing candidacies, there are no Republican candidates on the ballot for two places as State Senators, but Republican City Committee members will fill these vacancies after the primary. The ballots will have names of 153 Democrats and 91 Republicans.

Interest in Democratic Races.

Politicians generally expect that many Republicans will cast Democratic ballots in the primary, attracted by the campaigns in support of James M. Douglas for Supreme Judge, H. Sam Priest for Circuit Clerk and, in some instances, Bennett C. Clark for United States Senator.

Some St. Louis Republicans in the South Side and West End also may call for Democratic ballots because of interest in the race for Twelfth District Congressman, in which C. Arthur Anderson and A. J. Pickett are the outstanding candidates. An additional source of interest in the Democratic ticket is the effort of such leaders of Mayor Dickmann's political forces as Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and James A. Waechter to nominate their candidates for Circuit Judges.

Principal Democratic officeholders without opposition for renomination are: Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley, Collector William F. Baumann, Recorder of Deeds John P. English, Clerk Lawrence J. Kickham of Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Prosecuting Attorney James P. Finnegan, Judge James W. Griffin of Court of Criminal Correction, Congressman John J. Cochran and State Superintendent of Schools Lloyd W. King. Others unopposed are six candidates for Justice of the Peace jobs and four for Constables' places.

There are no Republican contests for the following offices: Three places as Circuit Judges, unexpired terms; Probate Judge, Judge of Court of Criminal Correction, Prosecuting Attorney, Recorder of Deeds, Collector, Clerk of Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Clerk of Court of Criminal Correction, Congressman, Thirteenth District; State Senator, Thirtieth District; 11 of the 19 places as State Representatives, State Superintendent of Schools, Supreme Judge, full term; four places as Justices of the Peace and five places as Constables.

Withdrawal yesterday of Frank E. Mathews, former Associate Prosecuting Attorney, left Judge Oakley with no contest. Clerk Kickham gained the same position when his opponent, Thomas Ballowe, 4225 Washington boulevard, quit. A third major development of the day was the retirement of Collector Baumann's opponents, Alderman Nick Reidy and District Assessor William J. Klosterman.

William J. Geekie, Democrat, a city building inspector, withdrew for clerk of Court of Criminal Correction, leaving Alderman Hubert A. Hoeflinger as the only opponent of the incumbent, John Connolly. Thomas J. Hollingsworth, Democrat, 1435 North Seventh street, quitting the race for License Collector, left Fred A. Renick, incumbent, opposed only by Alderman Charles Routledge.

Jones H. Parker, 5761 Cote Brilliante avenue, former speaker of the House, withdrew for State Representative, Fifth District, leaving no Republican contest in that field. Maurice J. Gordon, 3625 Grandel square, Republican, withdrew for Fifth District Justice of the Peace in favor of Samuel J. Lane.

Other Democratic withdrawals yesterday were: Eugene J. Boehm, 3115 Meramec street, State Representative, First District; Nicholas Blassie, 3321A Osage street, Justice of the Peace, First; George H. Brooks, 11 North Jefferson, Justice of the Peace, Fourth; John Jack Ryan, 4511 Washington boulevard, Justice of the Peace, Ninth; Hyman Mable, 1525 Franklin avenue, Constable, Fifth; James J. Turnure, 3869 Garfield avenue, Constable, Eighth.

JUDGE DOUGLAS' NOMINATION URGED BY WILLIAM L. IGOE

Ex-Head of Police Board Praises Candidate's Record in 22d Ward Speech.

William L. Igoe, former president of the Board of Police Commissioners, said last night at a meeting of the Democratic Club of the Twenty-second Ward, at Marcus and St. Louis avenues, that the record of Judge James M. Douglas entitles him to the Democratic nomination for Judge of the State Supreme Court.

The career of Judge Douglas as a member of the bar and as a judge of the Circuit and Supreme courts has been marked by fariness, impartiality and courtesy, Igoe said. He added that Judge Douglas was a student of law and that he had an important part in the establishment of the new central jury system in the St. Louis Circuit Court.

The club indorsed Judge Douglas, United States Senator Bennett C. Clark and Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest.

HORSE HITLER BECOMES HEDJAZ

German Consul at Manila Objected to First Name.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, July 20.—The Government-owned stock farm has changed the name of one of its horses because the German Consul here takes an interest in such matters. The horse, among a number advertised for sale, was named "Hitler."

The Consul called on Dr. Vicente Ferriols, of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Dr. Ferriols wrote to the stock farm director: "The Office of the German Consul has complained regarding the name of one of our stud colts, Hitler. For this reason you are hereby directed to change its name." The colt was renamed Hedjaz.

REPUBLIC STEEL UNDERCOVER MEN TELL OF SPYING

Senate Committee Hears Company Policeman Sat in With Committee Planning Canton (O.) Strike.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—How labor conflicts, like civil wars, may divide families was exemplified this morning when half-brothers appeared as witnesses on opposite sides at the Senate Civil Liberties Committee's investigation of a strike during May, 1935, at the plant of the Berger Manufacturing Co., Canton, O., a subsidiary of the Republic Steel Corporation.

One was Kenneth J. Sodders, a company policeman for Republic Steel, who managed to become publicity agent of a union at another of its subsidiaries in Canton, the Stark Rolling Mills, which was in sympathy with the strike, who also attended meetings of the general strike committee, and who reported all that he learned in both instances to officers of Republic's private police force.

The other was Keith T. Hamman, member of a union of bus operators in Canton, who testified that his half-brother showed him a roll of bills that was "plenty large," and asked him to supply the names and addresses of all the members of his local, together with their attitude towards the strike and the names of those participating as pickets. Hamman said his indignant reply was, "Nothing doing!"

"Keep Your Eyes Open."

The story began in March, 1935, when Sodders, who had operated a garage, was sent by a deputy sheriff in Youngstown to see James Williams, superintendent of Republic Steel's police force. Williams gave him a job, and late in May ordered him to report in Canton. Williams met him there, said there would probably be a strike, and instructed him, in the subordinate's words, "to hang around and keep his eyes and ears open."

Sodders asked to be provided with a pay check for one day's work at the Stark Rolling Mills, and received it from the paymaster.

The tale was taken up at this point by Lester P. Rice, president of the Steel Workers' Union at the Berger plant. He was accosted on the morning of the strike, he said, by a stranger who turned out to be Sodders. The latter wanted to know if the union was hiring any pickets.

Rice said he asked who the questioner was, and then Sodders replied he was a chauffeur from Youngstown, that he had worked the preceding Friday at the Stark plant, and that on Saturday morning the foreman had given him a check for $5.85 and fired him, saying, "You're nothing but a damned radical."

Attended Committee Meetings.

Sodders exhibited the check, according to Rice, and also an automobile, in which he offered to drive the strikers about. In addition, he flourished a bankroll, and entertained Rice and his companions with meals and drinks. Much impressed, Rice took his new friend to meetings of the strike committee, where he heard the plans of campaign.

"And all the time," remarked the union official ruefully, "he was a stool pigeon for the Republic Steel Corporation."

Sodders replied that he took pity on the strikers because they "looked hungry," and added that "they tried to shake me down for everything I had."

Under examination by Senator La Follette, chairman of the committee, Sodders admitted that he used "for purposes of identification" a pay check from a company for which he had not worked since 1924, and that it was obtained for him either by Williams or by Joseph H. Gilroy, captain of the company police at the Berger factory.

His Aid Made Union President.

On arriving at Canton, the witness proceeded, he met an old friend, Edward C. Ray, a worker at the Stark Rolling Mills, hired him as an aid at $12 a day and gave him $250 or $300 as expense money. Ray soon afterwards was elected president of a union hastily formed at the Stark plant for the purpose of aiding the Berger strike. At the same time, Sodders was elected publicity agent.

Ray also attended meetings of the strike committee. The latter's testimony included the following passages:

"Did you know the purpose of the new Stark Mills union?"

"They wanted to go along with the strikers."

"Were you in favor of the strike?"

"No, sir."

"How did you square this with your conscience?"

"I never let my conscience bother me."

"Did the financial arrangements you had made with Mr. Sodders have anything to do with putting your conscience to sleep?"

"Such things often help."

Flares Up at Half-Brother.

Sodders, a heavy-set, blond man, lost his temper only when referring to Hamman's testimony.

"That man," he exclaimed, "said he did not know me until the strike. He is my half-brother. He came to me in rags out of the army in the war. I gave him money. I've given him money ever since.

"He testified that I showed him a huge bankroll. I never had more than $150 at one time in my life. I did ask him to get me the names of members of his union who were serving as pickets. That was because we thought the picket that knocked down Vice-President Charles M. White of Republic Steel was a bus driver."

Capt. Gilroy testified that during the strike period he paid $2500 to Sodders or Ray, or both. One item on the company's payroll at the time showed a payment of $588.03 to Kenneth and Gertrude Sodders, his wife. Sodders testified that his wife told him "things she heard around town," and in particular from Mrs. Rice, whose acquaintance she had made.

The private policeman further related one transaction in which he paid $25 to "an underworld character" to run down a rumor that a car laden with dynamite for the strikers was on the way from Detroit. It turned out that the car contained a crew of gangsters who had been run out of Michigan.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—A seven-pound boy was born at the ...nsylvania Hospital yesterday to ...s. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., ...fe of the President's third son. D. ROOSEVELT JR. FATHER OF 7-LB. BOY other, Former Ethel du Pont, and Baby 'Doing Fine,' Says President's Son.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—A seven-pound boy was born at the Pennsylvania Hospital yesterday to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., wife of the President's third son. The father personally announced to reporters that both mother and child were "fine." He and his wife, the former Ethel du Pont, had not decided on a name for their first-born, the President's fifth grandchild, he added.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her husband motored to the hospital Monday from her parents' home, Owls' Nest, near Wilmington, Del.

The baby was born at 4 p. m., not long after the President's son returned from a movie. Half an hour later young Roosevelt walked into the lobby of the hospital's maternity department.

"Well, fellows . . ." he began to reporters. "It's a boy, and weighs a little over seven pounds. To my prejudiced eye, it looks like a very beautiful baby."

Young Roosevelt then stepped outside to pose for photographers. The President's son said his father, cruising on a warship in the Pacific, probably would get the news by naval radio.

Near at hand when the baby arrived, in addition to the father, were these relatives: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont, the mother's parents, and her sister, Mrs. Walter P. Wickes Jr., the former Aimee du Pont.

Franklin Roosevelt Jr., and Ethel du Pont were married at Owl's Nest, the du Pont estate.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Roosevelt did not have a special nurse and that her accommodations were the usual ones at the usual rate. Other du Pont babies have been born there.

When Mrs. Roosevelt is allowed to leave the hospital she probably will return to her parents' home. In the fall the pair will reoccupy their house near Charlottesville, Va. Young Roosevelt is a law student at the University of Virginia.

Picket Hustled From Chicago Plant

200 GO TO WORK, UNHINDERED BY NORTH CHICAGO PICKETS

Employes of Hardware Foundry Enter Plant as C I O Strikers Stand by.

By the Associated Press.

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill., July 20.—More than 200 employes of the Chicago Hardware Foundry Co. entered the plant today to resume work, unhindered by C I O pickets who were routed yesterday by tear gas. Executives of the company said this was almost half the number of persons regularly employed.

Strikers stood near the plant gates and watched the workers enter, but made no effort to stop them. One picket, Stanley Morun, who was arrested yesterday, refused to move back 100 feet from the gates when ordered to by a deputy sheriff and again was taken into custody.

The pickets were leaderless today because their chiefs were directed to appear in Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady's Court at nearby Waukegan for sentence or the posting of appeal bonds on their conviction of contempt of court for violating an anti-picketing injunction.

MINING ENGINEER DIES OF THIRST IN DESERT

Los Angeles Man Perishes on Mojave Sands While Companion Seeks Aid.

By the Associated Press.

DEATH VALLEY, Cal., July 20.—Dead from thirst, the body of Herman E. Van Thijn, 38 years old, Los Angeles mining engineer, was found on the hot sands of the Mojave Desert yesterday.

Van Thijn and his companion, Robert L. Wicks of Los Angeles, left their homes Sunday night for Owl Hole Springs, near Shoshone, Barstow they took a little-used road. Barstow they too ka little-used road. Deep in the desert, their automobile stalled.

The two wrote a note: "We are stalled, nearly out of water, can't find Owl Hole Springs," and pinned it to the steering wheel. They started out afoot in search of water. Late Monday, Van Thijn collapsed. Wicks carried him to scant shelter under a clump of greasewood.

Wicks divided their water and left two cans of tomatoes for his companion as he started out across the desert in search of help. Van Thijn promised to remain under the bush.

Wicks reached Cave Springs, near Death Valley, where he met Mrs. I. B. Sweetman and her son, Adrian Egbert, sole inhabitants. They started a hunt for Van Thijn. Wicks located the spot where he left his companion, but Van Thijn was gone.

Egbert drove to Barstow, where a posse was organized. Yesterday the group found the engineer, face down, about 300 yards away from the greasewood patch where Wicks had left him. Van Thijn, in delirium, had clawed a deep hole in the sand as if digging for water.

Coroner R. E. Williams said he understood Van Thijn's wife, a singer, and her daughter, were touring Europe.

LITTLE CHANCE OF MISSISSIPPI, OHIO AND MISSOURI FLOODS

Union of Separate Torrents Said by Weather Bureau to Be "Practically Impossible."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Weather Bureau assured Mississippi Valley residents yesterday they had little cause to fear simultaneous floods of the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers.

The bureau said a union of separate floods was "practically impossible" because of varying rainfall conditions in the basins of the three rivers.

It asserted that the Ohio River flood in 1937 resulted from a series of atmospheric wave disturbances which caused rainfall in the Ohio Valley only.

The Upper Mississippi and Missouri basins got little rainfall because of freedom from the rain-making processes concentrated in the Ohio Valley.

The bureau said, however, it was "entirely possible" to have heavy rainfall and floods stages in all three of the upper tributaries but not excessive floods at the same time.

The bureau said it could not be as reassuring about the Red and Arkansas rivers. It recalled that in 1922 and 1927 the Ohio torrent was joined by deluges from the Red and Arkansas.

Textile Workers Favor Pickett.

Local 193 of the Textile Workers' Organization Committee of Valley Park at a meeting last night indorsed A. J. Pickett for the Democratic nomination for Congress for the Twelfth District.

LOYALISTS HOLD BACK REBELS ON VALENCIA ROAD

Resistance Stiffens in Hastily Prepared Defenses and Insurgents Wait for Flanks to Catch Up.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, July 20.—The Government's U-shaped line of hasty defenses across the Teruel-Valencia highway slowed the Spanish insurgents' six-day offensive today.

Dispatches from Generalissimo Franco's headquarters admitted Government resistance suddenly had stiffened as the militiamen's retreat took them to a new defense line.

Insurgents were forced hastily to reorganize their lines. Orders were given for an extraordinary effort on the part of the two flanks, on either side of the highway, to catch up with the center.

The new Government line to defend Valencia against the insurgent drive runs south from Pina, curving slowly across the highway to the crest of Ragudo Hill, then turns northwest through El Toro Mountains.

Insurgents reported they held the village of Ragudo itself, nestling at the foot of the hill five miles from Viver, the first of three cities Franco must take before he reaches Valencia, 34 miles away. The other major objectives are Segorbe and Sagunto, protected by defenses similar to those centering about Ragudo.

In Valencia, Gen. Jose Miaja called civil, military and political officials into a conference to plan the defense of the seaport metropolis. The authorities decided to halt immediately all work which was not directly connected with the war. All available men were drafted and all available supplies requisitioned "to co-ordinate necessary measures for fortification of Valencia."

MOTHERS - IN - LAW ENJOINED

Chicago Court's Two Orders Reconcile Man and Wife.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Circuit Judge Phillip J. Finnegan reconciled a man and wife in court yesterday by issuing injunctions against both mothers-in-law, restraining them from interfering with their children's married life.

When Mrs. Irene Wach came in court to ask for temporary alimony in connection with her suit for separate maintenance, her husband, Leo, said: "Judge, I love my wife and would like to go back to her if her mother would leave us alone." Mrs. Wach said, "I'd love to be back with him if his mother will quit interfering with our home." The Judge said, "I'll issue two injunctions, one against each mother-in-law, forbidding each from harassing you people." The man and wife left the courtroom smiling.

JAPANESE DRIVE UP YANGTZE DRAGS IN 100-DEGREE HEAT

Chinese Return Shell for Shell, Preventing Invaders From Getting Into Kiukiang.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 20.—Chinese resistance stiffened along a narrow fighting zone bordering the Yangtze River today as temperatures soared beyond 100 degrees.

Sweating Japanese troops tried in vain to keep going their big push up the stream toward Hankow and to blast their way into Kiukiang, 135 miles below the temporary capital, but the defenders returned shell for shell.

Chinese newspapers reported the organization of a new fourth route army under the leadership of Hsiang Ying, one time Communist chieftain, was almost completed.

The new army was said to be designed for large-scale guerrilla activities in the Shanghai area, particularly against railroads and Japanese communication lines.

Chinese papers also reported that the Japanese ordered the Japanese-dominated Government of Shanghai to recruit 100,000 men for a "peace maintenance corps" following repeated terrorist acts against Japanese.

Odlum's Atlas Corporation Makes Tactical Retreat in Fight For Utilities Power & Light

Investment Trust Gets New Plan Ready for Major Battle With Associated Gas—Hearing Before SEC.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—While maintaining a vigorous drumfire to cover his retreat from the old front, it became apparent this morning, with the resumption of hearings before the Securities and Exchange Commission into the affairs of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, that Floyd B. Odlum has shifted his attack to a new center.

Skirmishing will continue along the present sector, but the financier's major thrust is now set for Aug. 8. On that date the S E C is to begin an examination of his latest plan for reorganizing the company, in which he not only is the largest creditor, but possesses a lien upon a controlling interest of its voting stock. The Utilities Corporation is the holding company, among many others, of three Missouri enterprises—the Laclede Gas Light Co. and the Laclede Power & Light Co. of St. Louis and the Missouri Natural Gas Co.

What began as a study into the best way of rehabilitating the capital structure of Utilities Power & Light has resolved itself into a battle royal for $19,000,000 between two huge companies. The first is Odlum's $114,000,000 investment trust, the Atlas Corporation. The other is a giant holding company, the Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, which is engaged in the operation of public utilities. It has 400,000 stockholders and controls between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 of Utilities Power & Light Corporation securities, through the holdings of two subsidiaries, the Associated Investing Corporation and the Associated Utilities Corporation.

Protective Committee Allied.

In alliance with this group is a general protective committee representing 60,000 holders of securities in Utilities Power & Light, or 40 per cent of all investors in the company. The Atlas Corporation is principally an owner of debentures. Its opponents are predominantly holders of preferred and common stock.

As a morsel irresistibly alluring to the financial palate, there repose $19,000,000 of idle cash, part of the proceeds of a sale of their British interests, in the treasuries of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Utilities Power & Light, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada.

The current hearings are on an application by Charles True Adams, reorganization trustee of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, for authority to spend $12,000,000 of this sum in retiring the company's own debentures. He argued that, through such a lessening of debt, the corporation would be restored to solvency and escape liquidation.

What Opposition Says.

But Odlum's antagonists, who were permitted to intervene, pointed out that, under the Adams plan, $7,000,000 would logically go to the Atlas Corporation, which owns some $28,000,000 in face value of U. P. & L.'s two issues of debtutures, totaling $48,000,000. It was shown that these securities stand at about $52 on the market, that Adlum bought some of his holdings at $23, and that he paid an average of only $56. Adams urged that the rate for redeeming the bonds be set at $70, a spread over Odlum's purchase price amounting in some cases to $47, and averaging $14 per debenture on his entire interest. It was also maintained that the Adams plan would benefit only bond owners, and leave holders of junior securities bare to the wintry blast.

Odlum, according to observers of the proceedings, probably decided for two reasons that his strategy on this terrain was untenable. In the first place, it gave rise to criticism of Trustee Adams; and Adams is generally regarded as the S E C's man. Abe Fortas, one of the leading S E C attorneys, recently stated in a public address that this establishment, for the first time in bankruptcy actions, had succeeded in compelling the appointment of an "independent" trustee when Utilities Power & Light fell into the hands of the Federal Courts for reorganization. Gossip has it that Adams got the job through a recommendation from Secretary of the Interior Ickes, under whom the former once worked five months as an attorney for the Public Works Administration.

Secondly, counsel for the intervenors adduced the point of law that it is illegal to distribute any of the assets of a debtor corporation except according to a plan of reorganization authorized by the courts. This was a counter-assault difficult to parry.

Decision of Atlas Meeting.

So it happened, according to reports about the hearing room, that a week ago the directors of the Atlas Corporation held a meeting in Jersey City, and voted to submit to the S E C a reorganization plan for the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, as a substitute for an amended plan proposed by Atlas on Oct. 26, 1937. This last plan reached the S E C offices on Friday, it seems, but was not made public until late Monday afternoon.

An analysis of its provisions shows that under different forms it would confer on Odlum most of the advantages accruing from the Adams petition, and at the same time would free Adams from any implication of "playing Odlum's game," as has been charged by the latter's opponents.

After claims antedating the outstanding debentures are paid, it is arranged that debenture owners, of whom Odlum is the largest, would receive cash pro rata for interest unpaid, and such further cash distributions against the principal "as can properly be made without impairing the working capital of the debtor." Moreover, the bond owners would receive 2,000,000 shares of new common stock, besides new 4½ per cent 10-year debentures approximating 40 per cent of the principal of their present holdings.

Where Stockholders Get Off.

The most entertaining feature of the plan relates to stockholders. Should the corporation's values, as determined by the bankruptcy court, fail to reveal any equity for these unfortunates, they would be permitted to buy 1,000,000 shares of the new common stock. The fresh capital thus supplied "will be used to redeem the new 4½ per cent debentures."

The disclosure of this scheme, which came as a surprise to Associated Gas and Electric's legal staff, filled yesterday's hearing with alarms and excursions. To start with, Commissioner Jerome N. Frank appeared on the bench beside Trial Examiner Richard Townsend, and pressed upon counsel for the intervenors with a harangue of some hours, which appeared to boil down to a request that they would please not ask so many questions.

The worried lawyers, asked to curtail their cross-examination on testimony already in the record, wondered whether they would be instructed virtually to forego that privilege, and in particular whether they would be prevented from cross-examining Trustee Adams. His attorney, Melvin M. Hawley, testified that last May, Adams suggested lending $15,000,000 of the famous $19,000,000 to the Atlas Corporation, discussed the proposal with a "representative" of the S E C and dropped the idea a month later. The opposing lawyers wish to ask Adams who the "representative" was and what he said to the trustee.

Lengthy Protest Presented.

So, during the noon recess, they concocted a lengthy protest which was read to Commissioner Jerome N. Frank when the hearing reconvened. "From the inception of reorganization proceedings affecting this corporation," one paragraph ran, "the Associated Gas & Electric interests and the General Protective Committee have consistently taken the attitude that the large amount of cash in the treasury of the Utilities Power and Light System should be employed in the physical and financial rehabilitation of its operating subsidiaries. We are convinced that only through such a program may the values inherent in the properties be preserved for all security holders, who made their investment in good faith."

After further prolonged discussion, Commissioner Frank announced that a ruling on the question would be delivered later. It was discovered that in the final sentence of the protest a confession was made that detailed cross-examination of testimony by Jay Samuel Hartt, a consulting engineer in the trustee's employment, "will undoubtedly be unnecessary." In view of that admission, it became understood that there could be no ruling after all.

Each Side Claims Victory.

With this march up the hill and down again, the day ended. Each side held itself victorious. Spokesmen for the S E C declared that Frank had asked for few questions and got a promise of what he wanted. Attorneys for the Associated Gas & Electric interests were jubilant in the belief that they had successfully defended their right to cross-examine, and that they would not be prevented from recalling Trustee Adams to the stand.

One sally by Commissioner Frank during the debate caused smiles and laughter. "We do not wish to interfere with due process of the law," said Frank, "but there is such a thing as undue process. If we are to take figures of every bolt in every generator in the Utilities Power & Light System, most of us will be dead before the hearing concludes."

FOUR INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS LINDELL SAFETY POST

Driver Says Another Car Crowded Him Against Standard at Spring Avenue.

Four persons were injured at 12:30 a. m. today when an automobile in which they were riding west on Lindell boulevard crashed against a concrete safety standard in the center of Lindell at the east side of Spring avenue, knocking down the metal lamp post on the standard.

Mrs. Roy C. Kendall, 4354 Taft avenue, wife of the sales manager of the Medart Co., suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and cuts and bruises. Her husband was cut on the face. The driver, Thomas L. Harrington, 5723 Devonshire avenue, was cut on the scalp. His wife was cut and bruised.

Harrington said another automobile passed him on the right, then turned in front of him, causing him to swerve his car to the left against the safety standard.

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR JUDGE BILLINGS

Dwight Brown First Elective Official to Come Out for Court Candidate.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 20.—Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown indorsed Judge James V. Billings' candidacy for the Democratic Supreme Court nomination last night, the first State elective official publicly to do so.

Brown also called for a truce in the bitter party factional warfare in the race, which has found Gov. Lloyd C. Stark and his administration fighting for Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis and the T. J. Pendergast organization in Kansas City seeking to nominate Billings.

"It is my fear that the campaign bids fair to reach a new low in Missouri political history," Brown said in a statement sent to Missouri's rural newspapers.

"When men who should know better malign the Missouri Supreme Court in an effort to foment prejudice, it is time for the people to resent such expressions.

"I regard many of the statements made in the present campaign as being unfortunate, and as a party man, I resent them."

Gov. Stark has raised the issue of "bossism" attempting to control the court in many speeches. Judge Billings' orators have replied with bitter attacks on the executive.

Brown, whose home is in Poplar Bluff, called attention to the fact Judge Billings is his neighbor in Southeast Missouri. The jurist lives at Kennett.

"My advocacy of Judge Billings' candidacy is actuated by my sincere friendship and admiration for him," Brown's statement said.

OUSTED BUSINESS AGENT OF ALTON UNION STABBED

Rasmoth Franklin Seriously Wounded; Member of Organization Held.

Rasmoth Franklin, who was ousted Monday night as business agent of the Alton bartenders' and waiters' union, was stabbed and seriously wounded yesterday on an Alton street corner by a man who, police said, gave his name as George (Gabby) Alston, bartender and member of the union.

Franklin, 32 years old, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he received a blood transfusion. He was stabbed once in the left breast and once in the abdomen. Police found no knife.

Alston, who was held in jail in default of $10,000 bond, was quoted by police as saying he stabbed Franklin in self-defense. Police, however, determined that Franklin had had no weapon. They said they had not learned what the altercation was about.

L, 17, DROWNED WADING IN BIG RIVER

Miss Wilma Stagner, Trying to Learn to Swim, Sinks in Water Beyond Her Depth.

Funeral services for Miss Wilma Stagner, 17-year-old shoe worker, who was drowned Sunday while wading in the Big River near Rockwood Beach, two miles northwest of Williams Springs, will be held tomorrow at Salem, Mo., her home before she came to St. Louis recently.

Three young persons who accompanied her on an outing to the river and authorities she was trying to learn to swim. She stepped beyond her depth and, calling for help, sank beneath the surface before her companions, none of whom was a proficient swimmer, could go to her aid. The current was strong at the point where they were wading.

Miss Stagner, employed by the Williams Shoe Co., resided at 4237 Norfolk avenue with a sister, Mrs. Alice Sheffield. Also surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Stagner, who live in Salem; two other sisters and three brothers.

4-Year-Old Girl Drowned in Mississippi River.

Hallis Mae Hill, 14, of 315 Meredocia avenue, Venice, was drowned in the Mississippi River at the Merchants' Bridge yesterday afternoon.

A neighbor, Mrs. Frank Miller, who accompanied the child to the river when she said she wanted to go swimming, told the police that she urged her not to venture far from the bank when it became apparent she could not swim. "I'm not going back," she quoted the child as saying.

When the girl was about 40 feet from the bank she turned toward Mrs. Miller, who had not entered the water, held her arms above her head and said, "Well, I'm gone." She sank, reappearing once and calling for help. Mrs. Miller said her facial expression and arm gestures were "strange." The body was recovered.

RAILWAY BUILDING ELECTRIC ENGINE WITH STEAM TURBINES

Engineer Describes It as Traveling Power Plant With Refinements of Central Station.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 20.—A newly developed steam turbine electric locomotive was described today before the annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers by C. P. Kahler of Omaha, electrical engineer for the Union Pacific Railroad. The railroad is building the engine.

The locomotive, Kahler said, is really a traveling steam electric generating power plant "with all the refinements of a modern central station. The cab and general appearance of each unit will be very similar to the latest streamline train."

Henry Earle Riggs of An Arbor, Mich., president of the society, opposed unionization of civil engineers.

In his address on the relation of the society to the profession, Riggs said:

"The most annoying problem of the present day is that of unionization. With labor leaders active in the attempt to bring every employe group into some form of union organization, with political and official pressure being brought to bear to compel such affiliation, many young engineers and employes in sub-engineering positions need some professional society or group to turn to for advice and support. The answer is that engineering is a profession and not a trade. The labor union does not solve the engineer's problems."

MAN WHO ABANDONED BABY IS HELD FOR PROSECUTION

Prosecutor Finnegan Says He Will Issue Warrant; Child's Mother Released.

Mrs. Eulis W. Gann, who was arrested Monday night with her husband after their 10-month-old son, Philip, had been left on the steps of St. Ann's Maternity Hospital, was released last night, under no charge. Her husband was held at the request of Prosecuting Attorney James Finnegan, who said he would issue a warrant charging Gann with child-abandonment.

The parents were to have the infant returned today to their home, 5020 Kensington avenue, with the assurance of Catholic charities that he would receive all necessary medical attention.

Gann, who is 22 years old, had told police that his $15 weekly pay as a waiter did not enable him to give Philip needed medical attention. He and his wife decided to take the baby to the hospital in the hope it would receive treatment, he said.

COUNCIL URGES REVAMPING OF ILLINOIS RELIEF SETUP

Revision of Eligibility Rules and Central Intake Office Recommended.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 20.—It was disclosed yesterday the Illinois Council on Public Assistance had recommended a reorganization of Chicago's relief administration in a report submitted to Gov. Horner last Friday.

The council, appointed by the Governor to study relief administration in the State, presented a copy of its report to Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Leo M. Lyons, relief administrator.

It outlined a 10-point program calling for the establishment of a central intake office for relief applicants, a revision of eligibility requirements and reclassification of cases. Among other things, the program urged creation of a special department to initiate prosecution of persons who refuse to support pauper-relatives for whose care they are legally responsible.

O'CONNELL CONCEDED WINNER IN MONTANA

Congressman-Critic of Mayor Hague Piles Up Big Lead for Renomination.

By the Associated Press.

HELENA, Mont., July 20. — The renomination of Jerry J. O'Connell, Democratic Representative from the First Montana District and critic of Jersey City's Mayor Frank Hague, was conceded today by Payne Templeton, Helena educator and his closest rival for the nomination.

O'Connell, who said President Roosevelt instructed him to "defeat Senator Wheeler's machine so he won't be back in 1940," gradually increased his lead as unofficial returns came in from yesterday's voting.

The Congressman asserted in campaign speeches that Templeton had the support of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic leader of the fight against the President's court bill. The Senator insisted he had kept out of the race.

Returns from 252 precincts of 413 gave O'Connell 15,035 votes, Templeton 12,463.

In the Republican race, 192 precincts gave: Dr. J. Thorkelson, 3212; W. R. Page, 2642; J. B. Garrison, 1931.

Returns from 331 of 800 precincts for the Democratic nomination for Congress, second district, gave: James E. O'Connor, incumbent, 17,388; D. D. Rolph, 7432.

Republican: (332 precints); W. C. Husband, 4865; T. S. Stockdal, 4161; H. O. Williard, 1913.

LOW BID OF $1,833,000 ON PART OF WAPPAPELLO DAM

Hallett Construction Co. of Crosby, Minn., Offers Lowest Figure Among 12.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 20.—The Hallett Construction Co., Crosby, Minn., was apparent low bidder yesterday on the first part of the $16,000,000 Wappapello dam and levee flood control project in Missouri.

United States engineers said the Hallett Co., which bid $1,833,469, apparently offered a bid lower than 11 competing bidders. The bids will be referred to Washington for the awarding of the contract.

Work on the project will start within 10 days after approval is given at Washington. The award calls for the construction of a rolled fill earth dam approximately 2600 feet long and 70 feet high, with a diversion channel and dike, concrete control works, concrete gate house and a concrete ogee section spillway 70 feet long. Total cost o fthe dam itself will be $2,400,000, including Government appropriations of $500,000 for overhead, fo rinspection, office and work crews.

The left abutment of the dam is about a half mile southwest of Wappapello. The dam will extend in a southwesterly direction 2800 feet.

The time allowed for construction of the dam will be 900 calendar days from the date of receipt of notice to proceed.

Three Held for Inquiry Into Death.

Three Negroes are being held by East St. Louis police for questioning in regard to the death of Mose Leglet, Negro of Villa Ridge, Ill., whose body was run over by a freight train last midnight in the Monsanto railroad yards. Police said that a skull injury indicated Leglet was murdered and his body placed on the tracks.

BROWNS' GAMES OFF; JOHNSON JOINS THE CLUB

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Today's scheduled doubleheader between the Browns and Athletics was postponed because of rain. Two games will be played tomorrow.

The newest Brownie joined the club yesterday. He is Fred Johnson, a right hander, late of Toledo. Manager Gabby Street duly swore in Johnson as a member of the Browns and he may see service in the games tomorrow.

Johnson has the distinction of being the oldest rookie in the majors. He boasts of the ripe old age of 38 and is starting a major league career at a time when many are leaving.

President Barnes gave a bundle of cash and Pitcher Jim Walkup to Toledo to acquire Johnson. John-son is one of those rubber-armed curvers who breezes on season after season with nary a twinge in the arm. He has been with Toledo seven seasons.

"On the strength of his pitching record, he has long deserved promotion to the majors but the Brown scouts always turned him down on 'being too old.'"

Remembering that Wilcy Moore was well above the 30-year mark when the Yankees got him to win pennants as a result of his relief pitching, Gabby Street paid no attention to his age but signed him on the merits of his record.

With Toledo this year Johnson has won 12 games and lost 4. He pitched every four days, relieved on other days and pitched in batting practice nearly every day. There are no lazy bones in Johnson's makeup.

A right hander, Johnson is said to have a butterfly ball like Hubbell's only it goes the other way. He has other puzzling slow pitches. He definitely has no fast ball.

Said Manager Street: "The Browns have lost 20 games or more this season because our pitchers buckled from the seventh inning on. We feel that Johnson will make a valuable relief man for us and save some of those games. He's smart and has deadly control. Never any danger of his getting into action late in the game after walking everybody in the park. We have never had a good rescue pitcher this season so a pitcher like Johnson is quite welcome."

The reason for Buck Newson's late losing streak is now explained. More than two weeks ago, some-body hit a ball back to him in a game and hurt right hand. He paid no attention to it and kept on pitching. Recently in Boston he hurt the same thumb again. Before he discovered he was going to pitch with a broken bone in his salary hand, Buck had won three games and won one.

Today's was the second straight postponement here because of rain, a single game having been called off yesterday. For tomorrow's games Manager Street will presumably rely on Pitchers Howard Mac-and Oral Hildebrand. Buck Ross and Lyn Nelson are due for Philadelphia.

extra innings by J. Roy Stockton

A Kindly Wallop.

Hank Leiber, the broad-shouldered Giant center fielder, saved Uncle Will Klem and President Ford Frick a little trouble when he slashed a single to center in the ninth inning of the opening game of the New York series with the Cardinals at Sportsman's Park. If it hadn't been for that wallop, Uncle Will and his companions-in-blue would be doing considerable pencil-pushing, building reports to President Frick, and Frick would have had to rule on a protest.

Leiber started it all by taking a called third strike earlier in the game and complaining bitterly because Uncle Will called it that way. Many faces were made as players glared at Klem, and Uncle Will and Manager Terry exchanged blah blah and phooies.

Tempers were still on edge as the game went into the fourth inning and the Cardinals rallied. With runners on first and second, the score tied at 3-3, and Jimmy Brown at the bat, somebody in the Cardinal dugout was barking at somebody, perhaps at Uncle Will. Hal Schumacher got his sign from Gus Mancuso, started his pitching motion and at the same motion Uncle Will Klem turned toward the Cardinal dugout and took a stride from his usual position behind the catcher. What Klem did had no effect on Schumacher's pitch. It had no effect on Jimmy Brown. The pitch was good and so was Jimmy Brown's swing. The ball sailed to right field for a single, Bordagaray scored from second and Terry Moore raced to third.

A Good Argument.

Giants poured from the dugout and rushed from their positions in the field, charging Uncle Will Klem. They contended that he had left his position behind the plate, that the pitch should have been ruled void, as when time is called, and that Brown should be forced to bat again.

It made a dandy argument, with plenty of points on either side. Certainly Klem was out of position. It happened that this observer was watching Bill and the umpire had his eyes toward the dugout when bat met ball. Had the ball gone to the catcher, Bill could not have judged whether it was a strike or ball, in this observer's opinion. On the other hand Schumacher put all he could on the pitch and Brown hit it. Would it be fair to penalize Brown and the Cardinals because Klem happened to glance toward the dugout?

It was a long argument, with Giant players talking first to Klem and finally giving all their attention to Ziggy Sears, who seemed to enjoy the chance for conversation during an otherwise dull afternoon. When play was resumed it was announced that Manager Terry was continuing the game under protest.

A Kindly Umpire.

Uncle Will Klem, by the way, seems to be mellowing with the years. The Giants "got away with" many things which in years past would have seen them on their way to an early shower. When Roy Henshaw was called from the bull pen to relieve Harrell in the ninth inning, the left-hander was permitted to throw more than the usual five practice pitches.

Coach Frank Snyder protested loudy from the coaching box near first base. He informed Klem—and the stands at the same time—that Bill knew full well that a relief pitcher was allowed only five throws, and Frank yelled so that all could hear that Klem ought to go and get himself a rule book. Can you imagine anybody telling that to Uncle Will and getting away with it.

Of course the Giants always have been given more privileges than some of the other teams, though the umpires will deny that and resent the statement. We refer to Terry's practice of holding long conferences on the mound. Whenever Frisch used to go out to the mound, the umpires rushed out there with him and insisted that he immediately call his new pitcher. Terry, however, held a long conference with his pitcher and infield in the ninth inning and not an umpire left his position to urge speed or protest at the delay. It is possible, of course, that Terry, even in his protests, is more polite than Frisch. We have heard that Herr Frankie knows many words and uses them freely when umpires are within range. But whatever the reason, Terry gets away with many things that would put Frisch in the clubhouse.

FAVORITES IN COUNTY TENNIS MEET ADVANCE

Mrs. Lyda Heede and Mrs. Clara Mataya, Carondelet Park team, defeated Virginia and Blanche Fischel, St. Louis Country players, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2. The winners will oppose Lois Keene and Mrs. May this afternoon.

GIANTS NO LONGER ODDS-ON FAVORITES TO WIN THE PENNANT

The New York Giants, recently quoted by New York betting commissioners at 4 to 5 to win the National League pennant, are losing their grip with the betting fraternity.

Odds announced today by local Betting Commissioner Charley Burke price the Giants and the Pirates at 8 to 5 each and the Cubs and Reds at 4 to 1 each.

The Yanks are 7 to 10 in the American League, with Cleveland 8 to 5 and Boston 5 to 1.

Henry Armstrong is 1 to 4 favorite over Lou Ambers for their lightweight title fight Aug. 10; Ambers is 2½ to 1.

PHILLIES SWAMP PIRATES, 11 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—The lowly Phillies swamped the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, 11 to 0, today in the first game of a double-header. Southpaw Al Hollingsworth held the Bucs to six hites, while his mates were clubbing four pitchers for 16.

Boxing Bout Postponed.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The 10-round boxing match between Al McCoy of Boston and Buddy Knox, heavyweight from Dayton, O., scheduled for tonight at Sparta Stadium, was postponed today until tomorrow night because of rain.

TRAY'S COLUMN

In the Money Again.

THE United States Lawn Tennis Association is "in the money" again. That is to say, with the challenge round of the Davis Cup and several zone matches to be played, there should be about $100,000 difference in the U. S. L. T. A. treasury at the close of 1938, as compared with the totals in any of the last 10 years, when we had to send a team to Europe to try to win back the bowl.

This year there will be no expensive foreign trip ahead, and a big gate from the cup contests is probable. And so there'll be gold in them thar tennis coffers, this time.

Not that the U. S. L. T. A. is in the business of promoting amateur sport for profit. But its expansion and educational program requires money.

The Davis Cup defense in this country therefore proves helpful to every tennis district in the country, as all share in the benefits.

Looks Like a Walkover.

THERE'S A FLY in the ointment. At this writing it appears unlikely that any team in the European or American zone will be able to give Budge, Riggs and Mako a scare.

Australia at this time is considered the strongest foe due to the breaking up of the British and German teams. England lost Austin and Hughes and Germany its ace, Von Cramm.

Even the Aussies, now expected to win the interzone final in this country, are not at their best and will have to make a bid with the youthful Jack Bromwich and the veteran Adrian Quist as singles and doubles representatives.

BROMWICH IS A freak player and lacks experience, although he was credited with a victory over Budge during Don's barnstorming campaign in Australia. He, like that other Australian, Vivian McGrath, sometimes uses both hands in handling his racket, or shifts it from one hand to the other.

Doesn't seem to orthodox players that freak playing of this sort could cope with the tactics of a Budge or even a Riggs.

Quist was very highly regarded two years ago. If he should return to his best form he might be dangerous for Budge and no doubt would take care of Riggs.

That would put the situation up to the doubles and here again the Australians are not to be despised.

The first American Zone play will be between Mexico and Australia at Kansas City the last three days of July. Japan is supposed to play Canada and the winner of that match may face the Australians in the Zone final.

After that will come the interzone final between the European and American zone winners, concluding with the challenge round at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia.

One's Afraid, Other Dassen't.

IT SEEMS TO BE a case of one's afraid and the other dassen't, when it comes to getting the owners of Seabiscuit and War Admiral into the same race. Messrs. Howard and Riddle have been hemming, hawing, scratching their entries and giving each other the run-around all year, on one pretext or another.

The weights were too hard, the track too soft, or one had a sore knee—always something was wrong. Track promoters became completely fed up Monday, with the result that Arlington officials canceled their plant to revive the $25,000 added money Gold Cup race.

It was anticipated that a field

Dizzy Dean came through with a four-hit game last Sunday, but Brother Paul continues to have bad luck. Last night, at Dallas, Paul was on the losing end of a battle with Schoolboy Rowe, which went 11 innings, Beaumont winning, 3 to 2. Paul is shown in the dugout during the game.

Traynor Fears Cubs and Giants

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 20.—Manager Pie Traynor of the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates said today that while he fears the Giants and Cubs most in the pennant race, "the Reds look almost as good."

"They've needed a pitcher, and look what that fellow Whitey Moore did yesterday, a two-hitter," said Pie. "They've got the spirit and the hitting already."

Traynor said he was glad to see Dizzy Dean come through with a good game Sunday, but that he didn't believe the "great one" would be such a terror if he had to stick to sidearm pitching. "He was an overhand pitcher and if he can't resort to that delivery in the 'clutch' he'll have a time getting by," Traynor added.

DETROIT MAKES FORMAL BID FOR OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1944

FINNS ACCEPT EVENT IN 1940, AT HELSINGFORS

International Committee Issues Invitation After Receiving Withdrawal Notice From Japanese.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 20.—Combined forces of sportsmen, civic promotional groups and business interests got behind a move today to push Detroit in on the ground floor among bidders for Olympic games.

The motor capital, ready and willing to go to bat against the British Empire and Premier Mussolini in competition for the games, formally entered its invitation to the 1944 Olympiad, or 1948 as second choice.

For at least two years Detroit has mused over applying for the Olympics, and recently the dream developed some tangible connections, climaxed by Mayor Richard Reading's formal application for the games yesterday.

Would Raise $2,500,000.

Already leaders of an "Olympics-for-Detroit" group are deep in plans for raising a nest egg of $2,500,000, the sum deemed necessary to finance the venture.

What with Michigan's lakes, a Northern zone fit for winter games, and numerous stadiums available, the enumeration of Detroit's attractions is virtually ready-made, backers said.

Sponsors of the city's bid, made by Mayor Reading to the Olympic international body in Lausanne, Switzerland, and the American Olympic Association at Chicago, pointed out the availability of the University of Michigan stadium at Ann Arbor, and Briggs Stadium and the University of Detroit stadium in Detroit.

Brundage's Reported Opinion.

In addition, Frederick C. Matthaei, Detroit industrialist, elected permanent chairman of the Detroit Olympiad committee, was instructed to set up a finance committee to raise the $2,500,000 as well as a legal group to frame a Detroit Olympic Games Commission with power to condemn property for a stadium site other than the three mentioned.

Matthaei said that Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U. and member of the International Olympic Committee, called Detroit the best site in America for the Olympics.

Government to Finance Games; Planning Stadium.

By the Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, July 20.—The 1940 Olympic Games, relinquished by Japan last week, were awarded officially to Finland yesterday. Helsingfors was named host city.

The invitaiton was issued by Count Henri de Baillet-Latour of Belgium, president of the International Olympic Committee, after he received an official notification from the Japanese Ambassador at Brussels of Japan's decision not to stage the games.

Two committees representing the Government and civil authorities made plans to entertain the world's greatest athletes. The Finnish Government has agreed to finance the games. Work has started on plans for a stadium, while the deputy of Helsingfors has suggested ocean liners be brought into port and used as floating hotels as a solution of the housing problem.

Kuopio, in the middle of Finland, has offered to arrange for the winter games. While no dates for the summer games have been announced, it is believed they will be moved back to July or August, dates more suitable to the United States and European countries.

Finland, which originally bid for the games against Japan, will stage the competition without the pomp and ceremony that surrounded the 1932 and 1936 games at Los Angeles and Berlin, respectively. Officials plan to model the games more after the 1912 competition at Stockholm.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for the Italian Olympic Committee said Italy would oppose any attempt of Japan to hold the 1944 games in Tokio. Italy has indicated she would like them in Rome.

Giddyap!

Money makes the mare go, but it takes 80 Mayors to make the Cardinals go to town. Cards 5, Phillies 3.

Max Schmeling's homecoming didn't take on the proportions of an ovation, but he got off the train in Berlin and went home under his own power.

Fell upon Max Schmeling's ears
When he landed in Berlin,
Because poor Max forgot to win.

Johnny Rizzo drew a $25 plaster from Ford Frick for butting into an argument that was none of his business. If this is to be used as a precedent it looks bad for the old-fashioned huddle with the umpire as the central figure.

They say that money talks, but silence is golden when it costs 25 bucks to sit in on an argument.

And a good thing it is, too. Much of the lost motion in baseball is due to too many players talking out of turn.

See where there has been a falling off of street car passengers during the last three months. What's the matter, are the strap-hangers losing their grip?

The crucial series between the Cards and Phillies ended in an even break with the good old Phils still occupying the basement by a comfortable margin of eight games.

On the other hand, the other outfit from Philadelphia known to the trade as the Athletics are seven up on the Browns in the race for the subterranean championship.

The pulse has come back into Bob Grove's arm and he hopes to be back there repulsing the enemy in a few days.

In defending Max Baer as a logical contender in spite of his dismal flop in his former fight with Joe Louis, Mike Jacobs thinks that what Max wouldn't do for himself he will now do for the wife and kiddie. It worked out all right for Jim Braddock, but Jim had several kiddies.

With a Nod to Harrigan.

"C-o-double r-i-g-a-n spells Corrigan,
Proud of all the Irish blood that's in me
Divul a word a man can say ag'in me.
C-o-double r-i-g-a-n you see
That's me name and I came over here just to say 'hello'
Corrigan, that's me!"

"Nonstop" Corrigan managed to slip away sans fanfare of trumpets, but Grover Whalen will catch him on the rebound. Don't think that he won't.

At that it might be a race between Whalen and the Chief of Police to see which gets him first. We understand that Douglas is wanted for trying to double cross Uncle Sam.

While Mr. Whalen is perfectly willing to give him the freedom of the city the freedom of the seas is something else again. You cannot violate Uncle Sam's riparian rights with impunity or an antiquated air crate, either.

PIKEY, CLARK STEAL SHOW AT C. M. T. C. FIGHTS

Homer Pikey of West Frankfort, Ill., and Verlin Clark, Brolsey, Mo., stole the spotlight in the semifinal competition of the annual Citizens' Military Training Camp boxing tournament held last night at Jefferson Barracks. Capt. R. S. Henderson, officer in charge of the tourney, estimated 9000 watched the 13-bout program.

Pikey scored over Lew Stearns of Champaign, Ill., in the bantamweight division. Both Stearns and Pikey started out in the first round exchanging hard-hitting punches, the latter coming back in the second to gain a slight edge. He started the third round with a bombardment that made Stearns stagger a bit, then whispered to his opponent: "You're not hurt are you?" The youths then traded hard blows continuously to the bell. The three judges, Sgts. Brock, Brennan and Sanders, gave Pikey the decision to the crowds' approval.

Verlin Clark gained a prominent share of the victory laurels by a knockout in the middleweight division. He gave R. O. Gifford of Robinson, Ill., several swift uppercuts when the latter tried a crouching offence in the first round that proved fatal. Clark ended this fight within two minutes and then came back later to finish Dick Fisher of Pekin, Ill., with three or four quick blows to the head. Clark meets Charles Talbott of Charleston, Ill., in the middleweight finals. Talbott staged a comeback in the last two rounds to gain the judges decision over Elmer Jackson of Belleville.

The other knockout was registered by Wendell Fordyce of Vermont, Ill., in the welterweight division. Fordyce sent John Henneke of Carbondale, Ill., to the floor in the first round.

While six of the bouts were won on the judges' decision four others were stopped by Referee Garnet Walbret when the fighters were hopelessly outclassed. Two contestants, Ralph Manning of Peoria, Ill., and Loven Cokley of Parkerville, Ill., went to the finals of their respective divisions on last minute forfeits.

The finals in all weight classes will be held next Tuesday night at the Jefferson Barracks arena.

Municipal Park Tennis Matches To Open Sunday

The municipal inter-park tennis team competition will open Sunday with 10 clubs represented. In accordance with action taken at last night's meeting of the Municipal Tennis Association at Sherman Park Community Center, the inter-park play for the men's teams will be divided in two leagues, Northern and Southern. The women's competition will open on July 31 and probably will be a round robin affair.

Schedule for the men's matches next Sunday follows: Northern Division—O'Fallon at Sherman, Kingshighway at Fairgrounds, Marquette vs. bye, Southern Division—Cherokee at Oakland, Reservoir at Carondelet, Francis Park vs. bye.

The Cherokee team is the new name for that formerly known as Concordia Park. Francis Park, recently opened, is entering a team for the first time. When schedules are completed the division team winners will meet for the men's inter-park championship. Matches will be played Sunday afternoon starting at 1 o'clock. Sunday, July 31, will be an open date for the men's teams.

Applications for membership from clubs in Reservoir and Francis Park were accepted by the association. The application of the Forest Park Tennis Club was rejected by a vote of 14 to 2 after considerable discussion by officers of the Forest Park club and various other delegates.

Wayne Smith, Nathan David and several other members of the Forest Park Club present at the meeting asked how they could play in the local municipal championships. They were told that they could join the nearby Oakland or Kingshighway clubs or any of the other recognized clubs. The Forest Park members will probably appeal to Robert D. Turner, recreation superintendent, as the result of last night's decision.

MacQUINN VICTOR IN MIDGET AUTO FEATURE

Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis scored another victory in the midget auto races, winning the 40-lap event in 14:25.76, at Walsh Stadium last night. Ted Dunca, Chicago, was second, and Johnny Rogan, St. Louis, third.

MacQuinn also won a preliminary of 10 laps in which 21 drivers competed. Duncan and Rogan again finished second and third. Tony Willman, Milwaukee, took the first 10-lap preliminary, but motor trouble forced him out of the feature.

Ralph Felio, St. Louis, suffered a dislocated shoulder when his car turned over and he was pinned under it during the preliminary won by MacQuinn.

The attendance was announced as 7681.

South Ends Beat Troy, Mo., 3 to 1

Johnny Dobernic, star right-hander for Phil Kavanaugh's South End semi-pros, defeated the Troy (Mo.) baseball team, 3 to 1, last night at South End Park.

Dobernic was prevented from a shutout when "Tony" Boemer, Troy second baseman, singled to right with two out in the third inning, scoring B. Eisenbath, who was on second by virtue of a double.

Dobernic fanned 13, striking out the side in the fifth.

Thursday night the South Ends, who now have seven victories and three defeats, will meet the Ethiopia Clowns, Negro team from New York. Manager Kavanaugh probably will use Kenneth Hoge or Orville Paul on the mound.

LEGISLATURE TO MAKE PENNSYLVANIA INQUIRY

Gov. Earle to Summon Special Session on Charges Involving Him and Others.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 20.—Gov. George H. Earle announced last night he would issue a formal call tomorrow for a special session of the Legislature on Monday to investigate charges made against him and 13 of his associates.

He said the session would permit a public hearing and immediate disposal of the charges—including conspiracy to defraud the commonwealth—which a Dauphin County (Harrisburg) grand jury has been summoned to investigate.

Earle, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, has denied the charges. He said they were "politically inspired" and that the grand jury inquiry would be a "star chamber" proceeding. The Legislature is Democratic.

The Governor termed the action of the courts in permitting the grand jury inquiry an "unprecedented attempt of the judiciary to assume overlordship of the executive department" and "attempted usurpation of the prerogatives of the Legislature."

The meeting date is just two weeks before the grand jury is scheduled to start consideration of charges that Earle and his political associates "conspired" to "blackmail" firms doing business with the State, "extort" money for political committees and "coerce" State employes into supporting their candidates.

The Governor unsuccessfully fought to the Supreme Court to block the grand jury inquiry. He denied the charges and called them "politically-inspired." They were first made by Charles J. Margiotti, when he was Attorney-General and as independent candidate to succeed Earle. The Governor fired the Cabinet member, who later ran third in the primary election. In the May 17 voting, Earle was designated for the Senate and Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh, his running mate, won the nomination for Governor. The election is in November.

"It is imperative that charges against high public officials be heard publicly, and disposed of at once; it is equally imperative that the investigation necessary to achieve that purpose be conducted by a body constitutionally empowered to do so," the Governor wrote.

The Governor has said that the Legislature also would consider appropriating more money for relief.

WISCONSIN SHERIFF GIVEN JAIL TERM FOR MALFEASANCE

Eight Others Sentenced at Waukesha on Gambling Charges Filed by State.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKESHA, Wis., July 20.—Sheriff Walter Liskowitz was sentenced yesterday to the Milwaukee House of Correction for six months following conviction by a circuit jury on charges of malfeasance in office.

Liskowitz was convicted last week, but Judge Sherman Smalley deferred sentence until after the trial of nine men charged with conspiracy to violate laws against slot machines.

The latter trial ended yesterday, with acquittal for Herman Salen, former District Attorney, and conviction for eight others, including Garland (Gob) Buckeye, former major league baseball pitcher. Those convicted were sentenced to the House of Correction for six-month terms. The State charged Liskowitz, after receiving a complaint from a man who had lost his paycheck in a slot machine, suggested to the operator that the machine be removed.

Big Wage-Hour Act Question: What Is Interstate Commerce

Much Litigation Expected in View of Inquiries From All Over Country—Administrator Can Give No Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — The old question of what constitutes interstate commerce is developing as the first big problem of the new wage-hour administration.

Government attorneys studying the question say that when the answer finally is written, it will come, not from Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, who has charge of enforcing the new labor law, but from the courts.

There are predictions in Government circles that in view of inquiries already coming in from business men throughout the country, a large amount of litigation will arise over this subject.

One attorney said the law as drawn gave the administrator no power to decide which individual businesses come within its provisions. This, he said, has created an element of uncertainty for businesses on the border line of interstate commerce.

He gave this example:

A furniture manufacturer who sells all his finished products in the state in which he operates buys his lumber from outside the state. Uncertain whether he should comply with the wage-hour law, he asks the administrator for an opinion. The administrator can give him no official opinion under the law.

He can, however, give his unofficial view, which might be that the manufacturer was not subject to the law. If the manufacturer operated on that basis, he still would be liable to civil suit by his employes or to criminal action by the Government should one or the other decide that perhaps he ought to be operating under the law.

Thus the court would have to interpret the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution in order to decide the suit.

The wage-hour law will become effective Oct. 24. It provides that virtually all businesses in interstate commerce must then begin paying a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour and work employes not more than 44 hours a week.

Labor Department authorities say that the hours provision will affect many more workers than the wage provision. It specifies that an employe must be paid time and a half for overtime—whether his hourly rate is 25 cents or $25.

BRITAIN'S PARTITION STUDY NEARING END IN PALESTINE

Commission, in Holy Land Since April 27, Will Hasten Its Recommendations.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20.—The British Government announced today that the commission sent to Palestine to study the question of partition of the Holy Land had almost completed its investigation and would hasten its recommendations.

Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary for Colonies, told the House of Commons that the four-man commission, headed by Sir John Woodhead, would start for home early next month. It has been in Palestine since April 27.

The secretary drew this picture of the recent Palestine disorders, arising from the conflict of Jews and Arabs: In the two weeks ending yesterday, 77 persons were killed and 247 wounded. There were 32 cases of bomb-throwing and other terroristic acts.

Replying to a question whether he had information from what country the bombs were imported, MacDonald said, "I understand that a great part of them were manufactured in Palestine." He replied simply, "No," when asked if he had any information as to the number imported from Germany.

PRESIDENT OF BANKERS REPLIES TO R F C HEAD

Says Danger is Deterioration in Quality of Loans, Not Too Little Credit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Lending policies of the nation's bankers were defended last night by Orval W. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association in a statement answering the recent one of Jesse Jones, R F C chairman, that banking, to "remain in private hands, must meet the credit needs of the country."

"It is my sincere conviction," said Adams, who is executive vice-president of Utah State National Bank, Salt Lake City, "that bankers are earnestly trying to play their full part in promoting a sound, economic expansion in the nation's business activities.

"It is their task to find loans that are truly useful and bank-worthy—that both give justified credit assistance to sound business enterprise large and small, and at the same time protect the interest of the depositors whose money is lent."

He said that in its recent report the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation declared that the "quality of the assets of a bank is of equal importance to adequacy of capital."

"With excess reserves as large as they are now," said Adams, "the ever present danger is not that too little credit will be extended but that a deterioration in the quality of bank loans will take place.

"The willingness of bankers to expand their credit co-operation whenever the oportunity has offered is shown by the fact that total loans and investments of members of the Federal Reserve system increased from 25 billion dollars to 32 billion dollars in the past five years. Through 1936 and 1937, a period of active business, commercial loans increased from five billion dollars to seven billion dollars.

"So rapid was the expansion of bank credit in 1936 that the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system raised member bank reserve requirements. The 1936 increase was ordered on the grounds that 'reflation' had been accomplished, and the increase of 1937 was ordered to check the inflationary tendencies then present."

CITY GETS $6145 MORE FOR GAS-KILLED TREES

Second Settlement With Laclede Co. Covers 178 That Died Since June, 1936.

In a second settlement made by the Laclede Gas Light Co. with the City of St. Louis for trees killed by leakage of gas from mains, the city has received $6145 for 178 trees, killed betwen June, 1936, and last October. This is an average of $34.52 a tree.

The city received $12,050 in a previous settlement, in 1936, for trees killed up to that time. The payment, which was at an average rate of about $25 a tree, ended a suit which the city had filed against the company. By the first payment, the company admitted liability for future damage of the same kind.

In its claim against the gas company, the city fixed various prices on the trees killed, which were maples, sycamores and elms. The price was determined in each case by the age, symmetry and state of development of the tree. City Forester Ludwig Baumann and the City Counselor's office cooperated in pressing the claim.

The trees destroyed have been replaced by others, except where they were too near other trees.

The Laclede company in 1936 issued a check for $40,000, to meet the necessary payment to the city. From this check, the city received its stipulated amount, $12,050, and $1765 court costs were paid. This left $26,185 unaccounted for, and the disposition made of that amount has never been made known by the gas company.

The check transaction was one of the last of the Harley L. Clarke management of the gas company. Clarke, then chairman of the company's board of directors, said last April that he authorized the payment. E. P. Gosling, president of the company at the time, said the check was given to Floyd L. McKinney, an attorney, and that he had not been able to get a statement accounting for the balance of more than $26,000.

McKinney said to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the time that his own fee and other fees came out of the $40,000, but refused to make a detailed statement. L. Wade Childress, present president of the company, said the board of directors was looking into the matter.

YOUTH'S PROBATION REVOKED, HE QUIT JOB AND LEFT CITY

Officer Obtained Work and Pay Advance for Him; Boy Must Serve Reformatory Term.

The probation of Charles A. Coleman, 20 years old, granted April 27 following his plea of guilty of violation of the Dyer Act, was revoked by United States District Judge George H. Moore today at the request of Chief Probation Officer Milton Weiffenbach, who said the youth quit after three hours work on a job he had obtained for him and went to California.

Weiffenbach told the Court he found employment for Coleman in a St. Louis factory at $16 a week, April 28, the day after he was placed on probation from a reformatory sentence of 30 months imposed for driving a stolen automobile from Quincy, Fla., to East Prairie, Mo.

The probation officer said he gave the penniless youth $2 and the factory owner advanced him $5 of his first wages. After Coleman had worked three hours he left the factory and started to California, where he was arrested two weeks ago. He must now serve his sentence in the El Reno (Ok.) Reformatory.

APPLICATION FOR OIL STATION AT SKINKER, KINGSBURY FAILS

Although Zone Has Been Changed to Commercial, Public Service Board Splits on Permit.

An application for a permit for a filling station at the southeast corner of Skinker boulevard and Kingsbury avenue failed in the Board of Public Service yesterday because of a tie vote.

The Board of Aldermen last March ended a controversy of eight years' standing over the zoning of the southeast and northeast corners of Skinker and Kingsbury by passing an ordinance to change the corners from residential to commercial districts. Residents of the block of Kingsbury, extending east to Rosedale avenue, opposed the change. This was cited by Director of Public Welfare Joseph M. Darst in voting against the permit. He was joined by Edward E. Wall, Director of Public Utilities. President Baxter L. Brown of the Board of Public Service and Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt voted in favor of granting the permit on the ground that the commercial zoning ordinance had been held valid by the City Counselor's office. The fifth member of the board, Director of Public Safety George W. Chadsey, was absent on vacation.

The application, made in the name of Charles F. Winters, whose address was given as the First National Bank, may be resubmitted when Chadsey returns.

Passenger Killed, Driver Held.

CARLINVILLE, Ill., July 20.—Jesse Petten, 48 years old, of Macoupin Station, was crushed to death early today when the automobile in which he was riding plunged down a steep embankment about three miles north of here. John O'Donnell, 31, driver of the car, was held in the county jail. Sheriff A. S. Henry said he "admitted he was intoxicated."

THREE MEN KILLED, ONE HURT IN AUTO COLLISION IN ILLINOIS

State Police Lieutenant, Injured, Says Farmer's Car Did Not Stop at Intersection.

By the Associated Press.

PONTIAC, Ill., July 20.—Three men were killed and one was seriously injured today in an automobile collision seven miles west of here on State route 116.

The dead are John H. Smith, 59 years old, a farmer near here; John Smith Jr., 30, and Honas Smith, 18. Lieut. Bert Mollahan of the Illinois State police, suffered a broken nose, leg injuries and possible chest injuries. He was taken to a Peoria hospital.

Mollahan, chief of the Eighth District, with headquarters in Peoria, said the Smith car, driven by Harm Smith, 24, was going north on a gravel road, en route to a $10,000 fire in Graymont, and did not stop at the intersection. Mollahan's car struck the other car.

Accompanying Mollahan were L. E. Stone, Ralph Kennedy and Anthony Vandyke, all of Peoria. They were shaken up.

4 Fired After Prison Blaze.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., July 20.—Warden Joseph E. Ragen of the Illinois penitentiary announced yesterday that John Kickels, superintendent of the State honor farm, and three guards had been discharged as an aftermath of a fire which destroyed a barn at the honor farm on July 2. Kickels was in charge of the barns where damp hay had caught fire. The guards let convicts with fire apparatus through the gates instead of passing the equipment over to an outside fire detail.

TVA COMMITTEE HAS HEATED ROW OVER DR. MORGAN

Authority's Ex-Chairman Says Counsel Tried to Limit His Questioning of Employes.

FRANCIS BIDDLE ADMITS HE DID IT

Representative Jenks Declares He Ought to Resign — Donahey Rules Anyone May Testify.

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 20. — Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of the T V A, threw the congressional investigation of T V A into a turmoil today when he charged that the committee's counsel, Francis Biddle, had ordered him not to talk to T V A employes except in his (Biddle's) presence.

Dr. Morgan, who was removed from office by presidential order, took the stand for the third consecutive day to pile up charges against his former associates in the T V A directorate.

"I have been informed by counsel (Biddle) not to talk to employes of the T V A except in the presence of counsel," he said.

Representative Jenkins (Rep.), Ohio, asked Biddle if he was authorized to take any such action.

"I took upon myself the authorization for Dr. Morgan to see any witnesses that I thought wise," Biddle said.

Rules Anyone May Testify.

Chairman Donahey (Dem.), Ohio, said the committee's policies were "free and above-board and we have asked anyone to come before the committee to tell us what he might know of the administration of the T V A."

Biddle broke in, "We are conducting this probe and not Dr. Morgan."

Representative Wolverton (Rep.), New Jersey, asked, "Has there been any procedure whereby Dr. Morgan must see counsel before he has access to T V A records or T V A employes?"

"Yes," Dr. Morgan replied.

Wolverton: "Do you prefer free and open access to them?"

Dr. Morgan: "I have been informed that T V A employes were instructed not to see me. Therefore, it has been feasible that I work through committee counsel in seeing employes and records."

Dr. Morgan's Purpose.

Dr. Morgan added that he needed to confer with T V A employes in preparing his case against his former associates, Directors Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, but, "I saw I would be jeopardizing the rules of their superiors." He continued: "I was told by T V A employs they were instructed not to talk."

"I move," said Jenkins, "that any person wishing to appear before this committee apply to the clerk and anyone be permitted to interview any T V A employe at any time."

This was seconded by Senator Davis (Rep.), Pennsylvania, but before a vote was taken the T V A's general counsel, James Lawrence Fly, hurried to Biddle's side and asked permission to testify: Dr. Morgan stepped down.

T V A Counsel's Explanation.

Fly, taking the stand, said:

"I can state the T V A has no objections to Dr. Morgan talking to employes at any time. The only request is that the board be notified and then these conferences be arranged through the proper administrative officials. If he is permitted to go in secret to see the employes, the result will be utter demoralization of the T V A staff."

Jenkins: "Do you mean to say that the 14,000 employes of this great organization can't talk? You want to know what they will be asked and what they will say?"

Fly: "That's not so, sir."

Dr. Morgan explained that he had wanted to talk to T V A engineers about construction matters but had not been able to see them.

At this point Jenkins charged Biddle with working "in cahoots" with the T V A. Angrily, Biddle replied:

"If that kind of slur comes again, sir, I will resign as counsel at once."

Jenkins: "I think you will do the committee and this country a great favor if you do."

Chairman Donahey stepped in and quieted the committee members who by this time were shouting at one another.

Jenkins apologized to Biddle, unenthusiastically.

Yesterday's Testimony.

The investigators, representing House and Senate, for more than seven hours yesterday heard Dr. Morgan outline his differences with present directors of T V A, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal. Harcourt Morgan was named chairman after Dr. Morgan was removed.

The deposed chairman testified of intrigue, "secret meetings," and undercover manipulations for personal power.

He charged that his former associates, Harcourt Morgan and Lilienthal, decided on the T V A power program without his consent or knowledge.

They ignored his suggestions and adopted administrative policies in "secret meetings," he declared.

Morgan said he "took many bitter pills" in accepting suggestions from his associates, but that he was forced finally to rebel.

Waste on Power Lines.

Charges that Dr. Morgan placed before the committee were that:

1. "Several million dollars" were wasted in the layout and construction of power transmission lines.

2. A power contract with the Aluminum Co. of America left the Authority at the "mercy of the company," and land which could have been obtained in return for secondary power eventually will cost T V A from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000.

3. Lilienthal determined the "yardstick" power rates without consulting him and later referred to them as "little more than a guess."

4. The basis of the rates and how they were arrived at has never been disclosed.

5. Motions he made at board meetings were not recorded for lack of a second.

"No Definite Power Policy."

6. The fertilizer program is not national in scope as it should be, and there is no "definite power policy" in T V A except by inference from the separate deals made by Lilienthal.

7. Administrative policies were adopted at "secret meetings of which he knew virtually nothing until he was given memoranda by his associates.

Dr. Morgan termed the contract signed with the Aluminum Co., a 20-year agreement which neither party can sever until after 10 years and then only by written notice five years in advance, a "most serious thing," adding:

"I consider that action a failure to protect public interest even more serious than its action in the Berry Marble case."

In the latter instance, he referred to the agreement by Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan to conciliate the claims of Senator Berry (Dem.), Tennessee, and others who held mineral and marble leases in the Norris Dam reservoir.

Surgeon Proposes U. S. Medical Experiment in Tennessee Valley; Would Subsidize Doctors There

Dr. Hugh Cabot Says Area Would Provide Good Cross-Section for Trying Out New Government Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Development in the Tennessee Valley of a mass experiment in providing Government medical care was suggested today to the national health conference.

Dr. Hugh Cabot, consulting surgeon of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., proposed that before the Federal Government embarks on a health program for the entire nation, it try out the system in the Southern region.

Physicians caring for the people would be subsidized directly and their service would be supervised, he said, adding that a great lack of medical care exists in the Tennessee Valley.

"There," he continued, "the problem of providing such care for the whole population could be studied without importantly altering the present pattern of medical practice."

Suggests Two Regions.

An area in the Middle West, he said, also could be chosen as an experimental ground. The results in both regions could aid in planning a nation-wide program.

Dr. Cabot is a leader of the independents in the American Medical Association.

The Tennessee Valley, he said, has three large cities, a number of medical specialists, several small hospitals, and a large number of almost destitute rural people. This combination, he explained, makes an ideal cross-section on which to try out a medical service program financed by the Federal and state governments.

Dr. Cabot declared the present arrangement of individual medical practice was adequate in 1900, but is inadequate now. It needs drastic revision, he said, if the available medical knowledge is to be equitably distributed in the saving of lives and the amelioration of sickness.

The present system, he contended, has resulted in a growing practice of fee-splitting among physicians and the tendency of surgeons to "stretch their moral fiber" too far when deciding whether operations are necessary on patients able to afford them.

A. M. A. and C I O Men Argue.

An argument took place last night between Dr. Olin West, secretary of the American Medical Association, and Lee Pressman, attorney for the Committee for Industrial Organization, over the desirability of a Federal health program.

Dr. West declared that "there is great danger to the health of this nation, danger to the welfare of those who are in need of medical service, through the centralization of control of medical service by any state agency."

There is no one plan for providing medical care, he added which will be successful in all parts of the country.

Pressman, replying, criticised "the upper hierarchy of these medical associations that simply refuse to give adequate health to the people of this country."

He urged the delegates to recommend a national health program administered by "the one Government that has the strength to rise above the various forces in the different states that have prevented us from satisfying our health needs heretofore."

Delegate From Slums.

Miss Florence Greenberg, 23 years old, from the slums of Chicago's south side, told the conference yesterday that the Government should make health one of "the inalienable rights" of every citizen. She said "we feel that an effective health program must be Government-supported and not subject to the whims of philanthropy and charity."

Until recently "my people—the steel workers, the packing house workers, the International Harvester workers, did not know what it meant to demand that their needs, their lives, their happiness be considered," she declared, but now they are demanding that "our Government take health from the list of luxuries to be bought only by money."

Miss Greenberg cited cases of workers affected with tuberculosis from work in dusty trades, with "the hog itch" from working in packing plants, with blindness, and with pneumonia because, she said, they could not afford medical or hospital care.

As educational and legislative chairman of the Council of Auxiliaries of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, a C I O union, she wrote to the President's Committee on Medical Care several months ago asking to present her story of Chicago's industrial slums.

She was invited to attend the health conference as a delegate. She said people in her district contributed nickels and dimes to pay her fare. Miss Greenberg is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Views of Business Executive.

Charles W. Taussig, president of the American Molasses Co., told the conference that expenditure of $850,000,000 on a health program "does not frighten business."

"A great deal more is known about preventing sickness than about preventing unemployment," he said, "yet we courageously explore the economic field, of which we know little, and neglect the field that we have at least partially mastered."

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon-general of the Public Health Service, declared in a radio address last night that the health conference might "well be the greatest event in medical science which has happened in our time."

He said most people think "that the great events of medicine occur only in the research laboratory or the operating room," adding that "we are witnessing here in Washington another kind of progress in medicine—an effort to put medical science to work."

Dr. John P. Peters, New Haven, Conn., secretary of the Committee of Positions, denied a report that the committee intended to break away from the Medical Association and form a new organization.

MANEUVERS BEGUN TO TEST ENGLISH COAST DEFENSES

Thirteen Squadrons of Planes Relied On Mainly to Repel Attacking Warships.

CHATHAM, England, July 20.—British naval, aerial and land forces are arrayed for four days of war games to test the vulnerability of defenses along 400 miles of the Eastern English and Scottish coast.

From these maneuvers—the greatest ever witnessed by the British Isle—military authorities hoped to gain valuable information on the ability of aircraft to defend the seaboard against a heavy naval attack.

The sector concerned would be expected to receive the major thrusts in event of war. The exercises started at midnight.

Thirty warships steamed toward secret meeting places in preparation for the attack. Nearly all the British home fleet was co-operating with the army and 200 naval and army planes.

The attacking "Blue" force will include the battleships Rodney, Revenge and Royal Sovereign, four cruisers and the aircraft carrier Courageous, supported by 15 destroyers and five submarines.

The "Red" defense force will use two cruisers and four destroyers. Its main strength will be 13 squadrons of the Air Force.

U. S. GROUP STUDIES SWEDEN'S LABOR PLAN

Committee Named by President Looks Into System for Settling Disputes.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, July 20.—Nine Americans started discussions with Swedish employers today to get first-hand knowledge of Sweden's compact working model of co-operation between business and labor.

The committee appointed by President Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to study British and Swedish industrial relations completed its survey in Britain last week.

The group comprises labor, education and Government officials, including Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., and Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school.

Machinery to Settle Dispute.

Under the Swedish system, highly organized trade unions and employer associations have established machinery to settle their problems to their own satisfaction.

The system, of course, does not guarantee industrial peace. Between 1921 and 1935 an annual average loss of 2,356,500 working days occurred through strikes, lockouts and mixed disputes.

During that trouble, an annual average of 31 per cent of workers were out of employment. More than half the disputes were settled while work continued. In 75 to 85 per cent of cases the argument was over money.

Collective agreements and arbitration are reasons for the present situation. In early 1936 nearly 7000 collective agreements covered more than 27,000 employers and 720,000 workers. More than a third of the pacts were national.

They were negotiated mainly through the 40-year-old General Federation of Swedish Trade Unions, a central organization to which individual unions belong, and the Swedish Employers' Federation, which dominates the field as a central organization of individual employer groups.

Special Labor Courts Provided.

When these associations, and others not connected with them, cannot agree, the case is taken before a Government-appointed conciliator. Further failure to agree usually shunts the dispute to special labor courts whose decisions are mandatory.

Farmers and white collar workers also are organized. Many workers are in unions outside the main national associations. The tug of war between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization has a counterpart in Sweden, but in recent years the tendency has been for all workers in a particular industry to amalgamate in a single union.

Since the World War working hours have decreased and wages have gone up. Real wages, taking into consideration higher living costs in 1936, stood at 150 per cent of those in 1913.

TAXES OF 150 FIRMS EXCEED COMMON STOCK DIVIDENDS

Compilation for Bulk of Major Firms Indicates Payment of $514 Per Employe.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The American Federation of Investors made public last night a compilation showing that taxes of 150 major corporations for 1937 were 34 per cent greater than the total of their common stock dividends.

The federation, a private organization with headquarters in Chicago, said "excessive taxation seriously reduces the purchasing power of millions of thrifty citizens, investors and workers, who pay the bulk of taxes."

"Extravagant governmental spending," the statement added, "may stimulate business temporarily, but a depressing reaction is certain to follow, with a constantly mounting debt to be paid by ever increasing taxation."

The corporations listed included most of the major manufacturing firms and utilities, and some of the larger distributors.

The federation said their 1937 taxes averaged $2.62 for each common share and dividends averaged $1.95. They paid, it said, an average of $514 in taxes for each employe. Stocks of the companies were held in 1937 by 6,490,821 individuals, compilation showed.

BOLIVIA, PARAGUAY APPROVE CHACO ARBITRATION TREATY

Agreement, Which Follows Three Years of Negotiation, to Be Signed Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, July 20.—The governments of Bolivia and Paraguay formally approved a treaty today submitting their century-old dispute over the Gran Chaco to arbitration by six neutral nations.

The agreement was reached after three years of efforts to end quarrels over the territory.

Formal signature of the accord will take place tomorrow. Then presidents, or their representatives, of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Peru will meet to fix the Paraguayan-Bolivian boundaries through the Gran Chaco.

KING GEORGE HONORS FRANCE'S WAR DEAD

Lays Wreath on Unknown Soldier's Tomb as Thousands in Streets Watch.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 20.—King George of England drove to the Arch of Triumph, Napoleonic monument at the head of the Champs-Elysees today and laid a wreath of dark red roses at the tomb of France's unknown soldier, then stood at salute for one minute of silent tribute to this nation's million and a half World War dead.

The King, who wore the full dress naval uniform in which he arrived in Paris yesterday, was accompanied by the Duke of Beaufort, the maritime prefect of the second region, and his aids.

Troops stood rigidly at attention and throngs massed in the 12 avenues radiating from the circular Place de l'Etoile around the arch.

A band sounded taps, after which the King signed the golden registry.

Procession Down Seine.

Escorted by mounted guard officers, the monarch returned to the Foreign Ministry and joined his Queen for a formal procession down the River Seine from the Quai d'Orsay to the city hall on the Quai de Geavres. Crowds lined the banks and filled the windows overlooking the mile and a half route.

Surrounded by ladies of her suite, Quen Elizabeth sat amidship while the King and President Lebrun stood on the poop deck of the streamlined white and gold yacht Danubia, privately-owned 75-foot vessel put at the disposal of the royal party. A fleet of small launches escorted the yacht.

Overcast skies and sultry weather robbed the event of much of its brilliance and detracted from the picturesqueness of one of the most beautiful stretches of the Seine. The sun came out, however, after the party reached city hall.

Bareheaded, Le Provost de Launay and the city councillors greeted the British sovereigns on the square fronting the beflagged city hall and conducted the visitors inside in a slow procession to the festival hall.

De Launay, welcoming the royal visitors, declared that Paris as "elder sister of all the communes of France, speaks for them at this moment in offering their homage of affection and respect to Your Majesties, august personification of all the cities of the British Empire."

After remaining a half-hour, the party reboarded the yacht and returned to the Quai d'Orsay.

A huge crowd thronged St. Louis Island opposite the city hall landing stage, shouting "Le Roi! Le Roi! (The King! the King!)" and waving flags.

NEW PROCEDURE FOR COUNTING THE BALLOTS AT KANSAS CITY

Election Board Orders That Democratic and G. O. P. Judges Make Tabulation Jointly.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 20.—A new procedure for counting the ballots in Missouri's primary election Aug. 2 was laid down today by the Kansas City Election Board, with instructions that the vote tabulation for the Democratic and Republican parties should be made jointly by the judges.

Heretofore, the custom has been for the election judges of the two parties to separate the ballots and make their own counts.

MEXICO TO PAY IN OIL FOR SEIZED PROPERTIES

Cardenas Declares Country Is Pledged to Indemnify Companies in 10 Years.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., July 20.—President Lazaro Cardenas told foreign newspaper correspondents last night that Mexico was pledged to pay within 10 years—in oil—for foreign oil properties expropriated March 18.

In an hour's informal conversation with newspaper men, in which the President replied to almost every question put to him, with nothing "off the record," Cardenas said inventory of the properties of the 17 companies had been completed.

The valuation would be fixed, with or without assistance of the companies, within two months and the amount of indemnification stated, he added.

Not only petroleum from the expropriated wells, but also production from fields previously owned by the Government will be available for paying the companies, he said.

Heretofore the companies, valuing their expropriated properties at $400,000,000, have refused to accept indemnification in oil.

The President said Mexico had no objections to renewing "without conditions" diplomatic relations with Great Britain, broken off in May as a result of expropriation.

Despite reports, he declared, the United States had "delivered no written note" protesting the seizure.

Other statements made by the President included:

Mining properties, largely controlled by United States capital, stood in no danger of expropriation.

Government revenues, despite a current business recession, were holding up and matching estimates.

The Government was not yet prepared to attempt to peg the peso, now ranging close to 5 pesos to the dollar.

Rural Mail Box Clean-up Week.

Patrons on 13 rural free delivery routes in the St. Louis area will be asked by carriers to replace unserviceable and unsightly rural mail boxes as part of a "clean-up rural box week," set by the Post-office Department for Aug. 1 to 7. Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson said properly placed boxes of a type conforming to regulations will contribute to improved service.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

In Behalf of Judge Tighe.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I FEEL that it should be of decided interest to the voters of St. Louis County to have placed before them a few of the outstanding accomplishments of Associate Judge Eugene Tighe.

As chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Cost of County Government, I am in position to speak authoritatively on this subject. When Judge Tighe took office, on Jan. 1, 1935, he stepped into a sordid mess, replete with alarming possibilities. There was no efficient budget control. Obligations were incurred freely by various officials, without any thought whatever as to where the money was coming from to pay such obligations. Approximately 30 county departments purchased their own supplies. Over $300,000 of school loan funds were in a tangled condition, with interest, taxes and principal far in arrears on many of the loans.

No check had been made of the patients in county institutions, and bills incidental to the keep of such patients aggregating thousands of dollars were approved without question. The County Hospital was regarded as an institution solely for the benefit of politicians, and the cost of operating it exceeded $200,000 a year. Hundreds of saloons operated without a county license. Exorbitant sums were paid to the Sheriff for feeding the prisoners in the county jail. No accounting whatever had been made indicating how the several funds were spent.

Judge Tighe had made certain representations to his constituents, all of which meant that he would honestly work in the interest of St. Louis County, and to that end he co-operated fully with the Cost of Government Committee to work out a plan to straighten out county affairs and reduce the cost of operation.

During the great fight to eliminate the County Hospital from the control of politics, Judge Tighe had to fight continuously both of his fellow Judges, until finally, with the support of public opinion, the election of 1936 changed the personnel of the County Court. Judge Tighe fought and won, with the result that St. Louis County may be proud of its hospital, which since Jan. 1, 1937, has been in charge of a most efficient hospital administrator and a staff, free from any semblance of political control.

Many other reforms have been brought about in St. Louis County through the direct effort of the County Court, and always out in front, fighting for the county interests, was to be found Judge Tighe.

I most warmly suggest to the voters of St. Louis County that it would be a great loss to the community should they fail to nominate Judge Tighe for the office of Presiding Judge of St. Louis County. M. C. BAY.

Paging Mr. O'Malley.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHERE is Emmett O'Malley in this Douglas-Billings contest? He used to have something to say on every issue, and you would think he would be on the stump right now. There are a lot of us who would like to hear from Mr. O'Malley. Has somebody muzzled him?

WILLIAM R. NELSON.

Germany vs. Japan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MAY I differ with part of your editorial entitled "Japan Drops the Olympics"? You say, "Repressive as Hitler's Nazi-ism has been, it has not waged war on a peace-loving neighbor and killed its civilians by the thousands, as Japan has done."

There certainly can be no defense for Japan in its vicious and unprovoked attack upon China. But, at least, China has some implements of defense and it has many times the population of Japan. It seems more merciful than Germany's tormenting of masses of utterly defenseless people, whom she will ultimately throw out. And, too, Germany really wanted to wage a war on a peace-loving neighbor, Czechoslovakia, but Hitler suddenly was attacked with cold feet when they pointed a gun right back at him. The only difference between Japan and Germany seems to be that the former is more willing to take a chance and the latter more cowardly. BALANCER.

How Long?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WONDER how long the city administration is going to permit the condemned Laclede Pavilion, at the Kings-highway-Lindell entrance to Forest Park, to remain an eyesore, with its plastering of "Danger," "Condemned," signs and red lanterns. Certainly, after all these months, something could have been done either to repair or wreck the building.

LACLEDE.

Crisis of Shaw's Garden.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE recent announcement by Director George T. Moore that our beloved Shaw's Garden is in desperate need of funds must have come as a shock to most St. Louisans. That an institution whose sole reason for existence is to serve the public should be in danger of being taxed out of that existence is too ridiculous for belief.

Mayor Dickmann could do much to increase his prestige if he took this project under his wing. There need be no fear of setting a precedent, for Shaw's Garden is a unique institution.

HORTUS.

"THE BREAD OF GODS."

It is something pretty fine to make the world's pulse beat faster, to put a smile on the world's face, to set everybody to talking with shining eyes.

That is what Douglas Corrigan did.

A day or two ago he was an unknown mechanic, puttering around in the vagabondia of aviation, owner of a tramp plane, good-naturedly refused permission to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight in his senile crate.

Today, Prime Minister Eamon de Valera hurries from a Cabinet meeting to extend a cordial welcome and assure him he is the honored guest of Eire as long as he chooses to remain.

Today, London papers subordinate King George and the royal visit to France and give news priority to the hero of the "epic error."

Today, New York starts preparing a reception, which, however planned, will ring with spontaneity and genuine affection.

The gradgrinds, to be sure, we have always with us. From their prosy viewpoint, it was a wild-goose stunt which contributed nothing to the art of flying or the science of aeronautics.

The gradgrinds are literally right. Spiritually, they are pitifully wrong. Man cannot live by bread alone. Now and then he has got to have a helping of ambrosia. If he didn't, Olympus would presently vanish from his horizon, and the flambeaux that light the archways from time to eternity would sputter out and darkness would shroud the skies. "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

Corrigan is a dreamer, and "the dreamer lives forever." The boy is a poet whose medium is the startling cadences of action. There's a Byronic beauty in the contour of his head. There is the flame of will and high purpose in his brow. In him, too, has been revealed that old-fashioned virtue of thrift, which has ever been the golden badge of character.

We read about his breakfasting on a glass of water, eating a chocolate bar for lunch, for supper a sandwich. The funds were low, and it takes a lot of gasoline to soar from New York to California by way of Ireland, with a jammed compass. In such circumstances the diet has to be watched. Chesterton understood that:

It is something to have smelt the mystic rose,
Although it break and leave the thorny rods.
It is something to have hungered once as those Must hunger who would eat the bread of gods.

The bread of gods—that's the collation this California youth has spread before us all.

CANADA, BEWARE!

It's a shame. For more than 100 years the two countries have been on friendly terms. Oh, there has been an occasional spat, a flaring up of temper, but it has always ended in a handshake. Now, it seems, an "incident" has occurred. An "incident," that euphemistic phrase of diplomats, preceded the World War; an "incident" was the overture to the Ethiopian conquest; an "incident" started the Japanese invasion of China.

May we expect an exchange of bellicose notes? An ultimatum? A rush of troops to the border? Are the people of these two countries, so traditionally friendly, to begin to hate each other? Maybe not. But if Ludger Richard of Escourt, Quebec, continues to let his eight cows wander across the border to graze on the sacred sod of the sovereign State of Maine, in violation of the cattle laws—which is the incident referred to—then, by Jiminy, let Canada beware.

THE NEW WATERFOWL REGULATIONS.

Relaxation of the severe restrictions on waterfowl hunting of the past few years was foreshadowed last April, when the Bureau of Biological Survey published the results of its study of the waterfowl situation in 1937-38. The study embraced conditions in Canada and Mexico, as well as in the United States, and was conducted by Government biologists, with the aid of carefully selected observers. In its conclusion, the bureau said:

> As a result of restrictive regulations upon the legal kill, increased educational efforts, better law enforcement and improvement of habitat, both naturally and artificially, coupled with a splendid spirit of co-operation upon the part of the great majority of duck hunters of the country, the migratory waterfowl have made satisfactory gains in their numerical status in the 12-month period under consideration.

Of particular interest to this section of the country was the observation of improved conditions along the Mississippi flyway. "During the week of Dec. 13," says the report, "it was estimated that no fewer than 850,000 ducks, chiefly mallards, were gathered on the White River migratory waterfowl refuge in Arkansas. While it was impossible, because of the flood conditions that then prevailed, to make valid comparisons with the number gathered there last year, some observers have estimated as high as a 22 per cent increase. Similarly, on the great marshes around the Mississippi Delta . . . the winter concentration has been most gratifying."

This is the explanation for extending the open season from 30 to 45 days, and for raising the possession limit from 10 ducks to 20. The new regulations continue the prohibition against baiting waterfowl and the use of more than three shells in automatic shotguns. One of the surprising points is that the ban on canvasback, redhead, ruddy and bufflehead ducks, which have been fully protected, has been lifted, so that three of one of these species, or three in the aggregate of the species, may be shot in one day. This indicates that, even among species over which much concern has been felt, there has been striking improvement.

In Missouri and Illinois, the season this year will run from Oct. 15 to Nov. 28. Moving up the season in this zone will mean little, so far as mallards are concerned, since the big flight usually arrives after Nov. 1. It does, however, mean that sportsmen hereabouts will again have a chance to shoot early ducks, such as teal.

The new regulations are a tribute to the good judgment of the Biological Survey. It is steering a course between two kinds of extremists, those who would prohibit shooting altogether and those who would lift all bars. It is adjusting its policy to actual conditions, carefully ascertained.

MOBERLY RUNS TRUE TO FORM.

Mrs. John J. Gasparotti, housewife, winner of a $10,000 prize for her first novel, "Young Doctor Galahad," is disappointed in Moberly. Sinclair Lewis told her when she was in New York recently that she would find it hard to live in Moberly after the publication of her book "because half the people would find themselves in it." Loyal to her town, Mrs. Gasparotti said Moberly was different. Now she finds it necessary to take back what she said. The latest bulletin is that "one-third of Moberly's population have called me and assured me that they recognized themselves and that they really weren't like that at all." Others even went so far as to spot themselves in the illustrations, although the artist, according to the author, has never been west of Pennsylvania. And what does it prove? Merely that Moberly is America and that its people are like people the country over. That and the fact that Mrs. Gasparotti, however set apart among writers by her prize, must suffer the slings and arrows that are the lot of her craft, Jane Austens and all.

FREIGHT RATES AND SOUTHERN LABOR LAWS.

Gov. Lehman of New York, Gov. Townsend of Indiana and Gov. Quinn of Rhode Island all have appeared at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing at Buffalo, at which Northern industrialists presented their case against abolition of the freight rate differential on Southern shipments.

The New York Governor said the consequences would be "serious" and that "before it is given effect, even in part," the proposal should be explored "most thoroughly." The Rhode Island executive declared an adjustment in freight rates would result in a "dislocation of industry" and "destruction of enormous capital investment." The Governor of Indiana took a frank stand against "further advantage" for Southern manufacturers, declaring that in the last 10 years the total value of Indiana's factory products had fallen 28 per cent, largely because of the migration of industry to the South. This southward movement of industry was due in part, he said, to lower wages paid Southern factory workers.

The desire of Governors of states which lie inside the "official" rate territory to retain their industries is not only understandable but entirely praiseworthy. No man would make a suitable Governor who did not want his state not only to hold its own but to push forward. But this precisely is the crux of the matter. The ambitions of all states and all sections are involved, and since they are component parts of a union, they should be treated fairly on an equal basis. It is manifest that a condition of fairness does not exist when a freight differential establishes what to all practical purposes is an internal tariff, favorable to one section of the country and unfavorable to others.

As for Gov. Townsend's argument of lower wages in the South, it will have far less point when the new wage-hour law takes effect. For when it goes into operation, the minimums in industries affecting interstate commerce will be the same the country over. Meanwhile, North Carolina is enacting labor laws which set an example for the North as well as for the South. This progressive State—in state education North Carolina needs to take its hat off to none as an upholder of freedom and scholarly tradition—is now celebrating the first anniversary of a group of labor statutes of unusual quality. These laws prohibit the employment of children under 16 and give the State Labor Commissioner authority to designate "hazardous occupations," in which minors with working permits may not be employed. They limit the working week for both men and women.

But Maj. A. L. Fletcher, forward-looking State Labor Commissioner, is not satisfied. When the North Carolina Legislature meets next year, he will have improvements ready for adoption. He wants State legislation to match the new Federal wage-hour law, so workers in interstate and intrastate employment will be on the same basis. He wants a wage payment and collection law as an "opening wedge" against company stores. He wants an apprentice-training statute. And, judging from Maj. Fletcher's eminently successful relations with the North Carolina Legislature, the improvements will be coming along.

What North Carolina is doing, other Southern states will be doing. The spectacle of a continuously substandard South is in for notable revision in the next few years.

THE MERAMEC RIVER.

Recent drownings and narrow escapes from drowning in the Meramec River have focused new attention on this picturesque stream.

Essentially, the hazards have not changed. The Meramec is safe enough for cautious, experienced swimmers. It is not the place for the novice to venture, except within limits at certain beaches, nor is it a haven for the foolhardy.

There is a current in the Meramec—not an undertow. There are eddies—not whirlpools. The bottom is irregular and perhaps the greatest danger lurks in the deep, unseen holes left by gravel and sand dredges, and in the natural stepoffs. All too often, an inexpert swimmer has stepped by accident into a dredge hole and lost his head, instead of closing his mouth and calmly paddling with the current toward shore. Some swimmers forget that deep, swift water usually is found opposite beaches. Many another tragedy has been the result of entering the water too soon after heavy indulgence in food or drink or, perhaps, when the body was overheated. Untrained or foolish handling of canoes and deliberate negligence in operation of motorboats constitute other hazards.

Yet the stream remains an inviting place for those who would enjoy it wisely. The day may yet come when it will be developed into a safer and even more attractive summer recreational center.

MUNICIPAL BRIDGE DELAYS.

A good time was had by all Sunday night on the Municipal Bridge—except by several hundred motorists, truck drivers and bus operators, who were delayed for more than an hour while policemen and more or less helpful volunteers rounded up a load of hogs and cattle which had been dumped when a truck was wrecked. There was more delay while the truck was hauled away. Such delays on the bridge are becoming increasingly frequent.

The accidents themselves may be unavoidable in most instances, owing to the tortuous approaches to the bridge and the heavy traffic, but the delays in many instances are not. Almost without exception, they are due to the absence of some system of signaling cars to stay off the bridge until the wreckage can be removed and the vehicles on the span at the time of the accident can be routed through.

All that is needed is a red traffic light at each end, with control buttons to be operated by the bridge guards. The bridge is designed for only three lanes of traffic—one each way and a passing lane. Sunday night, within 10 minutes, two lanes of cars were lined up the length of the bridge, on each side of the accident, not only making a traffic impasse but delaying the arrival of wrecking cars and police reserves. Had the latter been able to reach the scene promptly, the whole mess probably could have been cleaned up in 15 minutes.

THE SPIRIT OF DOUGLAS CORRIGAN.

A "Freshman" Learns About Congress

Most of the criticism directed at Congressman is unfounded, declares man who left business career for politics; finds colleagues hard-working, well-informed and not cowards; says trouble is with constituents who judge their Representative "not by what he can give nation but by what he can get out of Treasury for his own district."

Representative Bruce Barton in Redbook Magazine.

IN the business circle where most of my adult life has been passed, these disparaging comments on Congress are rather freely tossed about:

Congress is made up of second-rate politicians who couldn't possibly earn $10,000 a year anywhere else.

Congressmen are nothing more than messenger boys for their individual districts. Congressmen enjoy a lot of legal rackets—stationery fund, secretarial help and travel allowance at the rate of 20 cents a mile. Congressmen are lazy. They work about two hours a day. When you go into the gallery of the House of Representatives, you find only 50 or 100 members on the floor. Many of these are talking, reading newspapers or asleep, paying no attention to the speaker.

Congressmen are cowards. They don't vote their real convictions. They drank wet and voted dry; if they voted on the floor the way they talk in the cloakrooms, we would have a different Government. There are too many lawyers in Congress. Why in the world should any sane man want to be in Congress?

Now, I am a member of the House of Representatives and, answering the last question first, am proud of my membership and enjoying the experience thoroughly.

There is no standardized pattern for Congressmen. Looking down from the gallery, you see a cross-section of the American public, made up of five women and all sorts and conditions of men.

Unless a man likes people, a Congressman's life must be a continuous weariness and annoyance. One is never free. I have remarked that the trouble with public life is that it is too public. Certainly the people who voted for you feel that they have a right to call, telephone or wire at any time. You go home from Washington to find your waiting room full of men and women.

A Congressman is paid $10,000 a year. He is allowed $5000 more for clerk hire, but not more than $3900 of this may be paid to any one individual.

What does the Congressman do with these princely amounts? In most cases he is a family man, which means that he must bring his wife and children to Washington or keep his house open at home.

Then he has to put aside from one-tenth to one-half of his salary for the expenses of re-election. Finally, there are the multitude of contributions, donations, loans to constituents and chip-ins to the organization which have a way of bobbing up week after week.

It is said in Washington that 75 per cent of the members of Congress are wholly dependent on their salaries for their living. Certain it is that a majority live in one or two rooms in modest hotels, and are very careful about their personal expenditures. The law business, which they left behind, dries up in their absence; the clients who want their personal service are not satisfied with the attentions of the representative left in charge. The Congressman finds himself poorer at the end of every session. If and when the time comes that a younger man rises up in the district to defeat him, the veteran usually goes down sans job, sans savings, sans everything.

I was surprised to find how hard Congressmen work. Not all Congressmen, to be sure. A man can do as much or as little work as he elects. Some men are washed in on a political tide, and washed out again without leaving any trace. But the men who stay in Congress session after session manage it only by the process of hard and diligent application.

By and large, I should say that Congressmen work longer hours than most business executives. Mail is delivered in the Senate and House office buildings every day, including Sundays and holidays, and averages from 100 to 500 letters per day. On the reorganization bill, I received over 4000 letters and telegrams in one week! Often there are lights in the office windows until after midnight. Sunday afternoon is regarded as a good time to "catch up" with reading.

I was surprised to discover how much Congressmen know. No newcomer, however wise or experienced, can possibly have much influence in either house his first term. When a navy bill, for example, comes to the floor, it is debated by men who have been on the Naval Affairs Committee for five, 10 or 20 years; a tax bill comes from a Ways and Means Committee whose veteran members have framed and debated a dozen tax measures. The amount of accurate, detailed history and knowledge displayed in a day's debate is really impressive.

I was surprised to discover how little difference there is between Republicans and Democrats. Each party includes within its own ranks men of different economic faiths—radicals and conservatives. Seldom does an important vote divide the House along purely party lines; nearly every crucial vote cuts right across. The problems of today are not political, but economic.

As to the courage of Congressmen, they are about as brave on the average and about as cowardly as men in any other walk of life. Certainly 95 per cent of the members of Congress want to do what is best for the people of the United States. Given a reasonable chance for free play, they will make the right decisions. The trouble is not with them, but with the people back home.

The American voters have formed the habit of judging a Representative not by what he can give to the nation, but by what he can get out of the public Treasury for his own district. In their hearts, Congressmen hate this, but the voters insist. They organize themselves into minority pressure groups and enforce their demands with the threat of defeat at the polls.

The cure for the faults of Congress may be, in part, better Congressmen—though I am frank to say I like them and have a genuine respect for them just as they are. But the deeper and only permanent cure is a change of heart in the American people, a spiritual revival which will give us the same sort of patriotism we had during the World War, when we forgot all about getting from the Government and asked ourselves only: "What can I give?"

ANOTHER LAW WE NEED.

Let's have one more law: A provision under which voters may sue a successful candidate for breach of promises.

Offsets Against the 40 Billions

From Editorial Research Reports.

THE Federal deficit for the year just begun is now estimated by President Roosevelt at almost four billion dollars. Of this, perhaps two billions is represented by contemplated loans—from the Reconstruction Finance Housing Authority, Rural Electrification Administration, Government agricultural agencies. But it is hardly likely that the great majority of these loans will ever be fully realized on. The keynote of the pump-priming program is to be generosity.

The public debt at the end of the present fiscal year is now estimated at about 40½ billion dollars. Of this, some 10 billions represents assets listed as recoverable. In addition to perhaps two billions in loans this year, there are four billions in cash or the equivalent in the exchange stabilization fund and the general fund of the Treasury, and another four billions in assets now owned by the Government. Everybody recognizes that some Government loans to be made in 1938-39 and some assets now held by the Government will represent partial or total losses. And the general fund is to be dipped into this year for $500,000,000. So the real offset against the indicated gross public debt of about $40,500,000,000 next June 30 should be perhaps seven or eight instead of 10 billions.

The assets owned by the Government were valued at $4,014,000,000 as of May 31, 1933. Of this sum, $1,506,000,000 was in the R F C. The remainder was distributed among several score of agencies—some financed entirely by the Government, some financed partly by the Government. At the close of the Hoover administration, assets held by the Government were valued at about $2,500,000,000.

It is impossible to generalize about all the present assets and the agencies which hold them. Some of these agencies have set up reserves against possible losses, others have not. As for the R F C, some of its paper will inevitably go "sour," but as offset the R F C has profits of over $185,000,000.

Some of the Government assets are good, but can hardly be realized on, at least for a long time. They are in the nature of a permanent or semi-permanent investment. The Government here is somewhat in the position of a man who owns a house and lives in it because he cannot sell it—he is nevertheless better off than if he didn't have it. In this category belong the Government investments in Federal Land Banks and the Intermediate Credit Banks, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Panama Railroad, etc.

A large part of the agricultural commodity "loans" will not be fully realized on. They really represent straight farm relief.

During the 1936 campaign, President Roosevelt stressed the assets held by the Government. In his speech at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, on Oct. 1, 1936, as given in his recently published papers and addresses, he pointed out that under the New Deal the public debt had really increased only eight billions dollars, because against the gross increase of 13 billions the Government had taken six billions of assets.

The implication was that the assets would eventually be used to decrease the public debt. But since then, receipts from the sale of Government assets have gone to reduce the increase in the public debt, not to reduce the debt. In the fiscal year 1936, for instance, the R F C turned over to the Treasury, net, $239,000,000, and in 1937, $334,000,000.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Czechs and the Germans

PARIS, July 18.

By Wireless via New York.

BEFORE the end of this month the problem of Czechoslovakia will again be acute. For the Czechs will by that time have given out the texts of the laws and constitutional reforms which they are willing to make in order to satisfy the grievances of the German minority. The general principle of these reforms is already known, however, and unless there is a sudden and radical change of attitude in Praha or in Berlin, the Nazis will reject the reforms, the agitation will continue, and Europe will find itself in another great crisis.

How serious a crisis it is to be will depend upon what British public opinion and the British Government think about the issue. For the position of Britain is the most uncertain and the most important factor in the whole situation. There is no serious doubt about the rest of the problem. Thus it may be taken as certain that the Czechs will make many concessions, but that they will not concede the main point which the Nazis insist upon. Having just been to Praha, I do not see how anyone can have any doubt that the Czechs will not retreat beyond a certain point, and that at that point they are prepared to fight a war of annihilation if they are attacked.

Nor is there any real doubt, I think, that if the Czechs fight, the French will come to their assistance, and the best informed observers believe that Russia also will come to their assistance. It is equally certain, it would seem, that German policy will depend upon what the Germans believe the British will do. That is to say, if the British support the French and the Czechs, the Germans will almost certainly not precipitate a war; if the British stand aloof, the temptation to settle the issue by the use of force is likely to be overwhelming.

The question for British opinion and for disinterested world opinion generally will be to decide whether the solution offered by the Czech Government goes as far as it is humanly possible to go. For anyone who examines the problem of the German minority in Czechoslovakia must, I think, conclude that in principle it is now insoluble.

The essence of the problem is that the Sudeten Germans have real grievances, but that the remedy which they are now asking would destroy not only Czechoslovakia, but would dismember and disrupt every state where there is a German population. The problem is tragic because the just grievances of the Germans outside the frontiers of the Reich cannot be remedied in terms of the Nazi philosophy. The mixed populations of Central Europe can find no basis of peace because the Nazis reject the principle of equal rights.

The Germans of Czechoslovakia are somewhat less than a quarter of the whole population, and there is no doubt that they have been discriminated against. They have not equal opportunity in the Government service; they have just grievances about schools, language, and perhaps about the allocation of public funds.

But this is not their fundamental grievance. Their fundamental grievance is that they are a minority, that, though they are Germans, they must live as citizens of a state named, after the two dominant nationalities, the Czechoslovak Republic. This is as if, instead of calling ourselves the United States of America, we had called ourselves New England, thus permanently marking the Dutch, Swedish, German, Irish inhabitants as a separate and inferior kind of citizen. No concessions about "minority rights" would ever satisfy them.

The real solution of the problem of Czechoslovakia would call for the creation of a new state, which, like Switzerland or the United States, would not recognize that there was such a thing as a dominant and a minority nationality within it.

But such a solution is impossible where the German minority is Nazi. For as Nazis the Germans reject the idea of equal rights for all citizens of a state. They insist that as a minority they shall have absolute authority in a particular region, that within that region they may establish a dictatorship, that under that dictatorship they may suppress all German and Czech opposition, and that in the conduct of the central government they may act as representatives of an outside Power—namely, Germany. It is this that makes impossible a radical reconstruction of the Czechoslovak Republic.

For the only possible solution would be to follow the Swiss model, which is to decentralize power among the nationalities, or to follow the American model, which is to give equal rights to all individuals. Both solutions presuppose a common acceptance of the democratic principle. And this principle the Nazis reject root and branch.

Because they reject it, the democratic nations of the west are unable to ask the Czechs to make a radical solution of their problem. They cannot in the name of democracy and the idea of equal rights ask the Czechs to agree to the establishment of a Nazi dictatorship under orders from Berlin within the boundaries of their state. And because they cannot ask that, they are prevented from pressing the Czechs to do what will eventually have to be done if there is ever to be peace in that part of the world.

The best, therefore, that one can hope for at the present time is concessions by the Czechs to the Germans which would be just if granted to any other national minority. There ought not to be any minority. There ought to be only equal citizens of a state. But that solution is Utopian in a time when nationalism is so inflamed that it repudiates the principle of equal rights and the very notion that men must live and let live.

C. ARTHUR ANDERSON DEFENDS FIRST WAGE-HOUR BILL VOTE

Congressman Declares Measure Was Faulty; Supported One Finally Passed.

Congressman C. Arthur Anderson took cognizance last night, in a speech before the Twenty-eighth Ward Democratic Club at the Hamilton Hotel, of the fact that he has been "bitterly criticised" for having voted against the first wage-hour bill in Congress last autumn and declared the bill was faulty. He voted for the second wage-hour bill, which was passed.

"I voted against the first wage-hour bill," he said, "because it would have permitted industries in the South to escape the burdens of the law, whereas industry here and in the North would have to assume the burden of the wage-hour law. Can you see now what might have happened? Our industries would have had to move to the South, where lower wage scales could be paid. The working people of this city would have lost their jobs or would have had to migrate to the South to work for starvation wages."

Congressman Anderson also said he had been "specifically and definitely" asked by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to vote against the bill. Anderson is seeking renomination.

Cavalry Officers Stand Guard in Palace as Weeping Peasants View Body.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, July 20.—King Carol and his young brother, Nicholas, reconciled at least temporarily by the death of their mother, the Dowager Queen Marie, attended mass together today at Sinaia with other members of the royal family.

Nicholas, shorn of his title and in exile since April 26, 1937, for marrying a commoner, was summoned by the King yesterday to attend the funeral. He was warned, however, that he must leave Rumania immediately after the ceremonies Sunday.

The brothers dined together last night. It was their first meeting since Nicholas was exiled.

Foreign delegations which will come for the funeral include Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia, the Duke and Duchess of Kent, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Germany.

All dyers in Rumania are busy turning out dark lilac linen for draperies in compliance with Queen Marie's last wish that that be the color of mourning instead of black.

The train which will take the Queen's body to Kurtea de Argesch for the funeral will be painted dark lilac.

Thousands of weeping peasants entered the royal palace of Pelesch at Sinaia today to file past the catafalque of the dowager Queen

Tall candles lighted the flower-banked bier, and their rays glinted off the drawn sabers of cavalry officers standing guard.

A bouquet of white lilies rested in the Queen's hands. She was dressed in a white velvet dress with Chantilly lace.

The Queen, who died Monday at 62 of a rare liver ailment, requested in letters opened yesterday that her heart be buried at Balcic, her favorite resort on the Black Sea. The rest of her body will be placed in the palace of Kurtea de Argesch beside that of her husband, King Ferdinand, who died 11 years ago. Burial will be Sunday.

SUNDARY RAILS UP IN BOND LIST

ustrials and Utilities Are Mixed and Tend to Weaken Before Close.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 20.—Despite a flurry of late selling, numerous sections of rails closed in the bond market today substantial fractions of a point or more higher.

Although many in the corporate division closed higher for the day, industrials and utilities were mixed, and tended to weaken before the close.

The foreign dollar list was steady. U. S. Governments were easier, closing despite a mild late rally, with declines down to 7-32.

Moving picture company liens showed on news of an administration anti-monopoly campaign in the field, but rallied some at the close. Warner Brothers 6s, once down 4 points, closed 1⅛ lower at 47.

Total sales ending the day with a loss of a point or more included:

Ala Pwr 5s of '62 at 45;	New York Central 4½s at 65⅜;
Nickel Plate 4½s at 85½;	and Southern Pacific 4½s at 91½;
Santa Fe adjustment 4s closed 10 points to 90.	Missouri Pacific 5s of '77 "F" certificates up 1¼ at 20¼.
International Hydro-Electric 6s	Western Union 5s of '60 each closed more than a point.

Among the foreign list, German 7s were unchanged despite considerable turnover. Japan 6½s were up 2 at 72½. Lower Austrian Hydro Electric Power 6½s of '44, last traded in Feb. 17 at 98½, sold today at 21 down 76½ points.

BOND NOTES.
By the Associated Press.
YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 20.—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. today called a special shareholders' meeting for Aug. 30 to consider a proposal to waive for one year preemptive rights on 500,000 shares of common stock preparatory to raising new capital.

In the form of the proposed new issue has not yet been definitely decided upon, the company's letter calling the meeting said, it probably would be offered through issuance of convertible debentures and would total $30,000,000.

Proceeds would be used to retire bank loans and make further improvements, especially at the Indiana Harbor plant.

CONFUSION IN STOCK PRICE MOVEMENTS; CLOSE MIXED

Government's Court Action to Enforce Separation of the Production and Exhibition Ends of Movie Industry Brings About One Setback.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The broad upward sweep of the stock market gave way today to shifting buying and selling tides, high-lighted by a sharp decline in movie shares immediately following court action by the Federal Government to divorce theater ownership from film production.

From industrials, leadership on the upside was switched to rails and utilities while scattered individual issues in other groups were brought up from the rear to enjoy brief moments of popularity.

The result was much surface confusion and a highly scrambled list of losses and gains. Declines at the extreme ran to 2 or 3 points, offset by advances of as much in the carrier and power groups and among the rugged performers, which continued to move ahead.

While not so heavy as in yesterday's big market, transactions totaled 2,509,440 shares, with the ticker several times overtaxed by the trading.

Power Shares to Front.

Beset by renewed profit-taking, following yesterday's upsurge to new peaks for the summer bull movement, the market encountered an early setback. It was moving ahead again when the break in movie shares precipitated general selling but it steadied in the afternoon behind the upturn in the power issues.

Substantial gains in secondary rail bonds imparted an appearance of strength to the investment market. Most speculative commodities reacted with stocks on the selling waves, especially rubber and hides.

Wheat at Chicago dipped ⅝ to 1c a bushel and corn closed ⅛ to ¾ down. Cotton near the finish was about 25c a bale lower.

Under the early selling impact, Loew's broke 4, later recovering part of the decline. Down a point or more at the worst were Paramount, Warner Brothers, Twentieth Century-Fox.

Leading the advance in the rails and utilities were such shares as New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, North American, Consolidated Edison and Electric Power and Light. Other strong spots were U. S. Gypsum, National Supply, National Distillers and International Paper preferred.

Among the Losers.

Losing part of their gains of the preceding session were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, International Nickel, International Harvester and Union Carbide. On the Curb, moderate losses in Aluminum, American Cyanamid and Chicago Flexible Shaft were mixed with gains in American Gas and Electric, Creole Petroleum and Electric Bond and Share.

Quickening speculative interest in power shares was a report the S E C had an impending announcement on a utility matter.

At mid-afternoon the British pound was up ½ of a cent at $4.92½. The French franc was .00¼ of a cent higher at 2.76¼c.

Switch to Rails.

Forecasts of further expansion in residential building kept construction supply issues in the speculative limelight.

While mayn analysts continued to question the ability of the market to carry on its advance without more extensive business improvement than has been evident lately, the action of leaders in pushing through the early July resistance points yesterday served to bring in new buyers. The opening again saw a sizable accumulation of orders overnight, attracted by the advance to new peaks.

Mid-Week Industrial Review.

The weekly report on electric power production showed a better-than-seasonal increase. The year-to-year loss in output dropped from 10.3 to 9.1 per cent, the smallest lag in several months.

Despite the rise in steel production the last two weeks from around 22 to 36 per cent of capacity, the "Iron Age" said steel buyers for the most part still were cautious and refused to be "stampeded by intimations that partial restoration of price cuts must come if wages are not reduced."

The wage question, it noted, remained the dominant question in the determination of steel markets and earnings of producers.

A further rise in the open-market price of gold at London drew attention to the recent downtrends in foreign trade and a recession in British industry. Whether domestic markets were insulated from the foreign trends was a topic of discussion among Wall street analysts.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 20.—Strength in European bonds and the continued rise in Wall Street, impressed traders favorably in the stock market here. The improved European political outlook was also a factor and prices closed near the top despite some profit-taking. German bonds gained three points and rubbers, tobaccos, rayon and electrical equipment shares were leaders in the upturn. Trans-Atlantic securities closed with gains of fractions to more than three points and home rails, oils and mining issues held steady. British funds closed slightly easier.

PARIS, July 20.—The Bourse closed with a steady tone although trading was quiet. Rentes moved up 10 to 35 centimes and Bank of France was about unchanged. Suez Canal continued weak and lost almost 400 francs while Royal Dutch was down 50 francs. The industrial section was slightly lower at the finish.

LIVERPOOL, July 20.—After opening higher on firmer American offers and steadiness at Buenos Aires, wheat futures eased owning to continued poor demand and closed ½d lower to ½d up.

Cotton futures lose 2 to 6 points due to increased hedge selling. Some buying took place early being influenced by the firmness in Wall Street.

DAILY MAGAZINE

ON BROADWAY with Walter Winchell

Today's Guest Columnist for Walter Winchell is Dorothy Kilgallen, newspaperwoman and author.

SOMETIMES I wonder why the movies make reporters seem to lead such dull lives. Cinema journalists spend their days in pressrooms, courtrooms and barrooms, they hide in dark corners, climb fire escapes, chastise the editor, outwit murderers and slug each other. They associate exclusively with gunmen. And they never have to write stories. Sometimes in the case of a boy reporter and a girl reporter they fall in love with each other, but they are too busy climbing fire escapes and outwitting murderers to do anything about it.

DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Now I have been a reporter for seven years, since I was 17, and my life has not been at all like that. I wonder where the movies get their ideas? I've never outwitted a murderer, chastised an editor or got a story from a bartender. If I had to spend my time in dark corners or in pressrooms (practically the same thing), I'd quit.

I'm glad I'm not a movie heroine. They don't get around. In real life, we do. We have box seats to the big events, aisle seats to adventure. We watch the men pulling the strings at the puppet show. We make little undecipherable notes with black pencils on folded paper; we record drama and some laughter and some tragedy; we put down what men do and what men say, and people buy this a little while later for three cents on their way to the subway. We are casual historians—historians for straphangers.

I like being where things happen. I liked being in a little courtroom in Flemington when the criminal-of-the-century took the witness stand; I like riding taxis in Calcutta; I liked sitting in Westminster Abbey while high sweet trumpet-song heralded the new King; it was fun to watch Princess Elizabeth surreptitiously pinching her small sister as their father became ruler of the British Empire.

—o—o—

BECAUSE I AM a reporter, I took my first plane flight aboard the giant DO-X when I was a cub. Since then I have flown thousands of miles in the line of duty. If I have not covered stories via fire escapes, I have covered them by ship, train, plane, dirigible, motor car, sand-sleigh and bicycle. I don't get closeups, as the cinema heroines do—but I get closeups of all kinds of people, from Barbara Hutton to "Lucky" Luciano, from Joan Crawford to President Roosevelt, from Helen Wills, Maxie Baer and Max Schmeling to J. P. Morgan.

—o—o—

I MET KURT, Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, aboard ship when he came to New York en route to Reno. He denied he was about to marry Barbara Hutton. I bet him a quarter he would. On his return trip (with his bride) he paid up, smilingly. I should have bet him another quarter it wouldn't last!

You remember funny things about people. Not the headline things, but the little things . . . When I think of Max Baer I don't think of him in the ring. I remember the night we caught fireflies and put them in bottles, while Mary, Maxie's bride then, sat on the porch and laughed . . . When I read about Juliana of Holland and her husband, I remember how gaily he danced at a costume ball at Albert Hall, in London, and how merry and witty he was—and how she sat stiffly watching him in the Royal Box, her face placid and utterly expressionless under a diamond tiara . . . I always think of grapefruit when I think of J. P. Morgan—he began and polished off every meal with it aboard the Queen Mary when he sat two tables (and how many millions!) away from me in the ship's dining room .

—o—o—

OF ALL THE personalities I've had to meet, the one who impressed me most with his brilliance, wit and quality of sheer amusement, was George Bernard Shaw. We sat before a crackling fire in Devon, while rain lashed the green country outside and the sea beat against the breakwater. Shaw reminisced. He talked of everything in the world today, and then, rather ruefully, said that his memory was becoming a strange thing—that people and events of half a century back seemed closer than yesterday. He grinned into his beard. "When stage managers call me up and ask me to suggest an actress for a role," he said, "I find myself saying, 'Why don't you get Ellen Terry? She'd be perfect!' " . . . He said he had met the Duchess of Windsor and considered her charming and a "perfect lady." He explained why the British forced the abdication rather than see her Queen. "They just couldn't bear," he said, "to be preceded into dinner by an American."

False Tears To Make Baby Mind Mother

Use of Such Tactics Places Strain on Child's Emotions.

By Angelo Patri

"BABY, don't do that."

"I want to."

"Don't do that. Mother will cry."

The baby, two and a half years old, kept on beating the pan with the spoon and mother covered her face with her hands and cried loudly. The little one's hammering slowed down, his eyes grew big and troubled. His lip trembled and he broke into loud crying, drowning out the sound of his mother's mimic anguish.

The hammering had stopped, but the weeping that took its place was scarcely more desirable. The mother had used her child's affection for her to gain obedience, and the price was a strain on the little one's emotions. That is about as bad a way to gain co-operation as can be found in a day's march.

A child's emotions should not be stirred uselessly. That puts a strain on its nerves and in time, if the practice is continued will make the child emotionally unstable. Mental health is threatened by such methods of discipline. The cure is worse than the disease. Apart from that, the mother risks her child's affection. If he learns, as he must under such a scheme, that his mother's tears are theatrical devices used to force him to meet her wishes, he will soon laugh at them, take them as part of the game and do what he can to induce his mother to play. That sets the stage for trouble.

Mothers who cry or put on a scene to force their children to their will may succeed in gaining outward compliance. The price the children pay is very high. They cannot feel free to do what they would like to do because there is the constant threat of a mother's tears, a mother's heart attack, or temper tantrum. These children are prisoners in the fullest sense of the word. Their one desire is to escape. They may be held by a sense of duty, of fear, but it is their body that is held, not their minds, not their spirits. And that is an empty offering, as such mothers learn to their grief.

A mother's sorrow over the wrong-doing of her child is one of the greatest forces for well-doing in a child's life. "I couldn't do that because it would be wrong, and if I did such a wrong it would hurt my mother," is the true expression of the right relationship between mother and child. To sham this relationship is to kill it, and with it, the strongest hold a mother has on her child's behavior.

Never make an emotional appeal of that sort to a child. It cheapens the one who makes the appeal and weakens the one to whom it is made. Don't make your love a prize to be purchased by obedience to your will. Give it freely in season and out, in good behavior and bad. Let the child know that it is unfailing and that mother's tears, if they must be shed, will be shed in private, in the bitterness of her lonely heart. Lonely because the child of its love has injured himself, not her, and left her desolate. Mother-and-child relationship is too precious to risk.

Angelo Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

AN AMERICAN WOMAN in CHINA

Agnes Smedley, Missouri Born, Tells in Book of Her Life With Red Army

By Clarissa Start

FOR months an American woman has been traveling with the Eighth Route Army in China. An extraordinary woman, Agnes Smedley, born in a Missouri log cabin, reared in a Colorado mining camp, acquainted, through her work as newspaper correspondent, with most of the world, she has found happiness with the reorganized Red Army of China, has followed its fortunes, shared its hardships and dangers, both in fighting the Japanese invaders and building a new Communist China, and she tells of these unusual experiences in a book, "China Fights Back."

AGNES SMEDLEY, DRESSED IN A CHINESE ARMY UNIFORM, AND HER "HSIAO KWEY" (LITTLE DEVIL), A COMBINATION OF PAGE, FOSTER SON AND IMP.

Agnes Smedley has witnessed battles, administered to the wounded, hidden in dugouts or lain flat on the ground as Japanese planes dropped bombs overhead. She has slept on k'angs, the low, fire-heated, and also lice-ridden mud bunks; lived on millet and rice with an occasional vegetable, crossed mountains and rivers, carrying her typewriter on her back, writing dispatches while shells burst around her.

This Chinese Eighth Route Army, characterized by her as "the swiftest army on earth," is important to the present war chiefly because it has united armies that had formerly waged war among themselves for 10 years, and also because it brings to the war new methods, methods of dealing sympathetically with the peasants, arousing them and organizing them against the superior forces of Japan.

It is with this army that Agnes Smedley has traveled on foot, on horseback, even on stretcher, while her back was injured. She has seen what no other American has seen and has been taken into the complete confidence of the Chinese, both generals and coolies, as few foreigners ever are.

Her story is naturally a biased one and she cannot report with detachment, filled as she is with a passion for the bravery of the Red Army and with zeal for their cause. Both as a participant and a partisan she tells a story of the war not on the big fronts, but in the mountains in lonely Northwest China, where bands harass the Japanese, cutting off their communication, separating them, in a kind of guerrilla warfare modernized, organizing the peasants into partisan troops as they go, educating Japanese prisoners to the fact that all workers are brothers fighting for common good.

She tells of her fierce hatred of the Japanese, when she sees the Chinese wounded, poorly cared for, without proper medical supplies, when Japanese planes bomb the beautiful old city of Taiyuan. She tells, too, of traveling through the loess country during the rains that pour down sweeping, whole hills away, awakening in a mountain cave with a mouthful of rich yellow earth, crossing uncrossable beds of loess mud, being carried over a narrow footpath left by the rains between two canyons, looking down from her stretcher to see an abyss on either side.

She tells also of the unbelievable filth and ignorance in which the Chinese peasant lives. The place, for example, where a storeful of people hooted when she refused to buy bread because flies had been caught in the dough and baked. The difficulty she had explaining germs to the soldiers as they would not believe in anything that they could not see or touch. Asking suggestions of one of the commanders, she discovered that he, too, was a bit hazy on the subject of germs. So the soldiers went on, wiping chopsticks, dishes, and their faces with the same filty, black rag, oblivious to the protection of sterilizing eating equipment.

One meets as real men leaders in the war—Chu Teh, Lin Piao, Peng Teh-hwei, Chou En-lai, and Gen. Yen, who hopes for victory through a revolt in the Japanese army, an unsubstantiated hope although diaries of Japanese soldiers are found, expressing the desire for peace and the futility of war.

One becomes acquainted with the simple peasant boys in the army, who are amazed at seeing trucks and motor cycles for the first time, overcome with the splendor of Sian, a city of a quarter of a million, filled with cheap shops. They switch the electric lights on and off testing the new marvel, make repeated trips to a hotel to gaze at the bathrooms, and stare in open-mouthed horror at a typical Hollywood love scene in "Diamond Jim," their first-motion picture.

DESPITE a lack of food, shelter, and warm clothing, during the winter weather, the morale of this Eighth Route Army seems high. They sing, marching or resting, sing The Internationale, The Marseillaise, love songs, war songs, folk songs, in every language possible in such a mingling of people—English, French, German, Japanese, and such unfamiliar Chinese dialects as Szechwan and Klangsi.

Everywhere there is apparent confidence in this army, everywhere expressions to the effect that if the entire army of China were like the Eighth Route Army, China would defeat Japan easily.

Of the army, Agnes Smedley herself says, "I am deeply convinced that the principles embodied in the heart of the Eighth Route Army are the principles that will guide and save China." And later, "This conviction in my mind and heart gives me the greatest peace that I have ever known."

For, although she says she has felt like an onlooker, not really knowing the depth of the Chinese struggle for liberation, she calls those days with the barefoot army the happiest days of her life. She is impervious to the fact that the army is always "in the shadow of death." She writes, "Since one must die, I am at peace here."

And again, when Commander Chu Teh asks her to return to Hankow rather than go on a new and more dangerous campaign with the army, she begs to stay and tells him, "Here alone I have found peace in mind and spirit." When she does leave to return to Hankow it is with the hope that she can continue to work there.

Verbal Thanks For "Get Well" Cards Suffice

Personal Notes Are Unnecessary — An Unusual Request.

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: Does the receipt of "Get Well" cards necessitate a personal thank you note? During the recent illness I had I received dozens of very diverting cards with messages of encouragement and wishes for my quick recovery. Many of them were from people I don't know personally, but who are good friends of other members of my family, and I think a word of thanks from the member of my family who happens to be the friend should be sufficient. To write each of these people a personal note suggests a rather staggering undertaking, especially for one who does not feel too energetic as yet.

Answer: No, it is not necessary to write thank you notes for "Get Well" cards. As you happen to see these people, thank them verbally. Until you do, the members of your family who are their friends can say how much you appreciated their messages. Some time perhaps you can send them a return card on their birthday or other particular day. I agree with you that such cards are very delighting, often really helpfully cheering to receive, but that having to sit down and write a whole note of thanks for them would take away much of their charm for most of us.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have just received an invitation from an educational association requesting the pleasure of my company at dinner and announcing a noted personage as the speaker of the evening. At the lower left of this card is a request that I either accept or regret before a certain date. Inclosed in the envelope with this larger card of invitation is a small card reading, "Please reserve .... places at so much a plate" and place where I am to sign my name. If I could go I imagine that sending this card back with the number of places I wish reserved filled in, and my name, would be sufficient, but I cannot go and don't know how to send regrets. Ordinarily, I would have paid no attention to such an invitation under the circumstances, but it specifically requests acceptance or regret. Will you please tell me what I am supposed to write?

Answer: You are quite right. Such an invitation does not usually require an answer. But since they have asked for one, then either write a formal third person regret, that Mrs. So and So will be unable to be present on such and such an evening, or merely write under your name on your visiting card, "Cannot be present at dinner July 10." The reason why they ask for a refusal as well as an acceptance is probably that they wish to send invitations to a few additional people, for whom there will be no room if all those on the original list invited accept. Therefore, as soon as you send in your regret they will be able to send out an invitation to fill your vacancy. At least, this is the only reason I can think of for asking for notes of regret.

Cook-Coos -o- By Ted Cook

Colossus B. Hamhock, wealthy movie magnate, will move his gigantic studios to Virginia City, Nev., so production problems will not annoy him now that he has decided to go in for horse racing in a supercolossal way. Hamhock, after attending his first race at the new Hollywood Turf track, returned to his offices and started pressing push buttons as though he was writing on a typewriter. In less than 30 seconds he had instructed his talent scouts to sign War Admiral to a contract of sale at any price and purchase a 100,000-acre breeding farm. In order to gain a quick and conspicuous position on his turf, Hamhock announced he would insist on having his horses ridden by the biggest jockeys.

"They must be colossal," he said.

His staff of yes-men are a little frightened for fear Hamhock will discover the size of Percherons and insist on training them for the turf.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler was engaged by Hollywood turf enthusiasts to lead a legal fight to force the State of California to permit them to conduct racing, winter and summer.

Too bad Statesman Wheeler cannot be engaged to lead a fight to convince Hollywood turf enthusiasts that they ought to spend less time trying to improve the breed of running horses and more time trying to improve the breed of motion pictures.

Ring those bells, ring those bells,
Ring them all the day,
Oh, what fun it is to ring,
Then hear the housewife say:
"Get tha deuce! get tha deuce!
Out of here, and stay,
We want no books, no socks, no tea,
So please be on your way."

Push those bells, push those bells,
So merrily and gay,
It would be fun to make a sale,
In a pre-recessionistic way,
So ring more bells, ring more bells,
A thousand every day,
To make no sales still means a job—

EXTRAVAGANT leanings balance of this week; be fair, but a little cautious. Today: tendency during daylight hours to up stakes and away in just any direction, mentally and emotionally; hold it. Evening: don't decide, postpone.

What's Behind Action?

If the principle of action, as revealed by Mars, were the only factor in our lives, there would be no right and wrong. Everything would then be on the level of externals, with no mind or love behind it. But there are other principles, as we all know, that are working in our natures all the time, directing and modifying our action impulses, often being the causes of them.

PENORUB

Along the Potomac By HARLAN MILLER.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 19, 1938.

IF Presidents are to go gallivanting across the land, a special train ought to be designed for it. Not that the one on which we have just spent nine days is uncomfortable. But after nine days and nights, it's possible to suggest a few improvements.

"A SPECIAL TRAIN FOR PRESIDENTS."

It could be built for less than a submarine. If it were in constant use, the citizens would get much more fun out of it. When the President didn't need it, other celebrities could be sent out to jolt the patriots out of their lethargy and give them a shot in the arm.

—o—o—

INEVITABLY, the first innovation that pops into my mind for summer safaris from the White House is a gondola car filled with water for use as a swimming pool. (In winter it could be used for skating.)

And a flat car enclosed by a glass wall could be used as an outdoor sun terrace, equipped with small tables, sun parasols and maybe a few inches of sand, to give a subdued cabana effect. Here the entourage could come to get rid of claustrophobia or stateroom jitters.

—o—o—

NINE DAYS without physical exercise is too long, and another car should be equipped with rowing machines, stationary bicycles, bars (for climbing, not drinking), medicine balls, electric horses, weight pulleys and other gymnasium equipment. At night the wits of the presidential party could stage floor shows and amateur theatricals—or movies could be shown if the passengers preferred.

—o—o—

Somewhere on the train, of course, there should be a small chapel. This would create an opening for a chaplain to buttress the military and naval aids who travel with Presidents—and there ought to be pneumatic tubes for sending messages back and forth and a small radio station, and an outside movie screen to flash pictures of the President for late depot crowds after he's in bed.

The President should have a broad veranda to accommodate all the candidates who almost crowd him off the platform in the hope of being photographed with him and of being thrown fish. To offset this there might be a catapult through which the more truculent, obnoxious candidates for office could be tossed into the mesquite or cornfields when they get too thick.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I LOST my parents about two years ago. I was taken in by my dear uncle, who has just lost his wife. I am engaged to be married in late July and plan to have a church wedding. But I am baffled about the form of the invitations to the wedding—how to word it. Should it be something like this? "The brother of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, announces, etc."

BRIDE-TO-BE.

If your uncle has recently lost his wife, it would not be the best taste to have a large church wedding. If you want to have a small wedding in a church, you could wear wedding array, but ask intimate friends for the ceremony and later send out announcements (mailed the day of the wedding). Your uncle would, of course, give you away in the ceremony. And your announcements should be made in his name:

Mr. Charles Arthur Jones has the honor to announce the marriage of his niece
Alice
to
Mr. John Doe
on Tuesday, the twenty-sixth of July one thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight in the City of Saint Louis

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A young man 20 years old. I have just bought my first white suit and I am at a loss as to the type of shirt and necktie that should be worn with it. Are solid colored shirts of dark blue, brown, black worn with light neckties with handkerchiefs to match the right combination? Is it proper to wear a white or light solid colored shirt, handkerchiefs and neckties to match? Would a black tie and handkerchief with a white shirt be formal? Is it proper to wear a white suit to a moving picture or on the boat? Will you please answer these questions for, unless you do, I am afraid I will always be A RUBE.

You can wear a white suit almost anywhere in summer. The dark shirts are worn, but boys and men of conservative taste do not seem to care for them with these suits. Wear a white shirt with necktie of solid color, for the more formal occasions and at other times you can wear the gayer scarfs.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A high school girl of sixteen and would like to become interested in some hobby. Would you please print a list of hobbies in your column, from which I could choose one? HOBBY-SEEKER.

My "Occupations for Women" might have a good many suggestions of work that might be used for a hobby. Some time ago, the St. Louis Community Council, 613 Locust, issued an attractive little pamphlet "Hobbies," which contained interesting and rather unusual work in this line. Telephone them or stop and see if they are still supplying them to inquirers.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE READ so much in your column about married women working that I would like to give my opinion on this matter. The general opinion seems to be that married women work for luxuries, cars, etc., but how about the hundreds of women who work because their husbands are not paid enough to maintain a home and family and those whose husbands can find no jobs? I am sure many women would quit their jobs if only circumstances were different. Some married women, we know, should not be working. On the other hand, single girls spend their entire salary on themselves. As things are now, I believe any able-bodied person, ambitious enough to work and efficient enough to keep it is entitled to the job. We know that there is something economically wrong when there are not enough jobs to go around. If all married women were discharged, I do not see how it would solve the employment riddle. CONSTANTA.

Youth and Farms

By Elsie Robinson

A "BACK-TO-THE-LAND" movement—backed by Uncle Sam for those on relief . . . do you think it would work?

Recently, young Kenneth Mead of Ann Arbor, Mich., tossed the suggestion into the arena . . . started a free-for-all that beats all records. Consequence—we've been cramming every available inch of space with splendid comebacks. And here come some more.

First, an answer to Kenneth—and an arraignment of all young America—by youthful Mrs. L. B. Sawyer of Pompey, N. Y.

Dear Miss Robinson:

If the young people of today could face monotony, a "back-to-the-land" movement might be a solution of Young America's unemployment problems. But personally I don't think the younger people can take it.

When I was 19 I married a farmer. We had to get our water from a well, cook on a coal range. We got up at 6 a. m. and went back to bed at 9 p. m., too tired for any entertainment. Even if there had been shows or dances, I would have been too weary to enjoy them.

Three months were all I could stand of the heat, long hours, lack of fun, loneliness. We gave up the farm, returned to the city. For six long months my husband tried in vain to find work. Then I realized you could have none of the things you want, without money. We were more unhappy in the city than we had ever been in the country.

Since we've returned to the farm, I've discovered that hard work isn't drudgery if you are getting the things out of life that count most—health, happiness, and the right to be worthy of the name American.

If youth has the courage, ambition and gumption to take it, the Good Earth could heal and would help us.

"Broke—but not broken!" Unwittingly, 15-year Donna Mae Mundell of Denver, Colo., has written an immortal slogan for modern America. I'm praying that someone somewhere in this great, abundant land might answer this child's prayer.

Dear Miss Robinson:

You wonder if the girls would back Kenneth. Here's one family that will cheerfully exchange a place in city life for 16 hours daily work on a farm!

Back-to-the-farm! Those words are like a prayer to this family. We've dreamed and schemed, but in 14 years of city ups-and-downs, Mom and Dad are broke—not broken. Like millions of others, we can only buy one quart of milk in three days; fruit is an almost unheard-of luxury; eggs are used only for cooking; the youngest child doesn't know the taste of butter! If we could get 160 acres, a horse and a cow, we'd skimp and buy some hens and a few pigs. We don't expect miracles. We are not parasites. We'd pay every cent back if we were given a chance.

Our grandparents fought for the land of the West. We'd do the same. We are not afraid to eat supper by lamplight. We wouldn't shudder at a 4 a. m. alarm clock. Did any of you ever see a baby beg for another drop of milk, a piece of bread? I'll bet none of us would have to do it again if that prayer came true!

Our bright lights would be the beautiful stars. Our strong hands would be doing God's work. Pride in the "abundant harvest" would be our thanks."

And, for a final hand, how's this from Lois Peterson of N. Henderson, Ill.? Grand, I'd say!

Dear Miss Robinson:

Life on the farm is a fine idea—a plan for youth to ponder over.

After all, God's first creation was a garden—a small farm. If He thought such a farm ideal for the first people on earth, I see no reason why it still isn't true.

Out here in God's country, we have fresh air and bright sunshine . . . freedom . . . and lack of vices. Notorious characters don't pollute country communities as they do the cities. If crime is something you look upon with distaste, Young America, go back to the farm!"

BARBARA and the BOY FROM YALE

Her Romance With Phil Plant Ended, She Falls in Love With a Handsome but Poor College Man —He Refuses to Consider Marriage Because of Her Great Wealth.

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

This is the third chapter of the life story of Barbara Hutton.

PHIL PLANT, millionaire playboy.

Prince Alexis Mdivani, youngest son of the impoverished house of Georgia.

A young man from Yale.

There were the three men important in the most important period of Barbara Hutton's life.

"After a while," Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow told me in London, "I got the idea that I wanted to get married. I was always so lonesome. I wanted a companion. Besides, I thought I would have more freedom if I was married. Before I was married, every time I went out with a man the papers printed it and everything was so complicated and embarrassing."

Why did she choose to marry Alexis Mdivani?

"I didn't," she said, looking very white and grave. "I didn't realize that the worst thing I could possibly do was to marry a titled foreigner."

I think as long as I live I never will forget the way she looked when she said: "I didn't know that Alexis had planned to marry me when I grew up, ever since he had first known me."

As she said that, sitting there so still, so motionless, holding her happiness in her hands, I knew that she had been betrayed by her "only friend." And slowly and carefully, she explained to me why she had married a foreigner with a title, and defended her second marriage to another titled foreigner.

Two men, so little thought of in the life story of Barbara Hutton, were responsible for that. Or perhaps three. For it was her father, Franklyn Hutton, who prevented her marriage to Phil Plant, as she told me.

Two Americans came into the young life of the American Dollar Princess. Always, inside herself, had been that constant fear that someone would marry her for her money. While she romped and played and was talked about with this young man and that, it was always in the back of her mind.

But Phil Plant was her equal, an American, a millionaire. That would do away with all those fears, those ugly thoughts. He wanted to marry her, and for the first time her feminine vanity was pleased. He didn't want her money. He must love her for herself.

Looking back, it is easy to understand why Frank Hutton didn't want his daughter to marry Phil Plant. I don't suppose any American father under normal conditions would have chosen the much headlined young millionaire for his daughter's husband. All he saw was that Barbara was proposing to marry a young man, already married and divorced, who was notorious in headlines for his devotion to wine, women and song.

She went into the battle to reform Phil Plant. If he would stop drinking, stop being a front page playboy, she would marry him. Not otherwise. There was in her then and still is a strong Puritan strain. She does not drink herself. Smokes very little. Dislikes the more flagrant forms of modern excitement. If Phil Plant would conform to her standards she could marry him—and be happy.

It was her one great chance. The one man who didn't care about her money. But somehow, Phil Plant didn't succeed. And the whole affair, under the cold opposition of her father, blew up.

There was another young American, seldom mentioned in the stories about Barbara Hutton because so few people knew about him. It was a very serious moment in her life. And in many ways, perhaps, the turning point. Perhaps the things that sent her to Europe for husbands.

I KNEW him, as it happened. He was young, good-looking in a typical American way. Tall, blond, athletic. He had a charming smile, with a little twinkle in back of his eyes. The young American and Barbara met, by chance, at a dance. And he fell in love with her. This, he knew, was the girl of his dreams. She was kind, she was lovely to look at even if she was a little plump. She was gay and witty as far as he was concerned. She danced divinely. The ideal American girl. Then he found out that she was Barbara Hutton. Now, by this time, Barbara Hutton was well known as the million dollar baby. Tales of her fabulous wealth, of the millions she would soon inherit, of her magnificent parties, her suite at the Hotel Pierre, her trips to far lands, were well known. Her very name glittered with gold.

And the young man, who was only a couple of years older than she was, did not like it. He still was in college. An outstanding young man in his university. One of the honor men. With a fine family background, enormous popularity, but without a penny to his name. His plans for his future were definite. He knew that being an honor student at his university would open doors to him. In time, he would be a success. In time, he would make enough money to live as the best type of Americans live, and be happy because he had made his way for himself.

But what would he do as the husband of Barbara Hutton? There again, she found she couldn't buy what she wanted. If she had been an American girl without money, if she had even a million dollars, the romance might have reached a happy finale. But being Barbara Hutton, the young man very definitely wasn't having any.

There must, I think, have been unusual and amazing scenes during that time, for Barbara wanted him. Her money stood between them. Instead of helping her to marry the young American she loved and wanted, it was a definite bar, and Barbara, heart-broken again, went to Europe.

In Paris, she met again Prince Alexis Mdivani.

"I knew his first marriage would end," she said, slowly, when we talked of it. "He told me that himself. It couldn't possibly last."

So there they were, together in Paris, the young foreign Prince, who knew so much of life and women, whose marriage was already on the rocks. For it was always in the cards that stately, quiet Louise Van Alen could never hold the glamor-loving, excitable, emotional young Georgian. He was restless, lonely, unhappy. He was squandering his wife's money on fast cars and polo ponies and Parisian night life.

Slowly, insidiously, wisely, Alexis Mdivani began to make love to the disillusioned young dollar Princess. For years he had been building up her complete confidence in him. For years, by letter and in meetings, he had made the shy, awkward young girl, regard him as the only person on earth in whom she had complete confidence, to whom she could talk the secrets of her lonely heart.

Then, he mentioned marriage. At first it came as a complete shock to her. She had never once thought of Alexis in that way. But he told her that he was unhappy in his own marriage, that divorce was inevitable, that her own romance could come to nothing.

"I trusted him," Barbara Hutton told me, very seriously, her thin little hands clasped tightly. "I began to think it might be a lovely thing to marry your best friend. Nothing else, then, seemed possible to me. I began to think of it as the best way for me, the most nearly happy life I could find for myself. I trusted him. I had trusted him for five years."

But before she made up her mind, Barbara Hutton sailed home to New York—to see once more that boy from Yale. No sooner had she landed on American soil than she wired Mdivani not to join her as they had planned.

But he came anyway and she refused to see him. That was, almost, the end of the Mdivani affair right there and then.

For Barbara had come home to face an infuriated family, and a public reaction to the proposed marriage that both shocked and frightened her. Even her Aunt Jessie, even her favorite cousin, Jimmy Donohue, were against such a marriage. It simply, they said, couldn't be.

She had, as I happen to know, one last scene with the American boy with whom she was almost in love. No one, of course, knows exactly what happened, exactly what they said to each other. But it isn't very difficult to imagine. The boy, just starting his career, with a small executive job, heart-broken but steadfast in his refusal to marry the richest girl he would ever know. Barbara, probably ready at one moment to give up everything for him, and then realizing that it couldn't be done.

So they parted. And Barbara listened to her father, who spoke plainly and harshly enough about the marriage of rich American girls to penniless foreigners.

In the midst of it all, Barbara walked out on all of them. She sailed for the East she loved so deeply, the place where, as she once told me, she always seemed to find peace—China and the Orient, the Far East, the strange and beautiful places that always soothed her troubled heart and her jangled nerves.

PROBABLY no one in the world knew better than Alexis Mdivani what Babs Hutton was thinking as she sailed alone across the sea. He had made it his business to know. He had taken the greatest pains to understand her. He let her sail. And when she was alone in a strange land, with her heart full of doubt, with no one near to advise her, he joined her.

Oh yes, if, as Barbara told me, he had always planned to marry her when she grew up and came into her millions, he played his cards magnificently. He joined her in Bangkok — romantic, Oriental, glamorous. She had been alone for three months.

And there, quietly, gently, as had been his wont with her always, he laid before her his plan for life for them both.

"I just thought," said Barbara Hutton, speaking of it to me long afterwards, "I just thought we would be happy together. He would have leisure to do the one thing I wanted to do most—travel. I trusted him. I came to think it would be a lovely thing to marry your best friend. I believed he cared for the same things I did, that he was fond of me, that we would always be kind to each other."

From Singapore they announced their engagement.

PHIL PLANT — BARBARA COULDN'T MAKE HIM ABANDON THE GAY LIFE.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By Bob Burns

WOMEN may be a lot weaker than men physically but in an emergency they remain cool and mentally calm while a man will go all to pieces and lose his self-control. Not long ago, I took Uncle Unie and Aunt Boo to a big society function and some of the guests were gathered around playing the wheel of fortune. In a loud voice Aunt Boo said "I'm gonna play the number of my age." So she put a quarter on thirty-two. When the wheel stopped on number forty-seven, Aunt Boo didn't bat an eyelash, but Uncle Unie blurted out and said "See there, Boo—if you'd told the truth, you'd won!"

Opening Lead Often Decides Bridge Hand

West's Sound Reasoning Defeats South's No Trump Contract.

By Ely Culbertson

ANY one who looks upon the opening lead as a sort of burden, to be gotten rid of as quickly as possible, misses out in one of the most important and most fascinating sides of the game. I have repeatedly said, and now say again, that the success, or failure, of most "close" contract hangs on the balance of the opening lead. Depending on the situation, the objective of the opening lead must vary widely. Sometimes the correct objective is the immediate establishment of a trick but, at other times, it is possible for the leader to take a very long view and visualize the course that the later play will probably take.

It was West's imaginative (and sound) opening lead in the following hand that brought his side a top score.

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

	♠10854 2 ♥AQ8 ♦J8 ♣754
♠J7 ♥J1094 ♦K92 ♣10983	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠A93 ♥Q62 ♦Q1076 ♣KQ2
	♠KQ6 ♥875 ♦A653 ♣AJ6

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 club	1 diamond
Pass	1 spade	Pass	1 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

I am reporting the bidding as it occurred at one table, which does not mean that I approve it. East obviously was a player who preferred to open with one club whenever in doubt as to the proper bid. It is difficult to see anything wrong with a one diamond opening.

If West had been the type of player who woodenly opens partner's suit regardless of other considerations, South's contract would have returned an excellent match-point score. No fewer than four spade tricks, one heart, one diamond and one club would have been made, with the possibility of an extra club trick. West, however, had different ideas. He was sure that he never again would take the lead except with the diamond king and, to him, it seemed very important that his two leads (the opening lead and the probable later lead through the diamond king) could be used to better advantage than to knock out the stoppers of what probably was a short club suit in partner's hand. Hearts had not been bid by any player and it was entirely reasonable to suppose that the top heart honors were distributed around the table. Whether East held the heart king or the heart ace, the suit unquestionably could be started better by West, with the J-10-9, than by East. It was almost inconceivable that a lead of the heart jack could cost anything and, since that was true, it automatically became an excellent opening.

That was West's reasoning, but his heart jack lead succeeded beyond his fondest hope. Dummy's entry to the spade suit went in one fell swoop! Declarer tried to retain the entry by finessing with the queen, but East killed that card and promptly returned a heart. West forcing out the ace. East then held up his spade ace until declarer's spades were exhausted and that made the dummy as dead as a door nail. By guessing the spade situation, declarer cashed two spade tricks, but these were augmented only by one heart, one diamond and one club, which left him two tricks short of his contract.

Obviously, North-South could have done much better at a one spade contract. But the fact remains that it was West's imaginative opening lead that capitalized the situation for his pair.

If you have a number of candles let from winter decoration that are perfectly good but rather soiled, saturate a cloth with alcohol and rub the candles. All soil will be removed, the luster retained. They then can be wrapped and put away for next winter's usage.

Butterscotch Fingers

Five egg yolks.
Two cups dark brown sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
Five egg whites, beaten.

Beat yolks and sugar until well mixed. Fold in the rest of the ingredients. Mix lightly. Pour into a shallow pan which has been lined with waxed paper. (The batter should not be more than one inch thick). Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate oven. While warm, cut into bars and roll in dark brown sugar, to which a little cinnamon has been added. (One teaspoon of cinnamon is enough for a third of a cup of sugar).

The Boy's Idol

By Dale Carnegie

I SOMETIMES run across a story so helpful that it should be repeated over and over again.

I have just read such a story. Of a nation's hero and his willingness to help—even though the recipient of his favor was an unknown, unpublicized, little boy who might not even live to tell the tale.

This boy lay close to death in a hospital. He had been operated on and had failed to recover. "No chance," the surgeon said. Well, there might be one chance, the barest possibility—if they could arouse the boy, create in him the desire to live.

Babe Ruth, the baseball marvel, was the boy's idol. If only they could get a ball for the boy autographed by Ruth, it might rouse his interest and create strength in him to fight through.

As it happened, the Babe was passing through the town. He was told about the boy.

"Johnny," said the dying lad's nurse, an hour later, "somebody is here to see you. Open your eyes. Look, Johnny!"

Into the room walked the American boy's god—the huge bulk of Babe Ruth. He wore a polo coat and a flap cap. He had a flat nose and small, piggy eyes. A huge black cigar was stuck in one corner of his large mouth.

Johnny gasped; then he sat up. His god sat on the foot of his bed, grinned at him, and said:

"Johnny, I'm gonna hit a home run just for you this afternoon. It's gonna be your home run. You watch. Now hurry up and get well so you can come see me play."

When Babe Ruth went away, he left an American League ball with his name written on it. And that afternoon he basted one far out of the lot for a homer, just as he had said he would.

Johnny lived and got well.

This story is told by Paul Gallico in his "Farewell to Sport," a book recently published by Alfred A. Knopf.

In that book Gallico tells the tale of Ruth's amazing life, probably the greatest success story ever written.

The greatest men are not those who despise small things. Michaelangelo was one day explaining to a visitor to his studio what he had been doing to a statue since his previous visit. "I have retouched this part, polished that, softened this feature, brought out that muscle, given some expression to this lip, more energy to that limb." But those are trifles," the visitor remarked. "It may be so," replied Michaelangelo, "but recollect that trifles make perfection—and perfection is no trifle."

Attention and painstaking industry always mark the true worker.

Dr. Byers' Bandit Patient Dies—He Attacks the Professor as a Posse Surrounds the House.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.

RUBY lifted her puffed, tear swollen face.

"He's gone, I know, but don't tell the professor yet. Let me have a few minutes."

She flung herself on the bed to give way to her grief, but she was not to have her few minutes. With his quick, noiseless tread, the professor was in the room.

"Gone, is he, doctor?" he asked.

Otis assented.

"No use leaving a corpse here," said the professor to the other two men who came in behind him.

Ruby, with a desperate gesture of protection, spread her arms over the dead body.

"Get off that bed," said the professor brutally. "I said he was going to die, that we didn't need a doctor. You insisted and now you can have the satisfaction of knowing that you have been the cause of his death, too."

"Oh, no." Ruby pressed her hand over her mouth, as if to repress a scream of horror.

"You surely did not think we could let him go? He knows too much."

"But he won't tell the law. Swear to him you won't tell," she pleaded with Otis.

The bald words of the professor had come as no surprise to Otis. Too many indications during this last day had prepared him for the end. The professor, smiling slightly, and rolling his customary piece of cellophane, leaned against a door jamb.

"How he would like to see me grovel, lose my head from terror," thought Otis. He straightened, and although his face paled, managed to smile at Ruby as he shook his head.

"What an admirably law abiding nature he has," said the professor. "Or perhaps he is enough of a realist to know there is no possibility of changing my plans. Well, we have wasted enough time," and he motioned toward the body on the bed. "Dispose of it, please," he said to Shorty and Floyd. "Under that old straw stack is as good a place as any."

They pushed Ruby roughly aside and carried Earl's thin body away, its hands dangling grotesquely.

"Now, you!" said the professor curtly. "Before they come back, you can tell me where Earl's share of the big snatch was put." He moved toward the frightened girl slowly. "Don't say you don't know. You do know and I'll get it out of you. You owe it to me. Who was it that saw to it he had every attention, even to a doctor and a chance to die in bed. I've a right to whatever he left."

Like a fascinated animal, with eyes that never left his face, Ruby retreated from him, shaking her head weakly.

The professor laughed softly.

"You'll tell me, my girl; you won't leave my sight until you do. After a few weeks of association with me, do you think you can keep anything from me? But I warn you I don't like secrets, and you won't be surprised if your treatment is not gentle while you try to conceal what I want to know."

The two actors in the scene seemed entirely absorbed in one another. A wild hope began to grow in Otis' mind. Floyd and Shorty were temporarily out of the way, and if he could spring upon the professor and disarm him, he might have a chance of dealing with the other two men when they returned. He thought he could rely upon the girl to help him, once he had the professor in his power. The odds were enormously against him, but since he was condemned to die, and that soon, it did not matter what the outcome.

He began to move cautiously closer and closer to the professor. Ruby was facing him and unluckily her tranced gaze wandered in time to see Otis' purpose. She made no sound, but her expression changed and the professor, alert as a jungle beast, whirled without warning.

"Not yet, doctor," said he between his teeth.

Otis sprang for him, knowing it was useless. There was a blinding pain in his head, and he knew no more.

• • •

WHEN he struggled back to consciousness, Ruby was bending over him, fanning dust through his hair with a folded newspaper. The girl was an absolute ignoramus about first aid, he thought in an annoyed flash, and then he was drifting off again.

"Doc!" she said, "Can't you wake up? Doc!"

All at once he knew where he was and in what condition.

"Why didn't he finish me off?" he asked puzzled.

"There's men outside; I think it's the law," she told him. "They came just as he knocked you out. Shorty fired at them, and now both sides are shooting it out. Why, can't you hear it?"

The noises he had been hearing were not in his head, then.

"They've come for me!" he exclaimed.

"You'll never get out," said Ruby, hopelessly. "They are keeping the professor pretty busy just now, but they are good shots, him and Floyd and Shorty, and they are in shelter. They'll finish you off just as soon as it slacks up a little."

"Ruby," said Otis, "I don't want you to be taken with these men. Now that Earl is gone, you don't belong with them."

Ruby pushed back her limp hair.

"What the use of talking, doc? I guess neither of us has any say about it."

"Listen, Ruby," said Otis. "I know every inch of this old house. There is a trap door that leads to the root cellar under the table. It is covered by a rug. Get down there and hide until everyone is gone."

"And what will the professor be doing while I am climbing in?" asked Ruby.

"I'll keep him busy. He won't notice you. He has something else to think about now."

"Oh, what's the use?" said Ruby, wearily. "I won't try it. I don't care about anything now."

"Follow me," commanded Otis. "Shorty is down. I believe he is killed."

Shorty's fall left one window unguarded, and it was plain the professor was worried for fear the men on the outside would make a rush. Otis edged silently through the door.

"Doc," cried Ruby. "What are you doing?"

"I'm going to get Shorty's gun and then I'm going to get into this fight. Now is your chance, Ruby. Remember what I told you."

WITH a final swift rush, he reached Shorty's body and seized the smoking gun from his limp hand. Floyd and the professor, however, had divined his purpose and reached him before he had a chance to use the weapon. The danger from the rear was so imminent that both had deserted their stations at the windows.

For a moment the three men stood as if frozen. Otis found his brain working coolly. He was willing to throw away his life, which was already forfeit, if in so doing he could have the satisfaction of first getting a shot at the professor. The question in Otis' mind, as the two men warily crossed looks, was whether there was ammunition left in Shorty's gun. If he attempted to fire it and failed, the show was over. If he could engage the professor's attention for a moment, the men on the outside might make a rush, and even if he himself were killed, which seemed probable, perhaps the criminal could then be captured without the loss of any more lives.

Then he noticed the professor was drawing away from Floyd, quietly, almost imperceptibly. At first the move puzzled Otis, and then he realized that when they got in a position where only one of them could be covered by his gun, it would be an easy matter for one of them to shoot him.

It was now or never. He must risk it. He aimed at the professor and pulled the trigger. It was as he had feared; the gun was empty.

The professor laughed aloud in relief.

"Now we've got him!" he shouted. "Let the rat have it, Floyd!" He spat contemptuously and turned away, as if from lack of interest in the paltry job.

Even as he made the useless gesture of pulling the trigger of Shorty's gun, Otis had seen men running past the window. Now the door was shaking as they lunged against it.

"Come on! For God's sake, hurry!" he screamed at them, expecting his words to be cut short by a shot.

The professor's scornful gesture was Otis' opportunity. He flung himself at his enemy, tackling low, and they went down together. Events were moving as fast as the taps of a telegraph instrument, and yet in a curious detached way, Otis' brain was preoccupied with a puzzle. Why had not Floyd already killed him? As he was flung clear of the professor, as the blows and shouts of the rescuing party made a pandemonium about his ears, Otis saw in a flash the reason for Floyd's tardiness. Ruby had flung herself upon him recklessly and tried to snatch the gun from him. Even now, Floyd kicked her from him.

Involuntarily, Otis closed his eyes. In another few seconds, his friends would break in, but it would be too late. Hard, that the last sight his eyes should rest on should be a burly ruffian kicking the poor girl who had tried to befriend him, or else the malevolent face of the professor.

"Don't shoot!" Ruby was screaming. Otis was annoyed at her simplicity. His impetuous tackle of the professor had not helped the ache in his head, which felt as if it were being pounded by fiends. Then, almost simultaneously, a woman's body plastered itself against him and a sharp pain seared his shoulder.

Continued tomorrow.

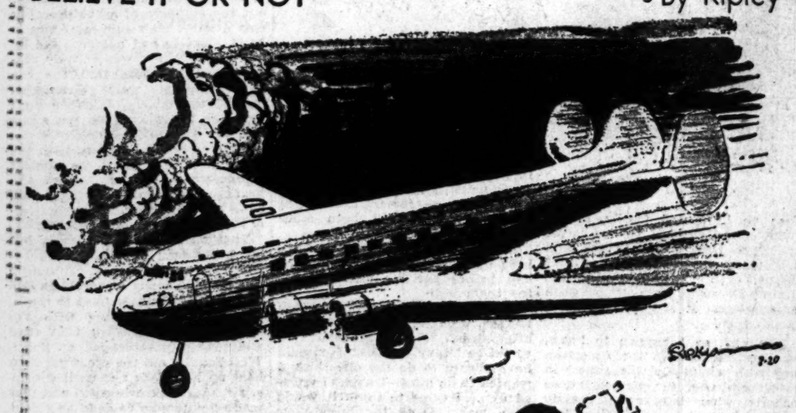
By Ripley



Test flights of the new Douglas DC-4, about a month ago at Santa Monica, Cal., were more than satisfying to the builders and air line operators. The plane performed better than they had hoped, exceeding even the promises of its engineers. With a top speed of about 250 miles per hour, the DC-4 will accomodate 42 passengers in daytime, 30 in sleeper service, with a crew of five—all enjoying the luxuries of a modern hostelry. This giant of the clouds cost more than $1,500,000 to develop, built to the order of five leading air line operators of United States, and it is strange to note that it embodies the "tricycle" landing gear—the same as the Wright Brothers' "Kitty Hawk," which made its first successful flight 35 years ago. The tricycle landing gear is a great safety factor, permitting the ship to fly into a landing and coming to a quick stop with brakes without any danger of nosing over.

Household Quips

A canvas ventilator is handy for baby's window, as it will let the the fresh air in without causing a blast of air on the child.

Lemons that have been kept too long and have hardened can be softened by covering with boiling water and standing on the back of the stove for a few minutes.

Line the pot holder with a piece of leather whenever possible. Leather is a non-conductor of heat and makes a splendid burn-proof holder.

Be careful that the refreshments for the children's party are not too rich. They can be enjoyable without having to be so rich they are apt to cause discomfort to some youngster whose digestion is not so hardy.

Cherry Dumplings

Wash and seed pie cherries, allowing one-half cupful to each dumpling. Make a dough of one and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, five tablespoons butter and lard mixed, one-half cup milk. Roll out to one-half inch thickness on a floured board. Divide into six squares. Lay one-half cup cherries on each square. Sprinkle with sugar. Moisten the edges of the dough and fold over cherries, pressing tightly together. Place in a greased baking pan. Springle with sugar and dot with butter. Bake in a hot oven until delicately browned. Serve with hard sauce or sweetened whipped cream.

Place the bowl on a folded towel when beating eggs or salad dressing and avoid its constant slipping.

FRANCE PARADES ITS WAR MACHINE FOR KING GEORGE

50,000 Troops and Tanks Never Shown in Public Before, Go Past Palace at Versailles.

LUNCHEON SERVED IN HALL OF MIRRORS

Fascist Envoys Get Choice Seats at Display Planned to Outdo Rome's Martial Review for Hitler.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 21.—France paraded her newest war machines for the first time today before King George VI of Britain.

For more than an hour, infantry, cavalry and artillery regiments swung by the red-carpeted reviewing stand at Versailles to the music of massed military bands.

King George, in the tunic of a field marshal, and President Albert Lebrun of France, reviewed 30,000 marching men, hundreds of tanks and about 50 airplanes.

The spectacle was a highlight of King George's state visit to France.

When the King reached Versailles a 101-gun salute was started. It continued throughout the parade, one salvo each minute.

The King and President Lebrun were taken from the station to the reviewing stand in a bullet-proof automobile flanked by mounted guard of colorful Spahis.

Vast crowds, lining the route of the parade, saw implements of war the French army never before has shown publicly.

Fascists, Nazis See Parade.

Today's parade was planned to outdo even Premier Mussolini's great demonstration for Chancellor Hitler in Rome May 3. It was considered significant that places were reserved in the reviewing stands for German and Italian military attaches.

They watched columns of swift trucks pulling six-inch guns on pneumatic tires and mechanized three-inch anti-aircraft guns with trucks for ammunition.

Fifty infantry trucks, each mounting two machine guns and carrying 10 soldiers armed with repeating guns, paraded past, followed by tanks ranging from tiny whippets to rolling fortresses.

Camouflaged "land battleships" tanks, weighing as much as 30 tons, had three-inch guns protruding from their snouts.

Troops, including detachments from all France's colonial possessions, lined both sides of the route to Versailles and presented arms as the King and President drove past after the review.

The last such display was on the eve of the World War when King George V came to France and declared, "With troops like those, your country has nothing to fear."

Alpine Chasseurs, the famous "Blue Devils" of World War fame, dusky Spahis in their brilliant robes and turbans, Zouaves with baggy trousers, Republican Guards in golden helmets were featured in the parade, as well as troops in blue and khaki from the Maginot defense line on the French-German frontier.

Luncheon in Hall of Mirrors.

Reviewing stands for King George and President Lebrun were erected on the spacious Avenue de Paris. Queen Elizabeth and Mme. Lebrun arranged to visit the British Hertford Hospital in suburban Neuilly while the review was in progress.

Queen Elizabeth and Mme. Lebrun arrived later by special train and were accompanied by mounted Spahis to the Versailles palace to attend a luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors, where the treaty ending the World War was signed.

The luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors rivaled those given by Louis XIV at Versailles in the seventeenth century.

It was served by an army of liveried flunkeys in the powder blue and scarlet uniform of the Royal House of France. Thousands of pieces of priceless Limoges porcelain were used.

A hidden orchestra played seventeenth century music.

During the day, it was announced President Lebrun had accepted the invitation of King George to visit England before his term of office expires in May, 1939. The President and Mme. Lebrun probably will go to London some time during the first three months of next year.

Review Follows Parley.

The review followed yesterday's secret conference of the British Foreign Secretary, Viscount Halifax, the French Premier, Edouard Daladier, and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, at which Franco-
